

THE LIGHT AFTER THE TUNNEL

DISCOVERING YOUR TRUE PURPOSE
IN HARD TIMES

ASSIMAGBE ALBERT RAPHAEL

Revised Edition

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Copyright © 2024 Assimagbe Albert Raphael
All rights reserved.

ISBN 979-8-34-397775-2 (Cover Book)
ISBN 979-8-34-397833-9 (Hard Cover Book)

Dedication

To the one above all, God Almighty, the fount of wisdom, grace, and inspiration, this book is dedicated. It is with deepest reverence and gratitude that I offer this dedication, acknowledging Your constant presence and unerring guidance throughout the journey of crafting these pages. You have been my unwavering support, the bedrock upon which my faith stands firm. May Your name be exalted, and Your boundless love be made manifest through the words woven within these chapters.

To Jesus Christ, my Savior and Redeemer, whose boundless love, compassion, and grace knows no bounds, I dedicate this book. Your sacrifice on the cross and the shining example of Your life continue to illuminate my path. It is through Your enduring love and the knowledge of Your unshakeable grace that I have discovered hope, purpose, and the resilience to confront life's myriad trials. May Your radiant light shine forth from the depths of these pages, leading all who peruse them into a deeper communion with Your divine presence.

May this book stand as a demonstration to the transformative power of God's love and guidance in my life. May its words resound in the hearts of readers, guiding them along the path of faith and illuminating the unchanging love of God. May it serve as a beacon of solace for the weary, a wellspring of hope for the disheartened, and a source of inspiration for all who seek to uncover the divine purpose of their existence.

Acknowledgement

I am profoundly indebted to the multitude of souls whose unwavering support, boundless love, and profound guidance have illuminated the path of my journey in crafting "The Light After the Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose in Hard Times." This literary endeavor stands as a witness to the collective encouragement and unwavering faith bestowed upon me by a myriad of individuals who have played integral roles in shaping my life and inspiring the pursuit of this transformative work.

To all those who have lent their unwavering support and believed in my vision, I offer my deepest gratitude. Your unwavering encouragement, patience, and understanding have served as the bedrock upon which this endeavor was built. Your presence has been a beacon of light, guiding me through the labyrinth of creativity and fortifying my resolve to see this project through fruition. Your collective support has been nothing short of a blessing, and for that, I am eternally grateful.

In humble recognition of the countless souls who have contributed to this journey, I extend my heartfelt appreciation. Your unwavering belief in my capabilities and your steadfast commitment to seeing me succeed have been the wind beneath my wings. Each word penned within the confines of this manuscript is a testament to the profound impact you have had on my life, and I am forever indebted to you for your unwavering support and encouragement.

Lastly, I humbly acknowledge the boundless grace and divine guidance of the Almighty, without whom this literary endeavor would not have come to fruition. It is through His unfailing guidance and unyielding grace that I have been granted the strength and wisdom to embark on this transformative journey. I am humbled by the privilege of being entrusted with the message contained within these pages, and I pray that it serves as a beacon of hope, enlightenment, and inspiration to all who encounter it.

Table of Content

Dedication.....	iii
Acknowledgement.....	iv
Table of Content.....	v
Preface.....	vi
Introduction.....	1
Chapter 1: Hard Times Does Not Discriminate.....	3
Chapter 2: Overcoming Intimidation with Courage.....	15
Chapter 3: Persistence and Resilience.....	27
Chapter 4: Cultivating Spiritual Alertness through Persistent Prayer.....	38
Chapter 5: Unveiling Your Purpose, Exercising Self-Discipline, and Mastering Your Destiny.....	53
Chapter 6: Honoring God in the Midst of Adversity.....	68
Chapter 7: Avoid Dwelling on the Past.....	78
Chapter 8: The Efficacy of Praise and Worship.....	88
Chapter 9: The Pathway to your Destiny.....	97
Chapter 10: The Role of Grace in the Race.....	109
Chapter 11: Divine Correction.....	123
Chapter 12: The Unchanging Love of Christ.....	132
Chapter 13: Making Yourself Available for God's Purpose.....	141
Chapter 14: Learning from the Story of Job.....	154

Preface

It is with profound gratitude and humility that I present "The Light After the Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose in Hard Times." This endeavor represents not only a labor of love but also an evidence to the resilience of the human spirit and the boundless grace of our Creator.

Within the pages of this book, I have endeavored to explore the depths of adversity and the transformative power of faith. Through personal narratives, biblical reflections, and deep insights, I aim to offer readers a guiding light amidst life's darkest tunnels. For it is in the midst of our trials that we often find the most profound revelations and blessings waiting to be unearthed.

As I embarked on this literary journey, I was acutely aware of the weight of responsibility entrusted to me. With each word penned, I sought divine inspiration and guidance, knowing that the message conveyed within these pages could potentially impact the lives of countless individuals. It is my sincerest hope that readers will find within these chapters not only solace and inspiration but also a renewed sense of purpose and faith.

"The Light After the Tunnel" is more than just a book; it is a tribute to the unwavering faith and resilience that resides within each of us. It is a reminder that even in our darkest moments, there is always a glimmer of hope, a beacon of light waiting to guide us home. May this book serve as a source of comfort, encouragement, and enlightenment to all who embark on this transformative journey.

In closing, I extend my heartfelt gratitude to every reader who dares to embark on this journey of self-discovery and spiritual renewal. May the words contained within these pages resonate deeply within your soul, guiding you toward the light that awaits "after the tunnel."

Introduction

Have you ever found yourself questioning why you must endure pain, hardship, and challenging situations? When confronted with unpleasant circumstances that feel overwhelming, do you begin to doubt God's love and search for alternative solutions? It's crucial not to immediately question God's enduring love for your life. Frequently, the way we perceive our difficult situations differs greatly from what God intends to bring forth through them. Therefore, do not lose heart. God's love remains constant and everlasting, and this is the essence of 'The Light After the Tunnel.' This book will unveil the blessings awaiting manifestation in your trials and difficulties, the glorious future that awaits true believers who journey with their Heavenly Father.

The term "tunnel" symbolizes a channel, a passageway built to facilitate a smooth journey through perceived barriers or obstacles. A tunnel is neither a place of comfort nor a dwelling; it signifies the struggle to break through to the other side of your destiny. It encompasses the various difficult situations that God's children face in this fallen world, which is under the grip of the devil. The tunnel represents the test of faith that God allows in our life's journey with Him. It is a crucial stage for anyone with significant dreams; it prepares us to be spiritually mature and qualified before God's promises can manifest in our lives.

To fulfill your purpose and avoid disappointment, you must be prepared to face the heavenly examination that validates your qualification. As believers, we should not be troubled by trials. We must understand that we are heavenly products in whom God has invested so much, and He will never allow His products to fail. In the manufacturing world, before a manufacturer can ascertain the durability of a new product, they subject it to rigorous testing. This testing process can take months or even years to establish the product's originality. Only when the product passes the test can the manufacturer confidently bring it to the market. Similarly, God, the creator of mankind and the architect of your purpose and destiny, allows you to undergo trials, hardships, and pain to build your character and validate your capability to handle the great responsibilities tied to His promises for your life.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Going through the tunnel is not a pleasant experience. It may feel like your world is ending, and many people try to avoid it. However, those who understand its significance in their spiritual lives yearn for it. The tunnel is a pivotal time for every believer, as it is when a genuine child of God proves their citizenship in the kingdom.

God leads us through the tunnel not because He wants us to suffer, but because of His genuine purpose for our lives on earth. Remember, we all carry the promises of God, and only He knows the precise manner in which those promises will be fulfilled. Scripture reminds us that God's ways are higher than our ways, and His thoughts surpass our thoughts. His methods go beyond human comprehension, intellect, and rationality.

Throughout history, God has guided His children toward spiritual maturity through circumstances that may seem perplexing or illogical. Every figure of renown and hero of faith in the Bible traversed the challenging path of the tunnel to become who they were meant to be. Even the eminent ministers of the gospel—prophets, pastors, and apostles—who excelled in the work of the Kingdom, endured their own tunnels. If you aspire to accomplish extraordinary feats in your calling, whether in your profession, business endeavors, or ministry, and if you seek to be numbered among the champions, you must be willing to journey through the tunnel. You must be prepared to endure suffering and hardship for the sake of Christ.

Always remember that you are going through challenging situations because God knows you are capable of overcoming them. He will not allow you to face trials that you cannot conquer. He permits the tests set before you because He knows you will emerge with excellent results. The scripture says, "No temptation has overtaken you that is not common to man. God is faithful, and he will not let you be tempted beyond your ability, but with the temptation, he will also provide the way of escape, that you may be able to endure it" (1 Corinthians 10:13).

Before our existence, God had already orchestrated the unfolding of events in our lives. Both the favorable and the unfavorable are integral components of God's design. The peaks and valleys encountered on our journey serve the purpose of fostering our growth and maturation. Our task is to remain steadfast in our purpose, seek divine guidance, and refuse to succumb to discouragement. Even in the midst of trials, take heart, for God is utilizing them to prepare you for a greater manifestation of His glory. My hope and prayer are that the words contained within this book fortify your faith amidst life's tempests. Amen!

CHAPTER ONE

Hard Times Does Not Discriminate

Our Pathway to Success Lies in Our Resolution to Overcome Any Obstacle

When confronted with trials, challenges, and tribulations, it's imperative for believers to recognize that, as members of the body of Christ, they are not immune to difficult circumstances. There exists a prevalent misconception among Christians that being a born again believer ensures exemption from hardship and adversity. However, the truth is that even devout Christians may encounter tough situations. Regardless of our faith and relationship with God, difficult times affect everyone indiscriminately. Both believers and non-believers confront adversity. Nonetheless, Christ has assured to guide and uphold His children, having already triumphed over the world. This chapter delves into the origins of hardship, the redemptive work of Christ, and the ongoing struggle between the forces of darkness and the Kingdom of light.

The Origin of Hardship

In the beginning, God's intention for humanity was a life of harmony and joy, devoid of sin, suffering, and adversity. Adam and Eve were designed to govern over the earth and its inhabitants. However, their disobedience to God's instructions led to their expulsion from the Garden of Eden. Subsequently, suffering became an inherent aspect of human life. Mankind was subjected to the hardships of labor and the pains of childbirth. The rebellion against God severed the direct communion with Him, allowing the fallen angel, Satan, to exert influence over the world.

Redemption through Christ

Despite humanity's fall, God's love for mankind remained unwavering. He initiated a plan of redemption by sending His Beloved Son, Jesus Christ, to be the ultimate sacrifice for our sins. Jesus, in His human form, paid the price for our redemption through His death on the cross. By taking upon Himself the sins of the world, Jesus restored our connection with God and paved the way for salvation. Through faith in Christ, believers are cleansed by His precious blood, breaking the power of sin and the influence of the kingdom of darkness.

While believers have been redeemed, Satan's ruler ship over the world has not yet ceased (Revelation 12:9). He continues to oppose and accuse true believers. The clash between the kingdom of darkness and the kingdom of light creates an ongoing spiritual battle. As representatives of God's kingdom, we must be prepared to face opposition and trials in our life journey here on earth. Challenges arise because the enemy recognizes the potential within us and seeks to hinder our progress. Extraordinary achievements often require overcoming extraordinary challenges, and God allows we His children to face trials since he want us to manifest greatness.

God's Presence in Hardship

When encountering difficulties, we must remember that God is with us. He fights on our behalf in the spiritual realm. Trusting in God and staying firm in faith is crucial. God can turn seemingly destructive situations into opportunities for personal and spiritual growth. Great men and women throughout history have faced numerous obstacles on their path to greatness, and it is through these challenges that God often reveals His purpose in our lives. True believers should never lose hope or write themselves off, for God is always present, working for their good.

We should always remember that hard times do not discriminate based on faith. Christians, like anyone else, are susceptible to facing trials and tribulations. However, believers have the assurance that Christ has already overcome the world, and through Him, they can navigate and overcome any obstacle. Trusting in God's plan, staying focused, and remaining steadfast in faith are essential during challenging times. By recognizing the ongoing battle between the kingdom of darkness and the Kingdom of light, believers can draw strength from God's presence and His promise to see them through. Remember the quote, "Our pathway to success lies in our resolution to overcome any obstacle," and let it serve as a reminder of the resilience and determination required to thrive in the face of adversity.

Do Not Heed the Deceptive Utterances of the Adversary

In situations where we struggle to comprehend the reasons behind God allowing challenging circumstances to befall us, His beloved children, it is crucial to recognize that the adversary of the brethren will swiftly attempt to sow doubt regarding God's love for us, thereby casting a negative light upon our perception of Him. It is imperative to understand that God always has the best interests of His children at heart. Disregard the lies propagated by the devil, insinuating that God has forsaken you. He is fully cognizant of your situation and would never subject you to an insurmountable ordeal. I implore you to reflect upon the difficulties you currently face and contemplate whether they may be setbacks, failures, health problems, destructive addictions, spiritual attacks, or any circumstances that have led you to live in a state of disarray, subsequently fostering a belief that there is no longer any hope for you. Take solace in the profound words of Christ: “.... Be of good cheer; I have already overcome the world” (John 16:33). This implies that irrespective of the arduous challenges presented to you by the world, Christ has already borne them on your behalf through His sacrifice on the cross. Therefore, victory is assured for those who are in Christ Jesus. Remember, Christ came to this world specifically to save us from the clutches of Satan. The ultimate price has already been paid for those who embrace the kingdom of God. Our task is simply to exercise faith, for we are already partakers of His divine nature.

Refrain from hastily concluding that there is no hope for you. There is a perpetual hope for the children of God. Perhaps God is utilizing your present tribulations to prepare you for a greater blessing. Remind yourself that His purpose for you is to make a profound impact in this world. Those setbacks encountered in your career, ministry, academics, or business are temporary in nature and incapable of impeding God's purpose for your life. God is deliberately setting you apart for His special attention. He is employing your circumstances to equip you for an elevated promotion. Are you facing challenges in your marriage, do not surrender, for God may intend to use your marital situation to fortify the bond between you and your partner. Many of the exemplary couples we admire have previously weathered challenges in their marital lives. However, their unwavering solidarity in the face of uncertainty is what has led to their commendation today. God may desire to utilize the challenges in your marriage to establish your relationship as a model for others. Therefore, seek reasons to rejoice amidst your trials and place your complete trust in God, for victory is certain.

Embrace the Courage to Defend Your Faith

The fear of rejection and persecution from unbelievers often deters many individuals from boldly standing up for their faith. However, it should be regarded as a source of joy to endure unjust persecution for the sake of salvation in Christ Jesus. The blood and sacrifices of Christian martyrs have propelled the dissemination of the Gospel of grace across the globe. Had they succumbed to fear, intimidation, and shame, the Gospel might not have reached us. Scripture admonishes us not to be ashamed of the Gospel, even in the face of persecution and threats, as Christ Himself will also be ashamed to acknowledge us before God: "For whoever is ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him will the Son of Man also be ashamed when he comes in the glory of his Father with the holy angels" (Mark 8:38).

To be mistreated on account of the Gospel is a privilege. If you face persecution due to your Christian faith, take solace in the assurance that a greater reward awaits you. This is why the Apostle Paul proclaimed, "For I consider that the sufferings of this present time are not worth comparing with the glory that is to be revealed to us" (Romans 8:18). Those who stand resolute in their faith until the end will experience a magnificent glory that will be unveiled within them. Christ has already prepared a reward for us, but it is reserved solely for those who endure to the end. Rejoice, fellow brethren, for you have been counted among those who will suffer for the sake of their salvation. Find solace in the knowledge that a remarkable reward awaits you. Hence, it is written, "Blessed is the man who remains steadfast under trial, for when he has stood the test, he will receive the crown of life, which God has promised to those who love him" (James 1:12).

Never Doubt the Love of God

It is imperative that we refrain from doubting God's love based on our present circumstances. The temptation to question God's promises is a snare set by the adversary to hinder us. We must recognize that there are valid reasons behind God allowing us to endure challenging times; for true believers, nothing occurs without purpose. Perhaps God permitted such situations for our own protection. As true children of God, we need to shift our perspective and see things in the light of God's word. Consider what might have transpired in your spiritual life if your prayers for a specific job had been instantly answered. Reflect on the possibility that a prayer for a new car may have led to a detrimental car accident. Contemplate the impact of that sickness on your relationship with God. These seemingly unanswered prayers and situations may have been for your good. Rather than succumbing to doubt, contemplate on these questions. Scripture assures us that nothing can separate us from the love of Christ: "For I am persuaded that neither death nor life, nor angels nor principalities nor powers, nor things present nor things to come, nor height nor depth, nor any other created thing, shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Romans 8:38-39).

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Even earthly parents, who love their children deeply, sometimes delay or deny certain requests they know are not beneficial to the children's well-being. Their actions are not indicative of a lack of love but rather a belief that the child may not yet be mature enough to handle what is being asked. It requires genuine love to withhold something that could potentially harm that person. Christ extends the same love toward us as His children. God desires to cultivate maturity within us during seasons of delay before promoting us to a new level. He understands that the experiences we gain during these waiting periods will equip us for the challenges of the next level. Therefore, we should always seek to discern the lessons God intends to teach us through our challenges. It is through learning and successfully passing these tests that we can be promoted.

Possessing the right knowledge and understanding of why God allows certain things to happen to us is crucial for navigating the darkest phases of our life's journey. This is precisely why believers should regularly study the Bible. Within its pages, God reveals the mysteries behind our circumstances. Scripture warns us that a lack of knowledge can lead even God's people to perish (Hosea 4:6), and the purest source of knowledge is the Word of God. We must move beyond perceiving the Bible as a mere historical account of great men and women and recognize it as the inspired Word of God. The Bible is not an ordinary book; it is God's message for our souls. It enriches our minds and imparts God's perspective on all matters. When seeking answers to life's questions, turn to the Bible. As you study the Word, seek God's guidance and pray for understanding. Through this practice, God will open your spiritual eyes to the sacred truths embedded within Scripture.

Embrace Your Role as a Valiant Soldier of Christ

A good soldier is always prepared for battle. To succeed in our spiritual endeavors with the Lord, we must be willing to serve as valiant soldiers of Christ. In order to stand firm amidst the storms of life, we must engage our adversaries with the helmet of salvation and the sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God. It is crucial to recognize that our battle is not physical but spiritual in nature. As it is written, "For we do not wrestle against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this age, against spiritual hosts of wickedness in the heavenly places" (Ephesians 6:12).

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

In the face of trouble, we should strive to devote more time to the things of God. The devil can only be frustrated when he realizes that our commitment to God intensifies in the midst of challenging circumstances. The situations that surround us should draw us closer to God, inspiring us to pray more, read His Word more diligently, and share the Gospel with others. A good soldier is unconcerned with his own life and is not intimidated by any battle. Victory is the only outcome he envisions. Therefore, as believers, when we care less about the magnitude of our circumstances and care more about God's perspective on those situations, we will undoubtedly overcome.

The Scripture advises us saying:

"Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might. Put on the whole armor of God that you may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we do not wrestle against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this age, against spiritual hosts of wickedness in the heavenly places. Therefore, take up the whole armor of God that you may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand. Stand therefore, having girded your waist with truth, having put on the breastplate of righteousness, and having shod your feet with the preparation of the gospel of peace; above all, taking the shield of faith with which you will be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked one. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God; praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, being watchful to this end with all perseverance and supplication for all the saints" (Ephesians 6:10-18).

We should strive to develop a prayer lifestyle. Our time for prayers should not be limited to specific events. While having designated days to spend time with God in prayer is not inherently wrong, we need to cultivate the habit of "spirit prayer," which involves meditating on God's Word as we go about our daily activities. This is the armor we need to protect ourselves from the devil in our workplaces, schools, and offices. We must strive to maintain a constant connection with our Heavenly Father. When our minds are occupied with thoughts centered on God, the devil will find it difficult to corrupt our thoughts with unholy things.

Let us be vigilant and unwavering in our spiritual work with the Lord. Keep the sword of the Spirit close at hand by filling your minds with the Word of God. Our adversaries wait for us to become spiritually dormant. This is why Christ urges us to "pray without ceasing" (1 Thessalonians 5:17). Ask the Holy Spirit to grant you a prayer language, a word to meditate on daily; for spiritual prayers are the most effective tools believers can use to defend themselves in this fallen world.

Qualifying In the Dark Tunnel – Embracing Extraordinary Destinies

Achieving greatness often entails confronting formidable challenges. God beckons His children to exhibit greatness, akin to the Apostles and even Jesus Himself who endured their own trials. These challenges serve as crucibles, refining us for significant tasks ahead. Much like Joseph's journey to prominence in Egypt, our own paths are orchestrated to equip us for the positions appointed by God. While traversing the tunnel may entail temporary anguish and hardship, the glory awaiting us far outweighs it all. Therefore, take heart in the Lord, recognizing that your present circumstances are molding a promising future. As catalysts for positive change in our world, we inevitably draw the opposition of the enemy. Be vigilant, for the devil and his cohorts acknowledge your destiny and strive to thwart your purpose.

To fulfill your destiny, you must be willing to pass through the refining furnace of trials and tribulations. The champions of faith emerge from the darkest tunnels of life. Take comfort in Christ's words, for He assures us of His constant presence and faithfulness. He watches over us day and night, assuring our safety and deliverance. In a world filled with danger, we find salvation and strength in Him. Remember that He has already overcome the world, granting us the ability to overcome obstacles and fulfill our purpose.

Embrace the process of qualification in the dark tunnel, for it is through this journey that we are refined and prepared for extraordinary destinies. Trust in Christ's unwavering presence, and do not be troubled by the challenges you face. With His guidance, you will be saved and empowered to make a lasting impact in the world.

Dependence Solely On God – Finding Strength in His Unfailing Care

In times of burden and despair, we are urged to cast our worries upon the Lord, for He sustains the righteous and ensures their stability (Psalm 55:22). Our heavenly Father desires us to rely solely on Him, even when faced with challenges in our careers, businesses, academics, and marriages. He cares for us more deeply than we can comprehend, and through our complete dependence on Him, God can lift the weight of shame and reproach from our shoulders. Instead of seeking alternative solutions or relying on our own strength, let us find reasons to trust in God's saving grace, embrace and depend on Him.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Often, we encounter situations that push us to recognize the need for reliance on God. There is no problem beyond His ability to solve, and no burden too heavy for Him to carry. Perhaps God allows us to go through challenges to strengthen our dependence on Him. As seen in Paul's letter to the Corinthians, their trials in Asia led them to rely more on God and less on themselves.

"We do not want you to be uninformed, brothers and sisters, about the troubles we experienced in the province of Asia. We were under great pressure, far beyond our ability to endure, so that we despaired of life itself. Indeed, we felt we had received the sentence of death. But this happened that we might not rely on ourselves but on God, who raises the dead." (2 Corinthians 1:8-9)

Our trials are designed to shape and complete us in Christ Jesus, so we need not be disturbed by unpleasant circumstances. Instead, let us find comfort and remain positive, knowing that our significance in the body of Christ is revealed through these experiences.

The enemy recognizes our potential as vessels of blessing and seeks to disrupt God's plans for our lives. We must not allow the enemy to derail us from fulfilling our destiny. Regardless of the magnitude of the tests we face, the love of Christ remains unshakable, and no circumstance can sever our relationship with God. What we require is the right knowledge of God to navigate these situations. With the correct understanding, discomfort transforms into comfort, hardship becomes a source of blessing, misunderstandings lead to understanding, and failure paves the way for success. Our advantage lies in being carriers of Christ's divine nature as believers. Our presence reflects God's presence, and our loved ones experience His protection. The enemy may attempt to harm us, but they cannot succeed. Their intentions to impair us become opportunities for Christ to strengthen our dependence and fortify our confidence in Him.

Dependence solely on God enables us to find strength and solace in His unwavering care. By casting our burdens upon Him and recognizing our reliance on His divine power, we discover the transformative nature of our relationship with God. Challenges become stepping stones toward growth and deeper trust. Embrace a life of dependence on God, knowing that He will sustain us and guide us through every trial we face.

Blessing God in Difficult Times – A Path of Maturity and Faith

In the face of adversaries, it is important to bless God and find victory through rejoicing in Him. Honoring God during pain and hardship not only brings glory to His name but also invites His favor and blessings. True maturity in faith requires us to offer thanks and praise to God, not only when things are going well, but especially when faced with difficult situations. By cultivating a habit of gratitude in both good and hard times, we demonstrate our trust in God's sovereignty and invite His miracles into our lives.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Rather than succumbing to despair, we should respond to negative reports or setbacks with words of faith and thanksgiving. When confronted with a challenging diagnosis, we can declare healing based on God's promises. Similarly, when faced with rejections or disappointments, we can bless the name of the Lord and acknowledge His better plan for our lives. Glorifying God in the midst of challenges communicates our unwavering trust in Him and positions us for greater miracles.

Regardless of the outcome, we are called to glorify God in both good and hard times. By doing so, we acknowledge Him as our greatest Friend and recognize that our relationship with Him transcends mere benefits. King David serves as a profound example of praising God even in difficult times. Despite moments of inner turmoil, David understood the importance of offering sacrifices of joy and singing praises to the Lord. His actions exemplify a heart after God's own, which earned him this commendation.

God is not concerned with our past sins if we have sought His forgiveness, for Jesus Christ has paid the price for our redemption. He desires us to believe in His limitless power and trust in His roles as Jehovah Rapha (the Healer), Jehovah Jireh (the Provider), and Jehovah Shalom (the Giver of peace). Running to Him in times of trouble brings safety, and His faithfulness ensures that the righteous are never forsaken. In times of hardship, we are encouraged to approach Him with a grateful heart, knowing that He is always ready to see us through.

Expressing gratitude to God during challenging times serves as evidence of our spiritual growth and unwavering faith. When we choose to rejoice in Him despite our circumstances, we not only glorify His name but also position ourselves to receive His blessings and favor. Opting to offer thanks and praise in both favorable and difficult circumstances showcases our steadfast confidence in His authority. As we progress through the upcoming chapters, we will delve deeper into subjects such as prayer, reliance on God, His boundless love, and the importance of honoring Him amidst life's trials.

SUMMARY

Chapter one emphasizes on the universal nature of hardships and challenges, debunking the misconception that believers are exempt from difficult times. Drawing upon biblical references, the chapter explores the origins of hardship, highlighting how mankind's rebellion against God led to suffering and the dominion of darkness. However, it also emphasizes the redemptive work of Jesus Christ, who sacrificed Himself to restore the connection between God and humanity.

It delves into the ongoing spiritual battle between the forces of darkness and the Kingdom of light, emphasizing the need for believers to be prepared for opposition and trials. Stresses that hard times do not discriminate based on faith, but through faith in Christ, believers can navigate and overcome any obstacle. The presence of God during hardships is emphasized, reminding readers that He fights on their behalf and can turn destructive situations into opportunities for growth.

Additionally, it encourages readers not to doubt God's love and to refrain from being deceived by the adversary's lies. Discusses the purpose behind challenging circumstances, suggesting that they may be part of God's plan to prepare individuals for greater blessings and impact in the world. The importance of defending one's faith and embracing the role of a valiant soldier of Christ is also highlighted, urging readers to stand firm and not be ashamed of the Gospel.

The chapter concludes with a reminder to never doubt God's love based on present circumstances, emphasizing the need to seek understanding through the study of Scripture. Encourages readers to embrace the challenges they face, viewing them as opportunities for growth and promotion. By maintaining a constant connection with God through prayer and immersing themselves in His Word, readers can qualify for extraordinary destinies and fulfill their God-given potential.

Vital Principles

- Difficult situations are inevitable in this world, as hardship does not discriminate.
- God's original plan for mankind was a life of peace and happiness without sin, tribulation, and hardship.
- Despite Christ's death and redemption mission, Satan's rulership over the world continues for those who have not accepted Jesus as their personal Lord and Savior.
- Through Christ's death, the barrier of man's sinful nature was broken, granting access to our Heavenly Father.
- Christ's purpose on earth was to restore mankind's relationship and fellowship with God, not to establish a religious group.
- If you represent the Kingdom of light and seek to make a difference in this world, you must be prepared to face opposition from the kingdom of darkness.
- Extraordinary accomplishments are achieved in the face of extraordinary challenges, and God desires us to manifest the extraordinary.
- God often reveals His mighty power in situations the devil intends to use to destroy or disgrace us.
- Understanding the spiritual realm and what God is doing on our behalf should evoke gratitude toward our Heavenly Father.
- Regardless of the challenges the world presents, Christ has already borne them on the cross of Calvary.
- The gospel of grace spread throughout the world due to the sacrifice of Christian martyrs.
- Everything that Christ allows to happen in our lives serves a good purpose, including situations that may seem unfavorable at the time.
- Genuine love sometimes requires denying someone something that could harm them.
- We should pay attention to the lessons God is teaching us through our challenges, as they serve as opportunities for growth and promotion.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

- Having the right knowledge and understanding of why God allows certain things to happen can help us successfully navigate even the darkest periods of our lives.
- The devil becomes frustrated when he realizes that our situation is the more reason of our commitment to God.
- When we prioritize God's opinion of our situation over its perceived magnitude, we will overcome.
- God has called us to make a positive difference in our world, which is why the devil opposes us.
- The trials we face are intended to make us complete and perfect in Christ Jesus.
- Victory comes easily when the devil sees us rejoicing in the Lord despite our pain.
- Our fellowship with God should not be based on convenience but should be a constant attitude of praise, even in times of inconvenience.
- True worshippers demonstrate their sonship by blessing God when things are not going well.

CHAPTER TWO

Overcoming Intimidation with Courage

Fear Kills Quicker Than the Mountain of Terror

Fear possesses the ability to immobilize us more rapidly than the towering mountain of dread looming ahead. Despite the daunting nature of your present obstacle, the scriptures implore you to exhibit bravery and reject the grip of fear. Don't let the enormity of your challenges intimidate you, for the Bible advises us to stand boldly in the redemptive power of Christ Jesus. Keep in mind that our God will always remain with you and never desert you. Deuteronomy 31:6 affirms, "Be strong and of good courage, do not fear or be in dread of them: for it is the Lord your God who goes with you; he will not forsake you."

Regardless of the size of the obstacle you face, victory can be attained through faith in the Lord. When you place your faith in the saving grace of Christ, He empowers you to overcome. As men and women of faith, we must refrain from panicking and instead speak words of faith into any difficult situation we encounter. It is not the giant itself that poses the greatest danger, but rather the fear instilled by that giant. Do not allow your situation to intimidate you, for our God is greater than any trouble. Through the mention of His name, every mountain crumbles, and every authority submits in obedience. The Word of the Lord resonates with you in this moment: "Have I not commanded you? Be strong and of good courage; be not frightened, neither be dismayed; for the Lord your God is with you wherever you go" (Joshua 1:9).

Those who remain steadfast in their faith in Christ Jesus during times of distress will never be forsaken. God does not deceive, and He will not disappoint those who place their trust in Him. What we must do is believe and stand firmly in His saving grace. You should not allow external circumstances to sway your belief or intimidate you; rather, let the word of God be your guiding force. Just as David's faith-filled confession brought him victory over Goliath, the words you confess in the face of your situation can determine your own triumph. Always proclaim God's victory in the presence of your own Goliath. David experienced it, and if you follow his example, yours will also crumble in the name of Jesus.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

When confronted by Goliath, David did not allow the outward display of strength to intimidate him. Instead, he placed his confidence in the authority of God that resided within him. David recognized that Goliath's weapon was fear and intimidation, and he refused to succumb to it. Unlike the other Israelite soldiers who feared Goliath's imposing stature (1 Samuel 17:24), David remained undeterred. Even when others tried to dissuade him from facing Goliath, David was resolute and prepared to lay down his life for what he believed in.

Do you easily become discouraged due to criticism? Remember, you do not need the approval of others to ascertain whether you are aligned with God's will. Regardless of whether those around you believe in you or not, their opinions hold little significance. What matters most is what you believe about yourself. Instead of succumbing to doubt and discouragement from others, turn to the word of God, which affirms, "You can do all things through Christ who strengthens you."

The Scriptures reveal that no one, including King Saul, could prevent David from facing Goliath. David possessed an unwavering determination and confidence in the God he served, fully believing that God would deliver him from the hands of the Philistine (1 Samuel 17:32-37). When the battle line was drawn between David and Goliath, David spoke forth words of faith from his heart. He released the belief within him through his confession of faith. Follow David's example and speak your beliefs into your problems, just as David did with Goliath. Are you not a person of faith? Act upon your beliefs and witness the mountain give way. God can only act through your faith. "Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen" (Hebrews 11:1). Faith relies on the unfinished work of Christ and makes the impossible possible. Faith does not wait for the outcome; it firmly believes that God has already accomplished it. It was David's faith-filled confession that made him an overcomer.

Consider David's words to Goliath:

"Then David said to the Philistine, 'You come to me with a sword and with a spear and with a javelin, but I come to you in the name of the LORD of hosts, the

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

God of the armies of Israel, whom you have defied. This day the LORD will deliver you into my hand, and I will strike you down, and cut off your head; and I will give the dead bodies of the host of the Philistines this day to the birds of the air and to the wild beasts of the earth, that all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel, and that all this assembly may know that the LORD saves not with sword and spear. For the battle is the LORD's, and he will give you into our hand" (1 Samuel 17:45-47).

It was evident that Goliath possessed superior strength and skill in physical combat compared to David. In addition to his formidable size, Goliath was equipped with sophisticated weapons of war, while David was armed simply with a sling. However, David confessed victory and emerged triumphant. He declared what he believed—that the name of his God would deliver him from the hands of the Philistines. If David had not spoken those words of faith, who knows what fate would have befallen him. Perhaps he would have perished, and his story would have been lost to history. But that was not the case because David unwaveringly believed in the God he served.

As a believer, what kind of confession do you make when faced with challenges? Do you confess defeat or victory? Do you confess failure or success? Do you confess sickness or good health? Do you possess the confidence that Christ will deliver you? The word of God instructs you to vocalize the words of faith that reside in your heart. Make a positive faith confession concerning your situation and witness the actions of God. Faith is all you need to move that mountain. Faith is all you need to activate God's intervention on your behalf.

Jesus proclaimed, "Because of your little faith. For truly, I say to you, if you have faith as a grain of mustard seed, you will say to this mountain, 'Move from here to there,' and it will move, and nothing will be impossible for you" (Matthew 17:20). Through Christ, everything becomes possible. All you need is faith in Him. Courageously face every situation instead of being intimidated by it. Speak the Word of Faith and witness God elevate you from a position of obscurity to one of favor. Speak the Word of Faith, and observe how your Goliath crumbles.

Fear: The Weapon of the Enemy

The devil understands that he cannot kill or destroy you unless God permits it. Therefore, he utilizes the weapon of fear and insecurity to undermine your faith. He desires to make you believe that God cannot help you and that you are alone in your problems. But why would your Heavenly Father remain silent, watching to see if you succumb to the devil's tricks?

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

The scripture states, "The fear of man brings a snare, but whoever trusts in the Lord shall be safe" (Proverbs 29:25). Fear is a deceitful tactic of the devil; it should not dominate your life. You must recognize that no unfavorable circumstances can harm you. Are you feeling distressed due to a court case? That is precisely what the devil wants—to plunge you into depression and raise your blood pressure. He knows that you have no case to answer and that the outcome will ultimately be in your favor. His aim is for you to become ill and live in sorrow until the court case concludes. Instead of succumbing to despair, why not choose to smile, visit the gym, eat nutritious food, and maintain good health, thereby disappointing the devil? This is why you should not allow your environment to shape your beliefs, except for the influence of the Spirit of God.

Let the Spirit of God be your primary influencer. The natural inclination of humanity is to let our environment—what we see, touch, hear, smell, and taste—dictate and shape our beliefs. Consequently, we easily yield to the pains and hardships we encounter. However, a person of faith endures persecution and suffering because their beliefs are not dictated by the environment but by the prevailing words of faith in their hearts. They fix their gaze on the abundant blessings that will be revealed through difficult circumstances, rather than being swayed by external appearances. We are called to live an extraordinary life because we are designed to do extraordinary things. The ordinary is controlled by the flesh, while the extraordinary is directed by the spirit, which surpasses human understanding. That is why, when God wants to heal you, He does not need to adhere to the methods of medical science; He simply heals you. When God desires to elevate you to a place of honor, He does not consider your family background or educational qualifications; He simply exalts you.

The Bible teaches us:

"For those who live according to the flesh set their minds on the things of the flesh, but those who live according to the Spirit set their minds on the things of the Spirit. For to set the mind on the flesh is death, but to set the mind on the Spirit is life and peace. For the mind that is set on the flesh is hostile to God, for it does not submit to God's law; indeed, it cannot. Those who are in the flesh cannot please God. You, however, are not in the flesh but in the Spirit, if in fact the Spirit of God dwells in you. Anyone who does not have the Spirit of Christ does not belong to him" (Romans 8:5-9).

Let the things of the Spirit be our sole influence. A true born-again Christian who comprehends the Word of God can smile and laugh in the face of tribulations and persecutions. Others observing this person will be surprised and curious about the source of their joy, even when their surroundings call for tears and self-pity. The reason behind their contentment is that they have not surrendered to the demands of the flesh but have submitted themselves to the Spirit of God, which brings peace of mind amidst tribulations. My spiritual mentor always says that "the easiest way to defeat the devil is to laugh when he expects you to cry." In other words, when Satan orchestrates circumstances that should bring you to your knees, but instead you choose to live in happiness and well-being, the devil will be disappointed.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

As believers, we need to embrace an extraordinary life, for we were created by an extraordinary God. God does not desire our human nature and environment to dictate our beliefs. He wants His Word to dominate our hearts and serve as the wellspring of our inspiration. When the words of Christ dominate your heart, your perspective and speech will differ from those around you. While others may see failure, you will declare success. While others may perceive defeat, you will proclaim victory. And when others encounter setbacks, you will speak of breakthroughs. As these positive confessions continually flow from your heart, the gates of heaven will swing wide open whenever you approach God's presence to present your petitions before Him.

If you constantly live in fear, the enemy will gain a foothold in your life. Do not be swayed by the physical appearance or the multitude of your adversaries. Though they may appear numerous, remember that "one with God is a majority." Your ability to overcome your enemies lies within you. It is the power of God's Word deposited within you that will grant you victory.

The Scripture declares:

"You are of God, little children, and have overcome them, because He who is in you is greater than he who is in the world" (1 John 4:4).

"For God has not given us a spirit of fear, but of power and of love and of a sound mind" (2 Timothy 1:7).

The One residing within us is mightier than any adversary, as long as we reach out to Him in faith. God has bestowed His authority upon us through the name of Jesus. The Scripture affirms that at the mention of the name of Jesus, every knee shall bow and every tongue confess. This is the authority we possess in Christ Jesus. When you have faith in the power of that name, Jesus, every obstacle will be leveled, and every hindrance will be removed. If you feel insecure due to the numerous threats from your enemies, remember what Christ declared to the Church: even though the world may become a difficult place to dwell in, we should not be disturbed or panic because He has already overcome the world. Always bear in mind that God is watching over you day and night.

Defying Fear: Lessons from Joshua and Caleb's Courageous Stand

We have much to learn from the account of the twelve Hebrew spies sent by Moses to survey the land of Canaan—the land God had promised to their forefather, Abraham. After God assured the Israelites of victory over the indigenous Canaanites who inhabited the land at that time, Moses instructed twelve spies to covertly explore the land and report back on its inhabitants, its fertile soil, and its abundant resources. However, ten of the spies returned with a disheartening report: "And they told him, 'We came to the land to which you sent us; it flows with milk and honey, and this is its fruit. However, the people who dwell in the land are strong, and the cities are fortified and very large; and besides, we saw the descendants of Anak there'" (Numbers 13:27-28).

The ten spies who provided a discouraging report based their conclusions on external fear. They allowed the physical appearance and strength of the inhabitants to intimidate them, disregarding the promise of victory God had made to them. On the other hand, Joshua and Caleb did not align themselves with the majority. The way of the majority is not always God's way. Joshua and Caleb's report was founded upon their internal confidence in God's promised triumph over the Canaanites. Consequently, they dismissed the negative report presented by the other ten spies. "But Caleb quieted the people before Moses and said, 'Let us go up at once and occupy it, for we are well able to overcome it'" (Numbers 13:30).

Joshua and Caleb exhibited faith in the face of intimidation. Even the negative report from the majority could not deter them from voicing their beliefs. They were men of great courage. The fortified cities and giants they saw in the land appeared insignificant to them because they recognized that their God was mightier than any multitude of giants. They possessed fearlessness and readiness to invade the land and conquer its inhabitants. They had unwavering confidence in God, firmly believing that victory was assured.

What is the giant in your life that seems insurmountable? Hear what God is promising you at this very moment: He will defend you. He will guide you to victory if only you will be bold enough to call upon His name in the face of that giant. There is no difficulty that God cannot bring under His control. He has promised to protect those who seek refuge in Him. Do not be swayed by the opinions of the majority; they are there to discourage you. Although they may appear well-meaning from the outside, always remember that God does not perceive as the world does. What should matter to you is God's promise for your life.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Even when confronted by others, Joshua and Caleb did not allow their beliefs to be swayed by the opinions of the majority. They refused to be silenced and continued to advocate for the Israelites to place their trust in God's promises rather than the negative report of the ten spies. Nevertheless, the people did not believe them; they followed the majority's report and even sought to stone Joshua and Caleb. "If the LORD delights in us, He will bring us into this land and give it to us, a land that flows with milk and honey. Only do not rebel against the LORD, nor fear the people of the land, for they are our bread; their protection has departed from them, and the LORD is with us. Do not fear them." But all the congregation said to stone them with stones (Numbers 14:8-10).

Imagine the type of confrontation Joshua and Caleb faced. It was only the two of them against an entire nation. Consider the challenges they must have endured while trying to convince the Israelites not to heed the report of the ten spies. Ponder their emotions as the people attempted to stone them for speaking God's truth. They were likely subjected to verbal abuse and called liars, yet Joshua and Caleb clung to their belief in God's promises.

The path of the majority often leads to destruction. The Israelite community was led astray by the majority's report, rather than heeding the encouraging report from the minority, which reminded them of God's competence and saving grace. As a result, the entire congregation that rebelled against God through their unbelief was denied entry into the Promised Land of Canaan. The ten spies who brought the negative report, along with the rest of their generation, perished in a plague. Only Joshua and Caleb were permitted by God to enter the Promised Land.

What can we, as believers, learn from the story of Joshua and Caleb? The rewards we receive from God are commensurate with the measure of our faith. Victory belongs to those who believe that Jesus is their Redeemer. If you believe that Jesus can save you, you will be saved. If you believe that your God is a deliverer, you will be delivered. And if you believe that your God is a promise-keeper, He will fulfill His promises in your life. Conversely, if you believe that God cannot save, deliver, redeem, or fulfill His promises in your life, your problems will persist and potentially consume you. God's promises should determine the direction of your focus, not your circumstances. The ten spies allowed their focus to be distorted by the physical appearance of the giants and fortified cities, leading them to conclude that the Israelites were incapable of taking possession of the land. But Joshua and Caleb, through faith, chose to focus on God's promises and the fulfillment of His Word.

Beloved, do not be moved by fear or intimidated by the challenges before you. God has given you His Word, which is a firm foundation upon which to stand. No matter the circumstances, remain steadfast in your faith. Be like Joshua and Caleb, who refused to align themselves with the majority's negative report. Instead, they held firm to their beliefs and were rewarded to enter the promise land.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Remember, fear is a weapon of the enemy. Satan will use fear to undermine your faith and separate you from the promises of God. But if you choose to trust in the Lord, you will find safety and peace. Do not allow fear to dominate your life; instead, let the Spirit of God be your primary influencer. Fix your gaze on the abundant blessings that will be revealed through difficult circumstances, and declare victory even in the face of opposition. Choose an extraordinary life, led by the Spirit, and let your beliefs be dictated by the prevailing words of faith in your heart.

In conclusion, as the scripture says, "For God has not given us a spirit of fear, but of power and of love and of a sound mind" (2 Timothy 1:7). Embrace the power, love, and sound mind that God has given you. Stand firm in faith, trust in His promises, and walk boldly in His victory. The devil may try to instill fear, but remember that you have the authority of Christ within you, and He who is in you is greater than he who is in the world.

SUMMARY

Chapter Two focuses on overcoming intimidation with courage. It highlights the power of fear and how it can paralyze individuals more swiftly than any daunting challenge they may face. The chapter encourages readers to be courageous and not succumb to fear, reminding them that God will never abandon or forsake them.

It emphasizes that victory can be attained through faith in the saving grace of Christ. By urging readers to speak words of faith into difficult situations instead of panicking. It also emphasized that the fear instilled by a challenge is more dangerous than the challenge itself. Readers are encouraged to trust in God's power, for through His name, every obstacle can crumble.

The example of David facing Goliath to illustrate the importance of unwavering faith. David did not allow Goliath's intimidating appearance to deter him. Instead, he placed his confidence in God's authority and refused to succumb to fear. The chapter emphasizes the significance of personal belief over the opinions of others and highlights the importance of making positive faith confessions.

It further addresses the role of fear as a weapon used by the enemy. The devil utilizes fear and insecurity to undermine faith, making individuals doubt God's ability to help them. However, readers are encouraged to trust in the Lord and reject fear's influence. The chapter emphasizes that the Spirit of God should be the primary influencer in one's life, rather than external circumstances.

Readers are reminded that they are called to live an extraordinary life and that their beliefs should be shaped by the words of faith in their hearts, not by the environment or physical appearances. The chapter encourages believers to embrace an extraordinary life and not be swayed by fear or the multitude of adversaries they may face. It emphasizes that the One residing within believers is greater than any adversary and that they possess the authority of Christ.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

The chapter concludes by drawing lessons from the account of the twelve Hebrew spies sent to survey the land of Canaan. It highlights the importance of faith in the face of intimidation, using the example of Joshua and Caleb who exhibited unwavering confidence in God's promise of victory. Readers are encouraged to trust in God's protection and seek refuge in Him, regardless of the giants they may face in life.

VITAL PRINCIPLES

- Be bold to speak the victory God had promised you to that obstacle
- Learn to always speak the words of Faith to any difficult situation that comes our way.
- That giant cannot easily kill you, but the fear of the giant can kill quickly.
- You should not allow what you see and hear to influence your belief or intimidate you, but only the word of God.
- Don't allow your enemy to intimidate you with outward appearance, for your God is bigger than a multitude of giants
- Our situation cannot kill us, but the fear of them can
- You don't need to rely on others approval. You don't need the approval of others to know if you are right with whatever God lays in your heart to do.
- “Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.” (Hebrews 11:1) “Faith believes on the unfinished work of Christ.”
- Faith makes the impossible possible. Faith does not wait to see the outcome; it believes God has done it already.
- The devil knows he cannot kill or destroy you if God did not allow it. Therefore, he uses the weapon of fear and the feeling of insecurity to disturb your faith.
- We are to always act and think in the extraordinary because we are designed to do extraordinary things.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

- The ordinary is controlled by the flesh, but the extraordinary is controlled by the spirit and the spirit looks beyond human comprehension to act.
- They may be outwardly much in numbers, but “one with God is a majority”.
- Our ability to conquer our enemies is on the inside. It is the power in God's word deposited inside of you that will give you victory.
- Have confidence in God's promises, there lies the victory
- What you confess in the faces of your situation can determine if you will be victorious.
- The way of the majority is not always the way of God.
- The reward you received from God is based on the measure of your belief. Victory belongs to them that believe Jesus is their Redeemer.
- God's promise should determine the course of your focus, not your situation.

CHAPTER THREE

Persistence and Resilience

Perseverance in the Face of Adversity

The pursuit of my MSc degree in Germany posed considerable hurdles during my initial application in 2015. Despite facing rejection from all seven universities to which I applied, I remained undeterred. Entrusting the outcome to God, I sought His guidance and resolved to persevere. Patiently awaiting the next winter semester, I was eventually granted admission to two universities, enabling me to pursue a Masters in Economics. Even after gaining admission, I encountered challenges with my studies, resulting in a study duration of 5 years instead of the initial 2 to 3 years as per the university semester timetable. Nevertheless, to the glory of God, I successfully completed my studies because I never lost focus or allowed setbacks to lead me to give up and abandon my dream of obtaining an MSC degree in Economics.

Often, when faced with failure in our initial endeavors, we're tempted to abandon our goals. However, life doesn't always align with our aspirations, and we may encounter significant obstacles. Yet, by seeking God's guidance and remaining resolute in the face of setbacks, we pave the way for eventual success. As believers, it's essential to master the art of patiently awaiting God's timing, prioritizing it above our own desires. God observes our perseverance and courage amid life's trials, as well as our steadfast trust in His promises despite setbacks. Such patient endurance brings Him delight and sets the stage for His glory to shine in our lives. Patience and faith in God don't condone failure; rather, they demonstrate our unwavering belief in God's supremacy over any setback. When the right time arrives, nothing can obstruct our success. God's timing is always impeccable, granting us peace of mind and shielding us from disgrace. Even amidst challenges, God can bring forth blessings.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Recognizing Your Identity as More Than a Conqueror

We must realize that as believers, we are more than conquerors due to the love bestowed upon us by Christ. While others may succumb to their trials, we are empowered by the indwelling love of God, enabling us to persevere. Our challenges merely serve to refine and prepare us for greater service to God and humanity. Therefore, we should rejoice in our tribulations, understanding that God allows them to pave the way for us to walk in His glory. The delays we experience are part of God's plan to equip us for higher positions and responsibilities. They grant us the necessary experience and fortitude to fulfill our purpose with excellence. As we ascend in life, our responsibilities increase, accompanied by greater challenges. Embracing both positive and negative experiences enables us to learn and grow. As believers, we must acknowledge that God employs our current hardships as training grounds, preparing us for a higher calling. If He did not see failure as beneficial, He would not permit us to undergo setbacks and disappointments. God knows that failure can lead to better opportunities and positions aligned with His plans for us.

Following the Footsteps of Faithful Believers

When God revealed Joseph's great destiny through his dreams, He did not immediately bring it to fruition. Instead, Joseph was led through a series of significant stages in his life. Despite the difficulties he encountered, these stages were essential for his preparation and advancement toward the future God had promised him. From the dry pit to slavery, from Potiphar's house to imprisonment, Joseph's journey ultimately led him to become the prime minister of Egypt. Each stage imparted invaluable life lessons and equipped him with the necessary experience to become a remarkable leader. Joseph did not have the privilege of attending a leadership school or university; instead, God's orchestrated challenges molded him into a great leader. His trials were stepping stones to his ordained position.

Throughout his tribulations, Joseph never lost sight of the dreams God had revealed to him. He knew that, in God's perfect timing, those dreams would come to pass.

If you are prone to giving up when faced with difficult situations, learn from Joseph's experiences. Emulate the faithfulness of past heroes who, through faith and patience, inherited God's promises. Scripture urges us to follow their example: "We desire each of you to show the same earnestness to have the full assurance of hope until the end so that you may not be sluggish but imitators of those who through faith and patience inherit the promises" (Hebrews 6:11-12). If you encounter pain and ridicule, remember that even Christ Himself was subjected to negative names and immense tribulations during His earthly life. Understand that valuable achievements do not come easily. If they did, the world would already be a paradise. Therefore, do not succumb to challenges; instead, maintain faith in God and persevere in your goals. Whatever you are currently facing, remember that someone else has already experienced it. Sickness, barrenness, financial lack, broken homes, career setbacks, and more—others have walked the same path and emerged stronger. The same God who intervened in the lives of Abraham, Joseph, David, Moses, Rebecca, Esther, and countless others stands ready to grant you victory. He beckons on you to rise and shine, for His light is upon you (Isaiah 60:1).

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Trials and Faith: Enduring For a Greater Purpose

Do not let your trials erode your faith, for you will overcome and emerge stronger. As a minister of the gospel seeking to operate in a higher dimension within God's kingdom, be prepared to face greater persecution and challenges. Hard times serve as fertile ground for God's grace to flourish in our lives. If your destiny entails occupying a higher leadership position, the dream's authenticity will subject you to the same tests of faith that Joseph endured. As someone who involves God in your dreams, be prepared for opposition from the forces of darkness. Satan recognizes that you do not belong to his kingdom, and he will attempt to hinder your progress. However, if you wait upon the Lord, your strength will be renewed. You will soar on wings like eagles, run without growing weary, and walk without fainting (Isaiah 40:31).

Consider following the example of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. He did not allow the pain and suffering He endured on the cross to deter Him from His mission. Enduring humiliation and agony, He secured humanity's liberty. If Christ had given up, we would not experience the present era of grace and the salvation we enjoy today. His focus remained unwavering, understanding that the freedom, deliverance, and glory arising from His crucifixion far outweighed the temporary pain. In patience and humility, God the Son endured all hardships. We, as believers, should strive to emulate Him.

God's Love and Purpose in Trials

God loves us too much to allow us to be lost to the kingdom of darkness.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

He utilizes the trials we face from our enemies to keep us close to Him. He desires to prevent us from making errors as we pursue our life's purpose, urging us to depend solely on Him. Embrace your trials, viewing them as blessings and sources of joy. Recall that Scripture instructs us to consider it pure joy when we face trials, knowing that the testing of our faith produces steadfastness. As we allow steadfastness to take root, we become mature and complete, lacking nothing (James 1:2-4).

Realize that the pain you endure holds significant spiritual benefits. Regardless of the duration, trust that God will see you through. Patience, perseverance, endurance, and faith are the instruments of a visionary person. Take these tools along as you navigate the darkest tunnels of life. Coupled with constant prayer, they will guide you toward your destination. Have confidence in the saving grace found in Christ Jesus. When you have prayed and hoped for a miracle, be patient and allow God to answer in His perfect timing, for His timing is always the best. Your ability to patiently endure and wait on God in the face of calamity demonstrates your confidence in Him. God does not disappoint those who trust in Him; He will manifest His power mightily in your situation when the time is right.

Impatience and Disbelief: Hindrances to God's Promises

Impatience and disbelief can significantly hinder the fulfillment of God's promises in our lives. When we set deadlines for God to intervene in our situations, we risk weakening our faith if the desired outcome doesn't materialize within our specified timeframe. We must remember that God cannot be programmed or controlled according to our schedules. Instead, we need to cultivate patience and trust in Him. Impatience often stems from a lack of confidence in God, and it can impede the blessings we seek from Him. Even in the face of seemingly hopeless circumstances, our unwavering faith in Jesus as our Savior, Redeemer, and Healer should anchor us. We must develop the necessary faith to patiently await the fulfillment of God's promises in our lives.

The Lessons from the Israelites: Consequences of Unbelief

A powerful illustration of the consequences of impatience and disbelief can be found in the story of the Israelites. When Moses sent spies to explore the Promised Land, the majority of them returned with negative reports, causing the people to lose confidence in God's promise. As a result, they spent forty years wandering in the wilderness instead of reaching their destination in a mere forty days. Their lack of belief and trust in God's word led to severe consequences and delayed their entry into the Promised Land.

Moreover, impatience plagued the Israelites during Moses' prolonged absence on Mount Sinai. Feeling restless and uncertain, they gathered their gold to fashion a golden calf, seeking a tangible object of worship. God was deeply displeased with their actions and intended to unleash His wrath upon them. However, Moses interceded on their behalf, highlighting the destructive consequences of impatience and turning away from God's commandments.

Impatience and the Pursuit of Quick Solutions

Impatience often drives people to engage in negative activities and pursue quick success before its appointed time. This phenomenon is especially prevalent among some youths today who are eager to accumulate wealth rapidly. Rather than trusting in the dividends of hard work and perseverance, they believe that fraud and crime are the easiest paths to riches. However, these shortcuts often lead to emptiness and dire consequences. For those involved in such acts, Christ calls for a change in behavior. Though they may be living luxuriously now, they must remember that every action—good or evil—carries consequences. Repentance and seeking God's mercy are essential, for only Christ can save and redeem them from the path of destruction.

Forgetting God's Faithfulness

Impatience not only leads to hasty actions but also causes individuals to forget God's past faithfulness. The Israelites quickly forgot how God had delivered them from slavery in Egypt by parting the Red Sea. In their impatience, they doubted whether the same God who had rescued them before could do it again. This attitude prevails even today, as people often seek alternative solutions or turn to other gods when they perceive delays in their prayers being answered. They forget the countless times God has protected and provided for them throughout their lives. Reflecting on one's journey from birth until now and considering how God has guided and sustained them should rekindle faith and trust in His power to see them through their current challenges.

Faith in God's ability to save, bless, and heal is what makes us overcomers. Even if the answers to our prayers are delayed, a strong faith allows us to remain confident in God's saving grace. On the other hand, a lack of faith can make us easily give up when faced with difficulties, leading to a sense of being overwhelmed and seeking shortcuts out of our predicaments. This vulnerability opens the door for false prophets and pastors who take advantage of people's desperation for quick miracles. It is crucial to avoid falling victim to their schemes. Instead, we should strengthen our faith and rely solely on Christ for salvation and redemption.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

When we are tempted to seek quick fixes or solutions outside of God's plan, we must remember that the devil often gives with one hand and takes with the other. Nothing the devil offers comes without strings attached. In contrast, God's gifts are freely given, without any sorrow or regret. As the Scripture affirms, "For the gifts and calling of God are without repentance" (Romans 11:29). Whatever God blesses us with, whether we use it to serve Him or not, He will not take it back. He bestows blessings that enrich our lives and bring glory to His name.

Waiting For the Fruit of the Womb: The Test of Infertility

One of the greatest trials of patience and faith is the battle with infertility. This deeply intimate and often extended ordeal may bring ridicule and condemnation from others. Nevertheless, those who persevere in their trust in Christ Jesus will ultimately triumph.

The Scripture offers words of encouragement for those waiting upon the Lord: "If you can wait upon the LORD, He shall renew your strength; you shall mount up with wings as eagles; you shall run, and not be weary; and you shall walk, and not faint" (Isaiah 40:31).

Learning From Abraham and Sarah's Example

Abraham and Sarah's story serves as a powerful lesson in faith and perseverance. Despite enduring ridicule and slander due to their barrenness, they never allowed the thought of not having a child to shake their hope in God's promises. They held onto their faith, knowing that God was aware of their childlessness and that He would fulfill His promises in His perfect timing. Abraham's unwavering faith prompted him to draw closer to God, and he was richly blessed. In their old age, God miraculously opened Sarah's womb, and she conceived and gave birth to Isaac. The Scripture highlights Sarah's faith, stating, "By faith Sarah herself received power to conceive, even when she was past the age, since she considered him faithful who had promised" (Hebrews 11:11). Just as God surprised Sarah in her old age with a child, He remains the same today—unchanging in His faithfulness. Therefore, we must cling to our faith in Christ Jesus, trusting that He will answer our prayers according to His perfect timing.

In conclusion, we should always know that impatience and disbelief can hinder the fulfillment of God's promises in our lives. The experiences of the Israelites and the challenges faced by individuals seeking quick solutions serve as reminders of the destructive consequences of impatience. It is essential to cultivate unwavering faith, remembering God's past faithfulness and trusting in His ability to save, bless, and heal us. We must resist the temptation to seek shortcuts or solutions outside of God's plan. Instead, we should wait patiently, holding onto our faith in Christ Jesus, knowing that His timing is always perfect. The test of infertility serves as a profound example of patiently waiting upon the Lord. Learning from Abraham and Sarah's unwavering faith, we can find encouragement to persevere and trust that God will fulfill His promises in due time. May we all cultivate a deep and abiding faith that empowers us to overcome impatience and disbelief, trusting in God's faithfulness and sovereignty. Amen!

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

SUMMARY

The chapter begins with the author's personal experience of pursuing a master's degree in Germany. Despite facing rejection from all seven universities initially, the author refused to give up and entrusted the outcome to God. Eventually, the author was granted admission to two universities and was able to pursue an MSc in Economics.

The chapter emphasizes the importance of not giving up on goals after experiencing failure. It highlights that life doesn't always go according to our desires and that we may encounter formidable obstacles. However, seeking God's guidance, remaining steadfast, and patiently waiting for His timing can lead to success. The chapter stresses the significance of learning to wait patiently for God's timing, placing it above our own desires.

It encourages believers to recognize their identity as more than conquerors through the love bestowed upon them by Christ. Challenges and trials are seen as opportunities for refinement and preparation for greater service to God and humanity. The chapter emphasizes the need to rejoice in tribulations, understanding that they pave the way for walking in God's glory.

The chapter then presents the example of Joseph, whose journey from adversity to becoming the prime minister of Egypt showcases the importance of perseverance and faith in God's promises. It urges readers to emulate the faithfulness of past heroes and be imitators of those who through faith and patience inherit the promises.

Furthermore, the chapter discusses the endurance and faith exhibited by Jesus Christ in fulfilling His mission despite pain and suffering. It encourages believers to follow His example and not allow trials to erode their faith, as they will overcome and emerge stronger.

The chapter highlights that trials and challenges are part of God's plan to equip individuals for higher positions and responsibilities. It emphasizes the need to have faith in God's timing and to trust in His power over setbacks.

Impatience and disbelief are identified as hindrances to the fulfillment of

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

God's promises. The consequences of impatience and unbelief are illustrated through the story of the Israelites' journey in the wilderness and their doubts about God's promise of the Promised Land.

The chapter warns against pursuing quick solutions and engaging in negative activities driven by impatience. It calls for a change in behavior and a reliance on God's plan rather than seeking shortcuts.

The importance of remembering God's past faithfulness and not forgetting His power to save and provide is emphasized. It encourages believers to have a strong faith that allows them to overcome challenges and not easily give up.

The chapter concludes with a focus on the test of infertility as a profound challenge that requires patience and faith. The example of Abraham and Sarah serves as an encouragement to hold onto faith and trust that God will fulfill His promises in His perfect timing.

Generally, the chapter emphasizes the importance of patience, perseverance, and faith in God's promises, even in the face of challenges and setbacks. It encourages believers to rely on God, learn from past examples of faithfulness, and trust in His timing and sovereignty.

VITAL PRINCIPLES

- In our pursuit of life's goals, it is imperative to prioritize God's timing above our own. He desires to witness our perseverance and courage amid life's trials, testing whether we will maintain trust in His promises despite encountering failures along the way.
- God finds pleasure in observing His children patiently await the manifestation of His glory in their lives.
- Having patience and faith in God does not indicate sympathy towards failure; rather, it signifies a belief in the supremacy of God's power over any obstacles. It is a conviction that, when the opportune moment arrives, nothing can obstruct the path to success.
- God's timing is always perfect. When we patiently wait for His plan to unfold, He bestows upon us a sense of peace, shielding us from shame.
- Our current hardships are tools utilized by God to train and prepare us for higher levels in life. Otherwise, He would not have allowed them.
- Just as God did not immediately bring Joseph's great destiny to fruition after revealing it in his dreams, we too must learn from past heroes of faith who, despite trials and persecutions, embraced faith and patience to inherit God's promises.
- Valuable achievements are seldom easily attained. If they were, the world would already be a paradise.
- Hard times provide fertile ground for God's grace to flourish in our lives.
- Christ understood that the temporary suffering He endured pales in comparison to the eternal liberty He would offer humanity. As believers, we should emulate His example.
- God desires us to depend solely on Him, recognizing that it is through Him alone that we can reach our ultimate destination.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

- Patience, perseverance, endurance, and faith are the foundational tools of a visionary individual. Coupled with constant prayer, they pave the way to inherit God's promises throughout life's journey.
- When we pray and hope for a miracle, we must be patient, allowing God to answer in His perfect time.
- Demonstrating patience and confidence in God during times of calamity reveals our firm belief that God will come to our aid, as He never disappoints those who trust in Him.
- Let us refrain from imposing deadlines on God's intervention in our circumstances. He is fully aware of our problems and knows the appropriate time to act.
- God cannot be manipulated according to our schedule; therefore, we must patiently wait on Him. Impatience arises from a lack of confidence in Him, which can hinder the blessings we seek.
- Whatever blessings God bestows upon us, whether we use them to serve Him or not, He will not take them back. His gifts are freely given.
- Always remember that those who stand firm in Christ Jesus shall remain steadfast.

CHAPTER FOUR

Cultivating Spiritual Alertness through Persistent Prayer

We Can Only Attain Spiritual Alertness through Persevering Prayer

Often, we may find ourselves on the brink of giving up on prayer when it appears that God is not promptly answering our petitions. It is vital to grasp that the effectiveness of prayer lies in its alignment with the will of God. That is why, when teaching His disciples to pray, Christ emphasized the importance of the Father's will: "...Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven" (Matthew 6:9-13). The persistence of our problems does not stem from a lack of prayer, but rather from praying amiss. It is one thing for a believer to pray, but it is another to pray in accordance with the Father's will. We must learn to acknowledge God's will in our prayers. You may wonder, "How can I discern the will of God?" God's will be revealed through His promises for your life, and the key to understanding those promises lies in diligently studying His Word. I often tell people that the outcome of prayer is God's will for you in that moment. We must recognize that Christ can only give us what is rightfully ours. Just because you pray for success and experience failure does not mean God has not answered your prayers. It could be that the apparent "failure" at that specific point in time is ultimately for your own benefit. Failing in a particular area does not define you as a failure; it may simply mean that it is not the domain in which God intends for you to manifest your greatness.

In today's world, the measure of greatness extends well beyond academic accomplishments. Graduating with a lower grade or encountering setbacks doesn't equate to failure or suggest incapacity to fulfill your life's purpose. It's possible that God allowed you to achieve that lower grade to reveal a hidden potential within you. Many of today's billionaires are individuals who forsook formal education to pursue their destinies. The quantity of failures one experiences is inconsequential; what truly matters is how those failures are interpreted. If seen as failures, they will impede progress, but if perceived as catalysts to intensify one's efforts, success will inevitably pursue you.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

When we pray according to God's perfect will, an inner confidence emerges, indicating that our prayers have been answered and that our breakthrough has arrived. Scripture affirms, "And this is the confidence that we have toward him, that if we ask anything according to his will he hears us. And if we know that he hears us in whatever we ask, we know that we have the requests that we have asked of him" (1 John 5:14-15). Prayer can only align correctly when it resonates with God's desires for us and transcends selfish interests. At times, we may approach God with self-centered requests, but such prayers cannot be answered. It is essential to cultivate contentment with what we already have. Many individuals mistakenly believe that prosperity is synonymous with having an abundance of material possessions. They are dissatisfied with their current state and constantly compare themselves to others. If someone owns a nice car, they desire the same. If someone acquires a new pair of shoes, they feel compelled to do the same. If someone possesses a trendy wristwatch, they strive to obtain it, even if there is nothing wrong with the one they currently own. It is crucial not to measure the standard of our lives against others. We are not defined by their achievements; we are unique individuals created in the image and likeness of God. Each of us is fearfully and wonderfully made, products of excellence rather than failure. Therefore, there is no need for discouragement when we see our childhood friends prospering, building houses, buying cars, and getting married. We may wonder when our time will come and when God will answer our prayers. Rest assured, your time will indeed come.

Those individuals with whom you compare yourself—do you know what challenges they face behind closed doors? Are you aware of the sacrifices they made to attain their wealth? I am not suggesting that every rich person achieved their wealth through dubious means. Rather, it is time for you to discover your inner potential. There is something unique about you that others do not possess. Even many wealthy individuals lack peace, yet with the little you have, you can sleep without fear of the unknown. What is the purpose of riches without peace? It becomes a curse. Now is the moment to place value on yourself. How you perceive yourself is how others will perceive you. This is not a call to arrogance or pride, nor does it imply disregarding the blessings in other people's lives. Rather, it is a reminder not to underestimate your worth. You are somebody because you are a product of a Great King. Your heavenly Father knows your needs, and He will meet them at the appropriate time.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

God proclaims that He will demonstrate His mighty power in your life. He is poised to elevate you from a state of obscurity to one of significance. He will remove the bonds that restrain you, but only if you remain steadfast in Him, refusing to lose hope or give up on your prayers. He has heard your cries, and He knows every detail of your life. God knows precisely how He will fulfill His promises in your life. Our God transcends any problem or obstacle. The manifestation of His promise may not align with your expectations, but He pledges to bring you joy and happiness. He desires your life to serve as an inspiration to others. He promises to provide you with countless reasons to bless His Holy name.

The Parable of the Widow and the Unjust Judge

The Parable of the Widow and the Unjust Judge, shared by Christ, serves as a powerful illustration of our Heavenly Father's commitment to answer the prayers of His faithful children. By using a widow—an individual marginalized in society—Christ emphasized God's compassionate nature. In the cultural context of that time, widows faced immense hardships and vulnerabilities. The practice of a brother marrying the widow of a deceased man aimed to protect her and her children from destitution, shielding them from the shame of begging on the streets. However, in the case of the widow in this parable, it is evident that her second, third, and subsequent brothers-in-law, who should have fulfilled this duty, were deceased. She had no relatives to turn to for assistance, leaving her exposed to exploitation and abuse. Thus, Christ used this parable to demonstrate that if an unrighteous judge could grant justice to such a vulnerable woman due to her persistent pleas, how much more would our loving Heavenly Father respond to our cries? God's faithfulness remains unwavering, and He will meet us at the point of our need if we remain faithful and resolute in our prayers, trusting in His divine timing.

Living above Human Nature in Prayer – Cultivating Spiritual Discernment and Trust in God's Wisdom

As believers, it is imperative that we transcend our human nature and live according to the guidance of the Holy Spirit. Our prayers should not be swayed by what we perceive with our five senses or the circumstances we find ourselves in. Instead, we should allow the Spirit of the Father within us to influence the manner in which we approach God in prayer. This means seeking His direction and discretion, aligning our petitions with His perfect will.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

There may be times when we face difficult situations, and it may be God's will for us to endure those challenges for a season. He may use those circumstances to shape and refine us into stronger, more mature Christians. Therefore, it is crucial to seek God's guidance and understanding when we pray. He knows what is best for us, and He will answer our petitions accordingly.

You may be reminded of the verse from Matthew 7:8, which states, "For everyone who asks receives, and the one who seeks finds, and to the one who knocks it will be opened." It is important to understand the true meaning behind this verse. Just as parents do not grant every request their children make, even when they encourage their children to ask for anything, God does not fulfill every request we bring before Him. Even if we have the means to provide something for our children, we will do so only when we know they are capable of handling it responsibly.

God does not open every door we knock on because He knows that some doors are not right for us at that particular moment. He will only open those doors when He knows we are prepared to handle the blessings that lie beyond them. Take a look around and observe those who are consumed by their worldly pursuits, leaving little or no time for the presence of God. God does not want to bless you with wealth that would negatively impact your relationship with Him. Instead, He desires to bless you with riches that you will use to honor and serve Him. It is disheartening to witness individuals who exhibit great commitment to God's work while seeking His favor, only to disappear from the house of God once their prayers are answered. When questioned about their absence, they often claim to be too busy. Nothing should take the place of God in your life. Remember, your riches are meant to be utilized to glorify God, not solely for personal gain. This is one of the reasons why immediate answers to our prayers may not always be granted. God does not want to open a door that would lead you away from Him. You are too precious to Him to be lost to the world.

Continuing from verse 9 to 11, we read, "Or which one of you, if his son asks him for bread, will give him a stone? Or if he asks for a fish, will give him a serpent? If you then, who are evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father who is in heaven give good things to those who ask him!" (Matthew 7:9-11). Any "blessing" that would separate you from God's presence is not a true blessing. A blessing is only good if it strengthens your desire to bless God, to be generous to the poor, to do good to others, and to remain steadfast in your fellowship and relationship with Him. No parent would give their child a gift that would cause the child to misbehave. When God sees that you are mature enough to handle certain blessings without becoming proud or losing your character, He will grant them to you. Once we grasp these fundamental principles, we can better understand why God may still withhold certain blessings from us.

See Your Situation as God Sees It

Always view your situation from the perspective of your Heavenly Father. Do not pray as if your problem is insurmountable but pray with the understanding that your God is greater than any problem you face. No challenge is too big for God to solve. He allows you to go through difficulties because He knows that you are capable of overcoming them. Remember, God will never subject His children to trials that surpass their abilities to endure (1 Corinthians 10:13). Therefore, pray with confidence, knowing that the problem you face is small in comparison to the greatness of your God. We have been created by a mighty God, as the Psalmist declares, "For the LORD is a great God and a great King above all gods" (Psalm 95:3).

We have been entrusted with the powerful name of Jesus Christ, a name that surpasses all others. At the mention of His name, every knee must bow, and every obstacle standing in our way will be removed. All we need to do is believe. A heart that believes knows that God has already answered their prayers, even when the outward circumstances remain unchanged. A believing heart understands that God's response is not contingent on what the senses perceive. A believing heart knows that God is capable of making the unreal real, the impossible possible, and the unknown known. Trust me, brethren, you are under the watchful eyes of a mighty God.

The Holy Spirit's Intercession on Our Behalf

The Holy Spirit is the divine presence within a true believer, guiding and interceding on their behalf. There are instances when unexpected breakthroughs occur in one's life, even without specific prayers or desires. In such moments, it is the work of the Holy Spirit, who consistently intercedes for the saints. The Holy Spirit accompanies believers wherever they go, understanding the essential aspects of their lives and their needs aligned with God's will. When believers find themselves unsure of how to pray, Scripture assures them that the Spirit is present to intercede. When you engage in prayer, always invite the presence of the Holy Spirit, who empowers your words and articulates your petitions. This is why there are times when you may find yourself speaking in tongues, a heavenly language that surpasses understanding. The Apostle Paul explains that the Holy Spirit intercedes for us when we are weak, expressing profound longings that cannot be expressed in words alone:

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

"Likewise the Spirit helps us in our weakness; for we do not know how to pray as we ought, but the Spirit himself intercedes for us with sighs too deep for words. And he who searches the hearts of men knows what is the mind of the Spirit because the Spirit intercedes for the saints according to the will of God" (Romans 8:26-27).

The Holy Spirit is always available to respond to our call, having a deeper understanding of our individual needs than we have ourselves. He comprehends what God desires for us and effectively presents our case before our Heavenly Father. It is crucial to open your heart and welcome the Holy Spirit of God, as He is our helper and guide along the path of truth. As Christ promised before ascending to meet His Father, He would send another Comforter, the Spirit of truth, who would abide with believers forever. The world cannot receive the Holy Spirit because they do not perceive or know Him, but as believers, we have the privilege of His indwelling presence:

"And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever; Even the Spirit of truth; whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for He dwelleth with you, and shall be in you" (John 14:16-17).

Christ understood that believers needed a Comforter in their times of weakness and did not leave them alone. He provided the Holy Spirit as a constant source of support and guidance. This demonstrates that believers hold a special place in God's heart, as He is genuinely interested in their well-being and happiness. God has made all the necessary arrangements for believers to succeed in life, and therefore, as believers, it is essential to entrust your cares to the Holy Spirit, knowing that He intercedes for you according to the perfect will of God.

Embracing Spirit Prayer as a Habit

Spirit prayer involves meditating on God's Word in your heart as you go about your daily activities. It is vital because it keeps believers in constant connection with their Heavenly Source. Spirit prayer is not vocalized but originates from the depths of the heart. You can engage in spirit prayer while at work, walking on the street, or conversing with others, maintaining a spiritual union with God without those around you realizing you are engaged in prayer. To enhance your spirit prayer, you can derive a "prayer language" from Scripture. For instance, my mentor and spiritual father, inspired by the Holy Spirit, gave me my prayer language: "Father, take more of me and give me more of you!!! Sin power over me be broken." I meditate on these words day and night, even as I drift to sleep. Sometimes, I find myself meditating on these words in my dreams, and as a result, I wake up victorious, free from any negative dream experiences. I do not suggest that my prayer language should be universally adopted, as you can always seek God's guidance for a scriptural prayer to meditate on continuously.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Christ instructed His followers to "watch and pray" to avoid falling into temptation (Matthew 26:41). However, this does not mean constantly being on the lookout for external enemies or fervently praying out loud. Christ refers to spirit prayer, urging believers to remain watchful over their hearts by continually meditating on God's Word. When our hearts are disconnected from our Heavenly source, Satan can easily tempt us with sin, corruption, and immorality. Remember that evil or goodness is conceived within the heart. Many of the problems we witness in the world today stem from the heart. Our thoughts manifest in our outward actions. Christ desires His present disciples to be watchful over their hearts by occupying them with their prayer language.

He instructs you and me to be spiritually alert, avoiding the traps set by the devil. Spiritual alertness is essential in the battle of prayer. A diligent soldier remains alert day and night, never knowing when the enemy will strike. Therefore, our prayers should extend beyond the prayer room or the house of God, encompassing every minute and second of our lives as we maintain constant communication with the Kingdom of God. Remember, we are engaged in a spiritual battle on earth, where this world is not our own. It operates under the authority of Satan. Our adversary requires no invitation to attack. Hence, we must daily meditate on God's Word, declaring His protection, victory, mercy, favor, and safety as we navigate life's journey. Whether we are traveling, going to work, or moving through the streets, we proclaim God's guardianship over our lives and loved ones.

Disconnecting from your Heavenly source is extremely perilous. It is the reason many Christians today struggle with immorality and other vices. Similar to a mobile phone losing its connection or signal, when we lose connection with God, we cannot communicate effectively with Him, and He cannot communicate with us. However, when our hearts remain connected to God by meditating on His Word, the devil finds no avenue to tempt us, for our hearts are preoccupied with the things of God. This is why Scripture instructs us, "Keep your heart with all vigilance, for from it flow the springs of life" (Proverbs 4:23).

Understanding that the heart plays a significant role in effective prayer is crucial. God does not focus on outward appearances but is deeply interested in the hearts of individuals. As believers, we must be cautious of the thoughts that occupy our minds through our hearts. The mind serves as a watchman. When our hearts are not filled with God's Word, the enemy quickly seizes the opportunity to attack. Therefore, it is essential for us to be spiritually minded and engage in constant heart-to- heart meditation with the Father, allowing Him to make our minds vigilant watchmen.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Establish a Dedicated Prayer Space

Individuals who are committed to prayer often experience remarkable possibilities in their lives. Maintaining a consistent connection with God knows no limits to what one can achieve. If we examine the Bible, we find numerous instances where Christ retreated to solitary places, such as mountains, to engage in prayer:

"After he had dismissed them, he went up on a mountainside by himself to pray. Later that night, he was there alone." (Matthew 14:23)

"Very early in the morning, while it was still dark, Jesus got up, left the house and went off to a solitary place, where he prayed." (Mark 1:35)

"After leaving them, he went up on a mountainside to pray." (Mark 6:46) "But Jesus often withdrew to lonely places and prayed." (Luke 5:16)

In emulating Christ, believers are encouraged to establish a designated place for prayer. Creating a space that is free from distractions and noise is essential for effective communication with God. While not everyone may have the opportunity to visit mountains or purchase gardens, it is possible to set aside a quiet and accessible area for prayer. This could involve designating a room in your home as a Prayer Room or arranging a prayer altar within your bedroom. Having a dedicated space that allows for uninterrupted prayer can enhance your prayer life.

Daniel, an exemplar of faith, prioritized his prayer life. Even when he found himself in a foreign land, the Bible tells us that Daniel would open the window in his upper chamber facing Jerusalem and pray to God three times a day (Daniel 6:10). Daniel's altar was positioned to align with Jerusalem, the Holy City of God. Having a designated place for prayer, where we can quietly commune with God without disturbances, greatly aids our spiritual connection.

Overcoming the Greatest Hindrance to Prayer

At times, we may feel disheartened by the delay in answers to our prayers without examining ourselves to determine if we are in right standing with God. Before blaming God for unanswered prayers, it is crucial to assess whether our lifestyles align with the standards outlined in His Word. Our God is unwavering in His principles and integrity, and He does not compromise for anyone. God is holy and has no association with ungodliness. He is pure and does not entertain impurity. He is righteous and has no involvement with unrighteousness. Besides praying outside the Father's will, sin serves as the greatest obstacle that hinders our prayers from reaching God. The Scriptures caution that the prayer of a sinner is an abomination to God (Proverbs 15:8). God is pure and holy; we cannot approach His presence with an impure nature. Our prayers can only reach God when our way of life reflects His true nature of holiness. It is not the noise or the intensity of our cries that determine the answer to our prayers, but rather the purity of our hearts.

The Scriptures instruct believers:

"We know that God does not listen to sinners, but He does listen to the one who worships Him and does His will." (John 9:31)

At this moment, it is important to examine ourselves. Are there hidden sins in our lives? No sin can be considered small, for sin is sin. Are we struggling with unholy addictions that hinder our access to God? Let us humbly bow our heads and seek the Father's forgiveness. Ask Him to break the chains of addiction and fill our hearts with His Word, so that the allure of iniquity finds no place within us. The psalmist declares, "If I had cherished sin in my heart, the Lord would not have listened" (Psalm 66:18). Sin can only find a dwelling place if we cherish it. When we harbor iniquity in our hearts, God cannot hear our prayers. Remember, God is primarily concerned with the purity of our hearts. Our hearts are laid bare before Him; He sees and comprehends the thoughts within. While humans may be deceived by external appearances, God cannot be deceived, as He gazes into the depths of our being. When God sent Prophet Samuel to anoint a new king for Israel after King Saul's rejection, Samuel observed David's physically strong and tall elder brothers, he assumed that they would be suitable candidates. However, the Lord said to Samuel, "Do not consider his appearance or his height, for I have rejected him. The LORD does not look at the things people look at. People look at the outward appearance, but the LORD looks at the heart" (1 Samuel 16:7). Thus, the youngest son of Jesse, David, was chosen by God because he possessed a heart after God's own heart.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Are there sins or weaknesses that we are harboring? Let us bring them to Jesus. He came to die for our sake. He has already paid the ultimate price for our redemption. All we need to do is approach Him with a sincere heart—a heart that longs for righteousness, that desires constant communion and fellowship with God, and that detests sin. This is what God requires from us. He does not desire any hindrances between us and Him. He wants us to have unhindered access, to be enveloped by His presence.

The Scriptures remind us:

"Therefore confess your sins to each other and pray for each other so that you may be healed. The prayer of a righteous person is powerful and effective." (James 5:16)

Yet, this confession is not about seeking forgiveness and then returning to our sinful ways a few days later. Although our merciful Father will always forgive our sins when we ask, we should not be under the false impression that we can freely indulge in sin. The grace of God in our lives cannot flourish when we persist in sinful behavior. When God's grace does not flourish, our potential for achievement is limited. It would be unwise to trade our great destinies for temporary pleasures. Now is the time to implore God for assistance. We may exert effort to restrain ourselves outwardly, but only with the help of the Holy Spirit can we truly resist sin. Call upon the Holy Spirit to strengthen you in your weakness and to grant you forgiveness for all your transgressions (1 John 1:9).

SUMMARY

In this chapter, the author emphasizes the importance of persevering in prayer and aligning our prayers with the will of God. The effectiveness of prayer lies in its alignment with God's will, as Jesus taught His disciples to pray for God's kingdom to come and His will to be done on earth. Praying in accordance with God's will requires discernment, which can be achieved through diligent study of His Word.

The author explains that the persistence of our problems does not stem from a lack of prayer but from praying amiss. We need to recognize that God's will be revealed through His promises for our lives. Just because we pray for something and experience failure or delay does not mean God has not answered our prayers. It could be that the apparent failure or delay is ultimately for our own benefit or because it is not the domain in which God intends for us to manifest our greatness.

The measure of greatness in the world extends beyond academic achievements or material possessions. Graduating with lower grades or facing setbacks does not signify failure or indicate an inability to fulfill our life's purpose. The author encourages readers to see failures as motivators to redouble their efforts rather than hindrances.

When we pray according to God's perfect will, an inner confidence emerges, indicating that our prayers have been answered and breakthrough has arrived. Prayer aligns correctly when it resonates with God's desires for us and transcends selfish interests. It is important to cultivate contentment with what we already have and not measure our lives against others. We are unique individuals created in the image and likeness of God, fearfully and wonderfully made.

The author reminds readers that God will demonstrate His power in their lives and elevate them from a state of obscurity to one of significance if they remain steadfast in Him. God knows every detail of our lives and precisely how He will fulfill His promises. The manifestation of His promise may not align with our expectations, but it will bring joy and happiness and serve as an inspiration to others.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

The author then discusses the parable of the Widow and the Unjust Judge, emphasizing God's commitment to answering the prayers of His faithful children. The parable highlights God's compassionate nature and His willingness to respond to the persistent pleas of those who trust in Him. God's faithfulness remains unwavering, and He will meet His children at the point of their need in His divine timing.

Living above human nature in prayer requires transcending our human desires and seeking the guidance of the Holy Spirit. Difficult situations may be part of God's plan to shape and refine us, and it is crucial to seek God's guidance and understanding when we pray. God knows what is best for us and will answer our petitions accordingly.

The author explains that God does not fulfill every request we bring before Him because He knows what is right for us and when we are ready to handle certain blessings. Immediate answers to prayers may not be granted if they would lead us away from God or negatively impact our relationship with Him. We are meant to use our blessings to honor and serve God, not solely for personal gain.

It is essential to view our situations from the perspective of our Heavenly Father, knowing that no challenge is too big for God to solve. We have been created by a mighty God who is greater than any problem we face. Believers have been entrusted with the powerful name of Jesus Christ, and at the mention of His name, every knee must bow and every obstacle will be removed. A believing heart knows that God has already answered prayers, even when the outward circumstances remain unchanged.

The Holy Spirit intercedes on behalf of believers, guiding and empowering their prayers. The Holy Spirit understands their needs and presents their case before God. Believers should invite the presence of the Holy Spirit when praying.

VITAL PRINCIPLES

- A prayer is only effective when it is according to the will of God.
- The will of God is His promises for your life and you can only know God's promise by reading His word.
- The outcome of your prayer is the will of God for you at that moment.
- It is not the number of failures that count, but it is how you see it that matters. If you see it as a failure, it will become a failure, but if you see as a motivator to step-up your effort. Success will be the one that will be chasing after you.
- Prayers can only be on the right track when it is in line with what God wants for us, not according to our selfish interest
- You should not make the mistake to measure the standard of your life with others, you are not others, but yourself. You are the nature of God; you are created in His image and likeness. He wonderfully and excellently made you.
- There is something unique about you that others don't have. There is something that you have that even those rich people out there do not have.
- We have the Spirit of the Father in us and that Spirit should always be the source that influences our prayers.
- We should not let the nature of our problems to influence the way we pray to God that is, what we see, hear or what our situation looks like, such should not always determine the way we pray
- God will always answer our petition according to what He knows is best for us.
- Nothing should take the places of God in your life.
- Always see your situation the way your Heavenly Father sees it. Don't pray as if your problem is bigger than you, pray because you know your God is bigger than your problem.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

- A believing heart knows God has done it even when things still remain the same on the outside.
- A believing heart knows God has done it even when what the five senses see is the opposite.
- A believing heart knows God has answered the prayers even when things are not still okay.
- When you don't know how you ought to pray, the scripture said the Spirit is there to intercede for you. When you are praying always ask for the presence of the Holy Ghost.
- Holy Ghost knew us better than we know ourselves. He knows what God wants for us. The Holy Spirit knows how to present our case to our Heavenly Father.
- The Spirit is our helper; He is there to guide us in the partway of truth.
- Spirit prayer is when you meditate on God's words in your heart as you go about your daily activities.
- When our heart is disconnected from our heavenly source Satan can easily tempt us with sin, corruption and immorality. Remember it is in the heart but good and evil are conceived.
- Christ wants you His present disciples to watch your heart by keeping it busy with your prayer language
- Spiritual alertness is a necessary tool for prayer warfare. A good soldier always stays alert either day and night since no one knows the minutes or hours the enemies will strike.
- Prayers should not be limited to only the prayer room or the house of God, but every minute and seconds of our life, we are to always be in a constant communication with the Kingdom of God.
- God those not look at outward appearance. He is more interested in the heart of men.
- If you are constantly in communion with God there is no limit to what you can achieve in life. Those who are great accomplishments are products of fervent prayer.
- The Spirit of God easily connects with us when we pray at designated areas that are free of noise. That's what I called "heart to heart communication with God."
- Sin is the greatest obstacle that withholds our prayer from reaching God. The scripture says that the prayer of a sinner is an abomination to God (Proverbs 15: 8).

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

- You cannot take an unholy nature to His presence. Your prayers can only reach God when your way of life reflects His true nature of Holiness.
- Man can be deceived by the outward appearance, but God cannot be deceived because He looks at the inner you.
- When God's grace doesn't flourish in once life, such person level of accomplishment will be limited. There are so many people today that have failed to fulfil their destiny just because of the temporal pleasure of sin.
- We may do much by outward restraints but only God can help us to stop sinning.

CHAPTER FIVE

Unveiling Your Purpose, Exercising Self-Discipline, and Mastering Your Destiny

Discovering Your Life Purpose and Embracing Your Uniqueness

Have you ever paused to contemplate the profound questions surrounding your existence? Why were you brought into this world? What is your role on Earth? Why do you engage in your current pursuits? These inquiries prompt us to explore the depths of our essence. It's crucial to understand that each of us is intricately designed with a specific purpose and a unique contribution to offer. We are not passive spectators but rather bearers of solutions to the challenges that await resolution. Our destinies are intertwined with greatness, yet the harsh realities and pressures of our environment often compel us to abandon our God-given purpose. Unfortunately, many yield to the influence of society and the allure of peer pressure, relinquishing their aspirations and compromising their life's direction. It's a grave oversight to underestimate the profound impact our present choices and actions can have on our dreams and the fulfillment of our life's purpose.

The Detrimental Influences and the Need for Resilience

A disheartening reality of our time is witnessing countless young individuals lose their way, their dreams dissipating amidst the haze of drug abuse, excessive indulgence in nightlife, and the clutches of addiction. These lost souls are often ensnared by the tentacles of inferiority complexes and the pervasive influence of societal trends. It is incumbent upon us to awaken to the fact that our purpose on Earth transcends a mere existence; we are called to contribute meaningfully to our environment and the broader global community. Consequently, we must fortify ourselves against external pressures, safeguarding our accomplishments and ambitions from being waylaid. We must firmly affirm our uniqueness, recognizing that we are not meant to be replicas of others, nor can others replicate our essence. We are fearfully and wonderfully made, meticulously crafted by the divine hand of God. Bearing His image and belonging to Him, we are entrusted with great destinies. It is imperative, therefore, to embrace our callings with unwavering boldness, casting off the shackles that hinder the realization of our boundless potential.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Unearthing Your Unique Assignment and Answering the Divine Call

As children of God, we stand apart, set apart for a unique purpose. Each of us is endowed with distinct gifts, enabling us to impact our generation positively. The time has come for us to embark on the journey of self-discovery, to unravel the tapestry of our purpose. In the sacred scriptures, we find solace and guidance, reminding us that we are God's handiwork, fashioned in Christ Jesus to carry out good works predestined for us (Ephesians 2:10). These noble tasks, specifically prepared for us, beckon us to fulfill our divine calling. Let no obstacle hinder our resolve, for the Lord Himself commands us to be change agents, transforming lives and serving as beacons of light for others (Exodus 35:10).

The Crucial Role of Self-Discipline In Pursuit Of Greatness

To unleash the greatness within us, it is incumbent upon us to cultivate an attitude that reflects the grandeur of our potential. Self-discipline serves as the bedrock upon which success is built. Let us recognize the imperative of distancing ourselves from anything that undermines our progress. Despite possessing free will, we must exercise self-restraint, understanding that our actions should not be dictated by unbridled desires. A lack of self-discipline, unfortunately, ensnares many in the treacherous web of substance abuse and destructive addictions, eroding their well-being and vitality.

In the words of the wise Apostle Paul, "Everything is permissible for me, but not everything is beneficial. Everything is permissible for me, but I will not be mastered by anything" (1 Corinthians 6:12). Self-discipline assumes paramount importance in our pursuit of life goals. Any element that gains mastery over us becomes our master, robbing us of our autonomy and potential.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Therefore, let the Word of God permeate our being, assuming its rightful position of authority in our lives. By allowing God's Word to govern our thoughts and actions, we establish a fortress against iniquity, ensuring that our hearts remain aligned with His divine will. The apostle Paul urges us to meditate on things that are true, honest, just, pure, lovely, of good report, virtuous, and praiseworthy (Philippians 4:8). Consequently, our hearts and minds become sanctuaries, where the Word of God reigns supreme, repelling addiction and negativity.

Harnessing the Power of God's Word to Overcome Addiction

Christ has bestowed upon us the power to triumph over addiction. Yet, we must actively engage with this power, allowing God's Word to saturate our hearts and minds. It is the infusion of His Word within us that grants us the resilience to overcome and conquer. Merely praying and fasting, while essential, may not yield immediate transformation if the Word of God does not dominate our hearts. Allow me to share a powerful testimony of a dear friend who struggled with pornography and masturbation addiction. Despite fervent prayers and fasting, he found himself repeatedly succumbing to the torment of these vices. However, when he resolved to saturate his heart with the Word of God, his life underwent a remarkable transformation. Instead of dwelling on iniquity and indulging in immoral acts, he redirected his time and attention to reading the Bible, embracing Christian inspirational literature, and actively engaging in scriptural confession. Through these intentional practices, he experienced the victory and freedom he had longed for.

Practicality in Spiritual Living: The Word as Your Guide

Our spiritual journey should transcend the confines of religious rituals and Sunday sermons. Instead, it must embody a lifestyle rooted in the Word of God. We must cultivate a voracious appetite for Scripture, allowing it to become an inseparable part of our very being. As we internalize the Word, it transforms us from within, empowering us to boldly speak faith-filled words that demolish any mountain that obstructs our path. Reflecting on my friend's experience, it is evident that while fasting and prayer played crucial roles, it was the relentless meditation and absorption of God's Word that paved the way to victory over addiction. God calls us to be practical in our spiritual pursuits, diligently meditating on and reading His Word daily.

Claiming Mastery over Your Thoughts and Actions

You possess the authority to govern your thoughts and actions. As the master of your own mind, you are equipped to make decisions that steer you toward success. God has blessed us with the gift of free will, granting us the discernment to distinguish right from wrong. No one, not even your pastor, should coerce you into adopting beliefs that contradict the Scriptures. You have the power to confidently say "yes" or "no." Exercise this autonomy by choosing to distance yourself from those whose beliefs and goals diverge from your own. Remember, it is possible to maintain healthy relationships without compromising your convictions. When confronted with inquiries, kindly explain that your busy schedule or important projects demand your focus and attention. Do not allow anyone's opinions to sway you from your chosen path. Remain resolute in your belief, knowing that you hail from a royal lineage. You were destined for kingship, created in the image of God Himself.

We are not mere spectators but active participants in the grand tapestry of life. Discovering and embracing our purpose requires a firm commitment to self-discovery and resilience against societal pressures. Self-discipline serves as the bedrock upon which success is built, enabling us to overcome addiction and fulfill our destinies. By harnessing the power of God's Word, we can triumph over any challenge and claim mastery over our thoughts and actions. Remember, you possess the authority to live a purposeful life and impact the world around you. Let us embark on this journey together, empowered by the truth that we are fearfully and wonderfully made, destined for greatness.

Our Destinies Are Interconnected

The realization that our destinies are interconnected underscores the significance of individuals discovering and fulfilling their purpose. It is through one's pursuit of their calling that others may come to recognize their own potentials. Each person plays a vital role in the collective tapestry of life, and failure to fulfill one's purpose has far-reaching implications for others who were destined to find redemption and transformation through their actions. It is disheartening to witness individuals squandering their lives in activities that offer no value to their purpose on Earth, especially when many great destinies await discovery. It is imperative for individuals to quickly embark on a journey of self-discovery, recognizing that God's plan for greatness and the ability to be a blessing to others has already been declared. However, this can only be realized by making oneself available to God and living a life aligned with godly principles.

The Need for Availability and Commitment

God relies on human vessels to carry out His plan on Earth. Without individuals who willingly make themselves available for His use, God's integrity prevents Him from acting independently. Therefore, it is crucial for individuals to constantly present themselves as suitable instruments for God's service, utilizing their bodies, strength, and every aspect of their being to honor Him. Just as Moses was chosen by God to lead the Israelites out of Egypt, God seeks individuals who will execute His purpose on Earth. By aligning our lives with God's plan, we can become conduits for His work and fulfill our destinies.

We All Possess Gifts

The apostles and other ministers of the gospel who have impacted lives across the world are not supernatural beings but ordinary individuals like everyone else. If God can use them to perform miraculous wonders, He can also utilize each person's unique gifts and talents. The key lies in discovering oneself and tapping into the gifts that have already been bestowed upon us by Christ. The Scriptures affirm that Christ, upon ascending to heaven, distributed gifts of ministry to His Church for the equipping of His people and the edification of the body of Christ. Therefore, individuals must realize that they have been entrusted with gifts that are meant to be used for the greater good.

The Importance of Perseverance

The apostles' successful spread of the gospel across nations highlights the importance of individuals diligently pursuing the calling placed upon their lives. Without their commitment, many would not have received salvation through Christ Jesus. Therefore, individuals must approach their lives with seriousness and wholeheartedly engage in the purpose bestowed upon them by their heavenly Father. Challenges and opposition may arise, but it is vital to persevere, not only for personal reasons but also for the benefit of those who will eventually be impacted by one's actions. Good deeds and contributions may not always be appreciated in the present, but they have the potential to leave a lasting legacy for future generations.

So, understanding the interconnectedness of our destinies emphasizes the importance of individuals discovering and fulfilling their purpose. By making ourselves available for God's use, tapping into our gifts, and persevering in the face of challenges, we can positively impact the lives of others and leave a lasting legacy. Just as previous generations have contributed to the advancement of society through their determination and commitment, so too can we fulfill our destinies and inspire future generations to pursue their goals. Let us remain steadfast, focused, and undeterred, knowing that our actions have the potential to motivate and uplift others as they pursue their own paths.

Utilize Your Gift to Empower Others

God has bestowed upon each of us unique gifts and talents, meant to be used for the purpose of those around us. No individual exists without a gift or talent that serves a purpose. Each one of us is designed to offer solutions to specific problems. Have you made strides in providing the solution to the problem you were born to solve? You may be the scientist chosen by God to discover a medical breakthrough for an incurable disease. Perhaps you are destined to bring healing and liberation to your nation, combating political and economic oppression. Who knows? You might hold the key to unraveling a great scientific mystery. It is unwise to underestimate yourself, as many of us remain unaware of our true potential until we allow it to manifest. Equally unwise is the act of belittling or speaking ill of others. The quiet, unassuming child you encounter on the street could one day become the president of your country. Exercise caution, for the person you condemn today may be your savior tomorrow.

Divine Assistance in Self-Discovery

As we continue to labor in the service of Christ and strengthen our relationship with God, we draw nearer to our destiny. Our heavenly Father grants us deeper insight into our purpose and the reasons behind our existence. Many of us fail to manifest our gifts not because they do not reside within us, but because we struggle to discover and cultivate them. Some individuals have discovered their gifts but have allowed them to remain dormant, pursuing other endeavors they believe to be more advantageous. Are you one of those gifted individuals whose impact remains unremarkable in both your surroundings and the Church? It is time for you to employ your gift to bless others, for that is the true purpose of your existence. It is sinful and disobedient to neglect using what God has given you to bless others. Let us remember that in the last days, each one of us will be held accountable for how we have utilized our God-given gifts. The apostle Peter implores the brethren of the Church to employ their diverse gifts to serve others:

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

"Each of you should use whatever gift you have received to serve others, as faithful stewards of God's grace in its various forms." (1 Peter 4:10)

A gift or talent holds no value if it fails to positively impact the lives of others. If God were to question you today about the gift He has given you, what would you say in response? Many of us are engaged in professions that do not align with our true calling. It is important to differentiate between what we have been taught or learned and what comes naturally to us. I am referring to that unique gift with which you were born, the one that sets you apart from others. That gift is what Christ desires you to develop and employ in the service of others. Are you skilled in singing, possessing an angelic voice? Can you write books, compose songs, teach the Word, inspire others, or offer guidance through counseling? Your gift may lie in the realm of artistry, craftsmanship, or other domains. These are the very gifts that the Bible assures will bring you before great men: "A man's gift maketh room for him, and bringeth him before great men." (Proverbs 18:16)

Your gift is the key that God will use to unlock doors of blessings and favor. Regardless of your current occupation, when you discover and utilize your gifts to glorify your heavenly Father, you will experience a fulfilled life. You will feel complete and whole. Many of us remain dissatisfied not due to financial instability but because we have failed to fulfill our purpose. Even amidst wealth and opulence, a sense of emptiness lingers. The Spirit of God urges you to uncover your purpose, to embrace what God has gifted you with, so that you may once again feel whole and complete. Do not be afraid to pursue your passion. Pay no mind to the thoughts and opinions of others. You owe nothing to anyone. Be courageous in utilizing the gifts with which God has blessed you. Remember, you are the light of the world, destined to shine. Those enveloped in darkness require your light to discover their path to destiny. A hidden light serves no purpose; you must step forward and radiate your light to the world:

"You are the light of the world. A city on a hill cannot be hidden. Neither do people light a lamp and put it under a bowl. Instead, they put it on its stand, and it gives light to everyone in the house. In the same way, let your light shine before others, that they may see your good deeds and glorify your Father in heaven." (Matthew 5:14-16)

The world needs you. There are people who require your songs to find wholeness once again. Some desperately need your words of wisdom to garner determination in life. Others may need your counseling to prevent them from succumbing to despair. Become a source of hope and inspiration to others. You may claim that you lack the ability to sing, are excessively shy, or lack the skills to motivate others. However, consider your environment and identify how you can contribute. Even if you do not possess those particular gifts, you still have something to offer—your love, time, energy, or resources. Orphanages exist where you can extend your love, care, and affection by spending time with the children.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Harness the grace of God within you to bless others. Remember, you are not an ordinary person. You were born to achieve the extraordinary, to transform the world around you for the better, to be a blessing to others, and to illuminate the path for those lost in darkness. You have no excuse not to accomplish great and mighty things. Greatness resides within you; step into your greatness. Manifest the power deposited in you by God. I eagerly anticipate witnessing the glory of God revealed in you. I am eager to see you change your world for the better, and I am excited to witness the world becoming a better place because of your endeavors through Christ Jesus.

Avoid Allowing Pride to Diminish Your Gifts

It is imperative that we maintain humility in our service to both God and humanity, refraining from allowing pride to take root within us. As stated in scripture, "God opposes the proud but gives grace to the humble" (James 4:6). The gifts we possess are meant to serve others, not to fuel our own self-importance. We must approach our service with humility, making ourselves available to humbly serve humanity. When we remain humble despite our gifts and the great works we accomplish for Christ, God will increase the grace that He has bestowed upon us.

An illustrative example can be found in the story of Brother James; a skilled keyboard player in a local church. While there were two individuals proficient in playing the keyboard, Brother James exhibited exceptional talent. His musical abilities were clearly a gift from God, because the atmosphere transforms when he plays, and the presence of God was palpable. However, Brother James struggled with excessive self-importance. He would arrive late to church services, and on some occasions, he wouldn't attend at all. Recognizing this behavior, the pastor cautioned him. Unfortunately, Brother James took offense and decided to leave the church.

During Brother James' absence, his colleague, who was less skilled but now the sole keyboard player, improved significantly. He dedicated himself to mastering the instrument and became a better player than Brother James. When Brother James eventually returned, he discovered that his absence was no longer significant to the church. He expressed a desire to rejoin the music department, but he was initially denied. He had to go through a period of reflection and write an apology letter to the church, demonstrating true remorse and a genuine understanding of the lessons he had learned. Only then was he allowed to resume playing the keyboard for the church.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

When we fail to utilize our gifts or succumb to arrogance, thinking that no one can match our abilities, God will raise up someone who surpasses our perceived greatness. In our service to God, we must remain humble. Countless individuals possess the potential to excel in whatever endeavor we believe sets us apart. We should regard our positions as privileges, recognizing that God chose us to serve His purpose, not as an indication of our superiority or righteousness. It is crucial to maintain humility if we wish to preserve the grace in our lives. As the Bible states, "God opposes the proud but gives more grace to the humble."

We should consider it a privilege to be used by God in service to others. This should never lead to pride or arrogance. The Bible advises against thinking too highly of ourselves, stating, "For I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but to think soberly, according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith" (Romans 12:3, KJV). Additionally, we should "live in harmony with each other. Don't be too proud to enjoy the company of ordinary people. And don't think you know it all!" (Romans 12:16, NLT). We should recognize that everything we have is a gift from God, and there is no reason to boast as if we have not received these gifts (1 Corinthians 4:7).

Regardless of the high positions we may attain, we must always remember that they were made possible by God's grace. Eventually, we will be held accountable for how effectively we used those positions to serve humanity. Therefore, we should approach our service with humility and utilize our gifts to help others without expecting anything in return. By maintaining humility, God will elevate us to unimaginable heights. We will have the opportunity to interact with influential individuals and our gifts will open doors of blessings and favor in our lives.

Embrace Your Unique Destiny, Avoid Competitiveness

Each one of us is unique in our respective fields, and there is no one quite like you, nor can you be like someone else. In destiny, there is no competition. What is meant for you will come to you. Therefore, it is crucial to avoid perceiving others as competitors and becoming envious of their achievements. No one can impede your progress. When you witness others excelling, it is essential to appreciate their accomplishments. This mindset is particularly crucial within churches, as envy and criticism often breed division. Instead of appreciating God's grace in the lives of others, people may accuse them of using unconventional methods. In doing so, they forget that they too possess their own gifts, which may remain dormant due to their jealousy. It is vital to appreciate goodness and support those who excel in their calling. By doing so, we open ourselves up to discovering our own gifts. This collective support is essential for the advancement of both the church and society. The Scriptures emphasize that each individual has a unique role and calling within the body of Christ, and each role is significant in its own way.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

"As we have many members in one body, but all the members do not have the same function, so we, being many, are one body in Christ, and individually members of one another. Having then gifts differing according to the grace that is given to us, let us use them: if prophecy, let us prophesy in proportion to our faith" (Romans 12:4-6).

"And He Himself gave some to be apostles, some prophets, some evangelists, and some pastors and teachers, for the equipping of the saints for the work of ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ, till we all come to the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, to a perfect man, to the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ" (Ephesians 4:11-13, KJV).

When we genuinely rejoice with others and appreciate the gifts that God has bestowed upon them, our own light will soon shine brightly. I recall a friend of mine named Brother Stanley. We were both leaders in our church campus fellowship. Brother Stanley possessed a remarkable talent for writing Christian articles and maintained a blog to publish his work. His writing style and composition skills left me in awe, sparking my interest in writing. Despite acknowledging my own shortcomings as a writer, I never felt jealous of him. Instead, I admired the gift of God in his life and sought to develop myself. Today, by the grace of God, I have also become a proficient writer. This growth was possible because I appreciated the gift of God in Brother Stanley's life. Never underestimate your own potential. Nobody entered this world with innate talents. We all arrived here empty-handed and gradually discovered our unique gifts and callings. Do not diminish your worth. Always remember that you are a unique individual, created in God's image and destined for greatness. Avoid longing to be someone else, as you have a purpose in this world, and in due time, that purpose will manifest in your life.

SUMMARY

Chapter Five delves into the exploration of one's life purpose, the importance of self-discipline, and the mastery of destiny. It emphasizes the significance of discovering and embracing individual uniqueness and how external influences can hinder the fulfillment of one's purpose. The chapter also emphasizes the need for resilience and the detrimental effects of succumbing to societal pressures and addiction.

The chapter begins by posing thought-provoking questions about the purpose of one's existence and highlights the interconnectedness of destinies. It stresses that each person is intricately crafted with a specific purpose and a unique contribution to make. However, societal influences and peer pressure often lead individuals to compromise their life's trajectory and abandon their dreams.

The detrimental influences of drug abuse, excessive indulgence, and addiction are discussed, underscoring the need to fortify oneself against external pressures. The chapter emphasizes the importance of self-discipline as the foundation for success and highlights the role of self-restraint in overcoming destructive behaviors.

The power of God's Word is emphasized as a tool to overcome addiction and redirect one's focus. The chapter shares a testimony of someone who struggled with addiction but found transformation through saturating their heart with the Word of God. The practicality of spiritual living is emphasized, encouraging individuals to make Scripture an integral part of their lives through meditation and daily reading.

The chapter also highlights the importance of claiming mastery over one's thoughts and actions. It emphasizes the authority individuals possess to govern their choices and the need to align actions with godly principles. Maintaining convictions and distancing oneself from beliefs and goals that diverge from one's own is emphasized as a way to stay on the chosen path.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

In conclusion, the chapter underlines the importance of embracing one's unique purpose, exercising self-discipline, and realizing that our actions can impact others and the world. It encourages individuals to tap into their gifts, persevere in the face of challenges, and live a purposeful life aligned with godly principles. By doing so, individuals can positively impact others and fulfill their destinies while inspiring future generations to do the same.

VITAL PRINCIPLES

- We need to realize that every one of us was created for a purpose. Each one of us is a solution to a certain problem that needs to be solved.
- Our purpose on earth is not to live a wasted life, but to contribute meaningfully to our environment and the world at large.
- You should not ever allow pressure from others and inferiority complex to make you alter your life achievements and set goals. You are not like others and others cannot be like you.
- You are a unique person created for a unique assignment. You are born with a great gift to affect your generation positively.
- There are things you need to stay away from if you really want to succeed in life.
- Don't think because you have the free will to do whatever thing you want to do, therefore, you can act out of self-control. You need to have some self-restraint.
- Nothing in the world should master or take control over you.
- Self-discipline is very important to achieve your life goal. Anything you cannot control has power over you.
- You need to always meditate on the word of God. The Word should dominate your heart daily. Let the word of God be your sole influencer, let it take control over you.
- “You are responsible for what you give your attention to.”
- What you feed your heart with is what will manifest in your actions and attitude towards others. Learn to start feeding your heart with the word of God.
- Nothing should have power over you. Be the master of your thoughts.

- God has given us the sense to know what is right and wrong, so you have no excuse to give for the decision you make.
- Don't allow someone else opinion about you to affect the belief you have about yourself.
- God cannot do anything in your life if you do not give Him the chance
- God needs us to execute His plan on earth. God cannot do anything on earth except He finds a man that makes himself available.
- It will be against God's integrity to act on earth on His own without searching for a man that is willing to be used as a vessel to execute His plan.
- Challenges are there to strengthen us. It is the beauty in our redemption mission.
- Whatever gifts God have given you, use it effectively to positively affect the lives of others.
- If this generation did not value what you are doing right now, God will make the next generation to see the value of your great works.
- God created us with different gifts in other for us to use it to bless others around us. There is no body without a gift or talent that is not useful.
- Every one of us has something unique that the world needs. Everyone is created to provide a solution to a setting problem.
- Be careful, the person you condemn today may be your savior tomorrow.
- A gift or talent is useless if the holder cannot use it to affect the lives of others positively.
- There is a difference between what you were thought or learned and that which is an instinct of you.
- It is your gift that God will use to open doors of blessing and favor for you. "A man's gift maketh room for him, and bringeth him before great men." (Proverb 18:16)
- When you discover your gifts and you used them to glorify your heavenly Father, you will experience a fulfilled life. You will become whole and complete.
- Those that are dwelling in the darkness around you need your light to discover the way to their destinies.
- Make yourself a source of hope and inspiration to others.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

- When you remain humble despite, your gifts and great works for Christ, God will increase the grace He has bestowed on you.
- When you fail to use your gifts or you become arrogant because you think no one can be like you, God will raise someone else that will be much better than you think you are.
- There are millions of persons out there that can do whatever you think you are doing if they are given a chance. You should see that position as a privilege.
- We all are unique in our own field, there is nobody like you and you can never be like someone else.
- When you rejoice with others and appreciate the gift of God in their lives, God will soon shine the light of excellent to your side.
- There is nothing others are doing out there that you cannot do, nobody came to this world with anything. We all came to the world naked. It is here on earth we all discovered our various gifts and callings.
- You have to be humble in your service to God. The scripture said “God opposes the proud but gives more grace to the humble.”
- There is no competition in destiny what is yours is going to be yours.
- We should always appreciate something good and learn to support others that are doing extremely good.
- When you rejoice with others, God will soon shine the light of excellent to your side.

CHAPTER SIX

Honoring God In The Midst Of Adversity

We honor God when we magnify Him in the face of adversaries

It is a profound act of reverence towards God when we lift Him up in the midst of challenges. At times, we may feel tempted to believe that God has forsaken us to confront our trials alone. Nevertheless, we must not disregard His assurances that promise, "He will never leave us nor forsake us." Instead of dwelling on bitterness and amplifying the magnitude of our problems, we should recall that our God surpasses any obstacle we encounter in strength and power. Continually lamenting our unfavorable circumstances inadvertently grants the devil additional opportunities to advance his schemes against us. The devil takes pleasure in witnessing our despair, breakdowns, and grievances amidst hardships, knowing that such reactions do not provide solutions; rather, they further complicate matters. Hence, in times of adversity, it is crucial to engage in introspection and pinpoint areas in our lives where we may be lacking God's grace and sufficiency. Rather than expending our time and energy on bitter complaints and self-pity, we should seek an increased measure of God's grace and strength to endure the trials. Instead of allowing sorrow to take root in our hearts, why not opt to surrender ourselves to praise and worship? By boldly declaring that my God is greater than any challenge I face, we honor Him, and consequently, He swiftly responds to our situation.

We are all well aware that we live in a world under the influence of fallen angels, which means we are constantly surrounded by enemies who seek to undermine our pursuit of God's glory. The devil endeavors to instill doubt in our hearts regarding God's power and existence. Despite being the cause of misfortunes, he strives to make us blame God for everything. The devil wants us to question God's love, but as soldiers of Christ, we are more than conquerors. We have discernment concerning the devil's deceitful tactics and refuse to fall into his traps. The devices of our enemies hold no power over us because "greater is He who is in us than he who is in the world."

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

As conquerors, we should not adopt the language of defeat, asking, "Why is this trouble happening to me?" Nor should we speak as victims, questioning, "Why am I experiencing this pain?" Although it is normal to feel discouraged and tempted to give up, we must not allow our circumstances to dominate our lives. Instead, we must venture out and shake off our problems. Seek reasons to smile and experience joy. Despite the devastating nature of our situation, we may not feel like leaving the confines of our homes. Shame and pain may urge us to hide away. However, it is advisable to find somewhere to go—to have fun, visit the beach, or watch a movie at the cinema. Remaining indoors only fosters rumination over our situation and envelops us in self-pity. Our situation cannot control our lives unless we allow it to become our priority. Instead, let us reach out to others who are also in distress and lend them a helping hand. When we become more concerned about their problems than our own, we will witness God swiftly working out the answers to our own predicaments.

Being close to Christ does not exempt us from problems, hardships, sickness, or disappointment. However, what truly matters are the relationship we maintain with Christ Jesus. When we are in Christ, our circumstances are not meant to harm us; rather, they are meant to strengthen and deepen our spiritual walk with the Lord. God has reserved greater rewards for those who remain faithful during difficult times. Are you still honoring God in the midst of your situations? Are you determined not to give up? It is crucial to recognize that God often reveals Himself more powerfully when we honor and trust Him amidst the blazing furnace of trials. God rewards those who exhibit dedication, perseverance, and resilience. They are individuals who may be knocked down but refuse to stay down; instead, they rise again. When we boldly proclaim God's unchanging love and protection over our lives, even when others perceive death, God will prove Himself to them as the God who breathes life. The account of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, facing death and refusing to compromise their faith, serves as a powerful example. In the face of being thrown into the fiery furnace for refusing to bow down to King Nebuchadnezzar's golden image, they boldly declared, "If it be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace; and He will deliver us out of your hand, O king. But if not, let it be known to you, O king, that we do not serve your gods, nor will we worship the gold image which you have set up" (Daniel 3:17-18).

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Their brave proclamation clearly demonstrated their fearlessness in the face of death. They were unwilling to compromise their godly standards before the king, as many would do when confronted by governmental authorities. These three men chose to honor God rather than succumb to the fear of death. They understood that the earthly authority of their time could only have power over their lives if God permitted it, but it could never have power over their souls. It became evident to King Nebuchadnezzar and those around him that Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego had resolved not to dishonor their God by worshiping the king's false gods. What is truly remarkable about these three individuals is that they did not care whether God would save them or not. They were confident in the glory that awaited them for standing firm in their faith. They knew that the glory they would receive in God's kingdom far surpassed the temporary pain they would endure in the fiery furnace. They were certain that the God who was with them was greater than the scorching flames.

It is in the midst of critical life situations that true men and women of faith emerge. The quality of our faith is not measured by our attitude toward God when things are going well, during periods of smooth sailing, joy, and celebration. Instead, it is measured by our response when we are faced with adversity. It is in those moments, when we find ourselves between the Red Sea and the valley of the shadow of death, that we discover whether we truly embody faith. The words spoken by Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego in the face of death demonstrate that they were indeed people of faith. Their confidence in God extended beyond His ability to deliver them; it encompassed His right to choose not to deliver them. Their faith transcended human reasoning. To declare that you will continue to believe in someone's saving power even if they choose not to save you may seem foolish, but it reveals that their reliance was entirely on God. They had determined among themselves that if their God chose to deliver them, it would be so, but even if He chose not to, blessed be the name of the Lord in the Highest. This is the way we should respond to God in the midst of our most challenging situations. Let us tell God that we will continue to serve Him, whether He delivers us or not. We will praise His name, whether He blesses us or not. We will remain steadfast in His kingdom, whether sickness takes our lives or not. Such a response demonstrates that our desire to serve God is genuine, and our relationship with Him is not solely based on personal benefits. A relationship founded solely on benefits cannot withstand the test of time because once those benefits are removed, the relationship crumbles. A true believer should be prepared to stand for Christ in both good and difficult times.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Faith is the key to pleasing God. Those who possess true faith are not swayed by external circumstances or the opinions of others. They do not view their situations through the lens of the world but anchor their confidence in the finished work of Christ, eagerly awaiting its manifestation in their lives. Even if circumstances do not align with their expectations, they maintain unwavering trust in the saving grace of Christ.

Faith is not a product of human reasoning, wisdom, or intellect, which are subject to failure. Instead, it rests in the unfailing power of God. As stated in Scripture, "that your faith might not rest in the wisdom of men but in the power of God" (1 Corinthians 2:5). People of faith fix their gaze on the glory of God's promises rather than the temporary challenges surrounding them. They understand that suffering is transient and pales in comparison to the glory that will be revealed in them.

To live a life of faith, one must surrender to God's will and allow the Holy Spirit to be the sole influencer. When the Spirit of God takes charge, unfavorable circumstances hold no power over an individual. The choice to honor God prevails over being distressed by difficult situations. Even in the face of intense persecution and intimidation, a person of faith stands resolute, refusing to succumb to pressure or become disheartened. They remain calm, boldly proclaiming their identity in Christ Jesus to their tormentors.

In challenging times, it is crucial not to let circumstances affect one's confession. The words spoken during hardships carry weight and have a direct impact on faith. Negative utterances must be avoided, while thoughts and hearts should be saturated with the Word of God, submitting to the guidance of the Holy Spirit. Confessing one's identity in Christ becomes paramount:

"I take authority over negative thinking in Jesus' name. I have the mind of Christ and I walk according to the Spirit, not the flesh. My thoughts are led by the Spirit, meditating on His Word daily. Though I live in the flesh, I do not wage war according to the flesh, for my weapons are not carnal but mighty through God for tearing down strongholds. I reject any arguments or reasoning that contradicts the true knowledge of God. I bring every thought and life purpose into captivity to the obedience of Christ. With my whole heart, I will bless the Lord. Every thought and purpose in my life shall align with His will. My mind remains focused on God's presence. I possess the divine nature of Christ, and Satan has no power over me. My life brings glory to the Father. I do not keep a record of wrongs done to me. I overcome evil with good. My mind is set on heavenly things, not earthly matters. I belong to God's kingdom and have overcome the kingdom of Satan. 'Greater is He who is in me than he who is in the world.' I fear no evil, for my Heavenly Father is with me. Fear has no place within me. The comforting words of God and His Spirit uplift me daily. I am far from depression. I declare that I will not be overcome by depression today, Lord. Whatever I do prospers, for I am like a tree planted by streams of living water. No weapon formed against me shall prosper, for my righteousness is from the Lord. I am delivered from the evil of this present world. No harm or plague shall come near my dwelling, for the Lord has commanded His angels to guard me in all my ways. He accompanies me along my entire journey."

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

I am victorious. I am redeemed from the enemy's grasp. I am blessed. I am justified and no longer condemned. I am healed. I will overcome you, Satan, through Christ Jesus.

Cultivating a habit of positive confession is essential. The Word of God strengthens one in times of weakness. Meditate on it daily and speak what you believe. Acknowledge God's supremacy over every situation, recalling His goodness and mercy in your life. Make a confession that demonstrates your complete reliance on God. Declare to Him, "Even if You choose not to heal me, You are still my healer. Even if You choose not to bless me, You remain my provider." Such a confession affirms that your Christianity is not solely based on personal gain or prosperity but rooted in the salvation of your soul. The relationship you maintain with Christ is what truly matters, regardless of whether times are favorable or challenging, for in Him, you are more than a conqueror.

God's Promise to Honor Those Who Honor Him

God has consistently demonstrated His faithfulness to those who choose to honor Him, even in the midst of difficult circumstances. His promise to never leave nor forsake His faithful children remains unwavering. Even when it may seem that God is silent in the face of adversity, He is silently working behind the scenes, orchestrating events for the benefit of His faithful followers. In due time, He will surprise them with miracles that exceed all expectations.

There is a glorious crown awaiting those who continue to honor God by proclaiming His goodness and mercy over their lives. No matter how dark the present circumstances may appear, there is always a light at the end of the tunnel. That light stands ready to manifest greatness in the lives of those who remain steadfast in their devotion. The Word of the Lord affirms this truth, stating, "...For them that honor me I will honor, and they that despise me shall be lightly esteemed" (1 Samuel 2:30b).

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

God extends an invitation to honor Him above any challenge one may face. He promises to honor those who place Him above cancer, addiction, temporary failures, or limitations in progress. By honoring Him in the face of opposition, one can experience deliverance, upliftment, and blessings beyond human comprehension. Even in a world that may ridicule or oppose the proclamation of the Gospel, those who unashamedly honor God will find their names exalted among men.

In times of distress, God assures His faithful followers that He will never forsake them. He goes before them, straightening the crooked paths and transforming places of setback into positions of favor. Although setbacks may be temporary, they serve as opportunities for God to prepare a better future. When His hand is revealed in one's life, they will surpass those who once appeared to be ahead. The manifestation of God's glory in their lives will draw the attention of others, who will seek their help and desire to serve their God.

The example of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego illustrates God's faithfulness to those who honor Him above all else. Despite the fear of the king's decree, they refused to bow down to the golden image and instead chose to respect God. This act of honor positioned them for a divine intervention that astonished both the king and those around them. In the midst of the burning fiery furnace, God personally sent an angel to protect them, turning their place of distress into a place of comfort.

Just as God transformed their discomfort, He is capable of turning any distress into calmness, replacing pain with joy, failure with success, and disappointment with divine appointments. The God who honored Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego will do the same for those who remain faithful. Their testimony led the king to acknowledge the supremacy of their God and issue a decree that affirmed His greatness. The three Hebrew men were not only spared from harm but were also promoted in the province of Babylon.

Promotion awaits those who honor God in Christ Jesus. Even if it may not be immediately visible, a great promotion is on the horizon. God will use one's situation to announce His power to the world, just as He did through Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego. One's current position or qualifications are not obstacles to God's plan. He is not concerned with worldly credentials but rather with genuine conviction and willingness to surrender oneself for His service. Just as God can bring forth food from the dry land and water in the desert, He can transform the worst sinner and bring about something great.

Even in the face of persecution and hardship, one should not give up. Persecution is often a price to pay for the sake of the Gospel and one's salvation. The early apostles endured similar challenges, yet they remained unashamed and steadfast in their faith. Following their example, one should trust in God and not bow to pressure. Persecution can be an opportunity for God to reveal His power and make the persecutors acknowledge Him. The power of God revealed through one's ministry can cause people to abandon their gods and turn to the true God.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Whatever unpleasant situation one is currently facing as a child of God, they should remember that God's ways are different from human ways. He works in mysterious ways to prove Himself. Rather than succumbing to fear or compromising beliefs, one should remain strong in faith. Like the apostle Paul, who declared, "I am not ashamed, for I know whom I have believed, and I am sure that he is able to guard until the Day what has been entrusted to me" (2 Timothy 1:12), one should hold on to God's promises and remain faithful to the work entrusted to them.

In conclusion, God's promise to honor those who honor Him remains steadfast. He rewards those who choose to honor Him above all else, even in the face of challenging circumstances. By remaining faithful, one can experience divine interventions, promotions, and the manifestation of God's glory in their lives. Regardless of the opposition faced, one should hold on to their conviction, trust in God's mysterious ways, and confidently proclaim His goodness and mercy.

SUMMARY

Chapter six emphasizes the importance of honoring God even when facing adversaries and difficult circumstances. The chapter begins by reminding readers that God is always with them and will never abandon them, regardless of the challenges they face. Complaining and magnifying problems only give the devil more opportunities to succeed in his schemes. Instead, self-reflection and seeking God's grace and strength are encouraged.

The chapter acknowledges that the world is influenced by fallen angels and surrounded by enemies who aim to undermine one's pursuit of God's glory. The devil tries to instill doubt, make people blame God, and question His love. However, believers are urged to be more than conquerors and not adopt a language of defeat or victimhood. They should venture out, find reasons to smile, and experience joy, rather than staying indoors and dwelling on their situation. Reaching out to help others in distress and prioritizing their problems over one's own can lead to God working out answers for everyone.

The chapter emphasizes that being close to Christ does not exempt believers from problems and hardships. What matters is the relationship maintained with Christ and the faith exhibited during difficult times. The account of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego is presented as a powerful example of honoring God and refusing to compromise their faith, even in the face of death. They trusted in God's deliverance but were willing to accept His will, knowing that the glory they would receive in God's kingdom far surpassed temporary pain.

True men and women of faith are revealed in critical life situations, where their response to adversity demonstrates the quality of their faith. Faith is not swayed by external circumstances or human reasoning but rests in the unfailing power of God. People of faith focus on God's promises rather than temporary challenges, understanding that suffering is transient and overshadowed by the glory to be revealed.

Living a life of faith involves surrendering to God's will and allowing the Holy Spirit to be the sole influencer. Confession and positive thinking play a significant role in maintaining faith, with believers encouraged to speak words of faith and align their thoughts and hearts with the Word of God. Faith is seen as a key to pleasing God, and those who possess true faith eagerly await its manifestation in their lives, even if circumstances don't align with their expectations.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

The chapter concludes by highlighting God's promise to honor those who honor Him, even in difficult circumstances. God remains faithful and never forsakes His faithful children. Honoring God positions believers for divine intervention and blessings beyond human comprehension. The example of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego illustrates God's faithfulness and how honoring Him can lead to promotion and recognition even in the face of persecution. Perseverance and a genuine willingness to surrender for God's service can lead to great transformation and promotion in one's life.

Overall, the chapter emphasizes the importance of honoring God in the midst of adversity, remaining faithful, and trusting in His promises. It encourages believers to focus on their relationship with Christ, maintain a positive confession, and live a life of faith anchored in the power of God.

VITAL PRINCIPLES

- When you complain too much about your situation, you are unknowingly giving the devil more avenues to succeed with his plan in your life.
- Your situation cannot get hold of your life if you don't make it a priority
- God has a greater reward for those who are faithful in tough times
- When you remind God of His goodness in your life, He is forced to prove Himself the more in your present situation.
- God easily proves Himself when we honor and trust Him in the midst of the burning fiery furnace.
- Your reasons for serving God should not only be on the blessings you want from Him, but mainly because of the salvation of our soul.
- A true believer should be ready to stand for Christ even in both good and hard times.
- Faith is not a product of reasoning faculties, man's wisdom or intellect could fail, but God can never fail
- When the Spirit of God takes charge over all that has to do with you, that unfavorable situation cannot have power over you.
- Your faith follows in the footsteps of your confession
- Your thoughts and heart should be dominated by the words of God as you submit yourself under the command of the Holy Spirit
- It is the relationship we maintain with Christ that matters, whether the goings are good or not as far as we have Christ in us, we are more than conquerors

CHAPTER SEVEN

Avoid Dwelling on The Past

Forward Lookers Are Destiny Achievers

Individuals who aspire to achieve their destiny often find themselves trapped in a state of stagnation, not due to a lack of divine promises, but rather because they fail to disengage from their past mistakes, pains, offenses, conflicts, and transgressions. As believers, we are advised in scripture to discard the hurts, disappointments, and sinful behaviors of our previous experiences, as God has pledged to bring about a new transformation in our lives. "Do not dwell on the former things; do not ponder the things of the past. Behold, I am doing a new thing; now it springs forth, do you not perceive it? I will make a way in the wilderness and rivers in the desert" (Isaiah 43:18-19).

To progress towards the fulfillment of God's promises, it is imperative to let go of elements from the past that do not bring glory to God. Our previous errors and ungodly backgrounds should not hinder our breakthroughs. The devil schemes to divert our attention from the magnificent future that Christ has prepared for us. When we strive to advance in life, the devil may attempt to exploit our memories of the past to foster hatred and offense. Holding onto offense in our hearts prevents the manifestation of God's glory within us. The Holy Spirit cannot dwell in the life of an individual burdened by guilt and mistrust. To attract God's blessings, it is necessary to liberate ourselves from the pain of the past and any thoughts that do not honor God.

Continually dwelling on past guilt while neglecting the glorious future promised by God only ensnares us in the devil's trap, resulting in an inability to progress and perpetual stagnation. Under no circumstances should we allow our ungodly past to undermine our determination to achieve the vision and purpose bestowed upon us by God. Let go of the sinful aspects of the past and remain connected to our Heavenly Father. Through Christ, our past has been washed away, and a new future has been birthed within us. "Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation. The old has passed away; behold, the new has come" (2 Corinthians 5:17). Once we have accepted Jesus Christ as our personal Lord and Savior, our past misdeeds hold no power over us. God has already erased our past and forged a bright, prosperous future on our behalf. Our past no longer determines our future; it has lost its grip on us. God desires for us to nurture the newfound relationship we have with Christ Jesus, enabling us to fulfill our purpose and destiny in Him.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Maintain Focus on Your Goals and Purpose

To achieve true success, it is crucial to remain steadfast in your goals and committed to your purpose. Rather than being disheartened by past mistakes and failures, draw courage from the newfound vision you have discovered in Christ Jesus. Sustained focus and unwavering determination are essential if you desire to attain the bright future that God has meticulously prepared for you. Regardless of the current challenging circumstances you may be facing, they must not in any way hinder your focus or convictions. By maintaining a continuous connection with God's Kingdom and allowing His Word to dominate your heart, no matter the storms that come your way, they will be powerless to impede your pursuit of God's grand plan for your life. In order to manifest the magnificent vision that God has planted within you, it is imperative to cast aside the negative remnants of your ungodly past and concentrate on the righteousness of God and the path that lies ahead.

To bring that divine vision to fruition, it is necessary to possess a strong and resolute mindset in your pursuit of life. Do not allow discouragement to take root in your heart, nor lose faith in God's ability to guide you through your challenges. Satan always seeks to exploit our doubts and lead us back into the same pitfalls of our past. One may be tempted to entertain thoughts such as, "When I used to engage in drug dealing and illicit activities, I was financially secure, able to meet all my obligations, acquire luxuries, and travel freely. But since I surrendered my life to Christ, I struggle to afford decent accommodation and live comfortably. It appears that God cannot bless me with wealth. I cannot continue like this. The better days seem elusive. Perhaps I should return to my former way of life, as it seemed superior to my current circumstances." These perilous temptations from the devil must be swiftly rebuked when they arise. We must not provide any foothold for the enemy in our lives. Allowing negative circumstances to consume our thoughts, while forgetting the ways in which Christ has already helped us overcome, invites Satan into our hearts. Once the devil gains a hold on our thoughts, he will promptly contaminate them with ungodliness.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Under no circumstances should tough circumstances entice you to romanticize a past life that fails to glorify your Heavenly Father. Have you considered that, had you continued in a life of criminality and sinfulness, you might have been killed or imprisoned by now? If you had not accepted Christ as your savior, have you pondered what could have befallen you? Never allow present limitations to cause you to forget God's goodness in your life. Christ did not promise us a trouble-free existence. He never assured us immunity from hardship and pain in this world. His only pledge was that amidst every trial, affliction, and hardship we encounter, He will undoubtedly see us through. In Christ Jesus, we are conquerors. Therefore, patiently await the manifestation of God's deliverance in the midst of your difficult situation. Focus more on developing your relationship with Christ Jesus, rather than contemplating a return to your former way of life.

Here are six temptations that may entice us to dwell in the past:

1. Temptation to believe that the worldly life we once led (involving clubbing, immoral behavior, excessive drinking, etc.) was more enjoyable than the perceived "monotonous" new life we have found in Christ Jesus.
2. Temptation to doubt God's promises for our lives, leading us to reflect on our previous ways and consider reverting to them.
3. Temptation to lose hope in the abundant future that Christ has in store for us due to our present challenging circumstances, potentially luring us back to our old lifestyle.
4. Temptation to dwell on past mistakes, fostering self-doubt and a belief that nothing good can come from us.
5. Temptation to remain attached to worldly possessions acquired through ungodly means.
6. Temptation to cling to old friendships where we used to engage in sinful activities together, fearing the loss of companionship and shared experiences.

Remember, staying focused on your goals and purpose requires resilience, faith, and a steadfast commitment to the path God has set before you.

Overcoming Family Limitations: Embracing Your Bright Future

It is essential to recognize that one's family background should not act as a hindrance to a prosperous future. Many individuals have mistakenly believed that their family's circumstances can influence their life achievements. However, in Christ Jesus, believers are liberated from all family limitations and curses. The potential for achievement knows no bounds. Nothing can impede or hinder your progress. What may stop others cannot hinder you. Where others fail, you will succeed, and where others lament, you will rejoice, for Christ has already overcome it all on your behalf. Family bondages hold no power over you, and oppressors cannot dictate your life, family, or career. Through Christ, you have the authority to break every yoke that has plagued your family, and any obstacles preventing progress in every area of your lives shall be removed in Jesus' name. Amen.

Certain families may encounter limitations, such as an imposed age limit or a recurring stagnation in their careers, unable to progress further. Some families may also face recurring illnesses that affect every member. These familial burdens and bondages have been nullified by the deliverance found in Christ. They have no authority over us, and they cannot hinder our pursuit of the positions God has destined for us.

You are already emancipated from your past. The curses that may have afflicted your forefathers and family lineage hold no power over you. What may have hindered your parents cannot hinder you. You will surpass the achievements of your parents and start where they left off. Your family background cannot determine your future life's purpose. Do not believe that your parents' inability to afford your education will prevent your success. That is not the truth. Your parents' financial limitations cannot impede your progress. You hold the responsibility for what can stop you. If you remain determined and work diligently, you can achieve anything that God has placed in your heart. Family influence or connections are not prerequisites for attaining high positions in life. Rather, tap into the unique resources that Christ has deposited within you. Discover your true potential, for the world eagerly awaits your manifestation. Many individuals who have made significant impacts in this world came from impoverished family backgrounds. Their parents were poor, unable to provide daily sustenance, yet they refused to allow their circumstances to dictate their future. Never think that your parents are solely responsible for your life. While they have a role to play, the greatest responsibility lies within you. When you achieve greatness, it is for your benefit, not for others.

No one owes you anything in this world, including your parents. While every parent desires their children to succeed, they cannot provide what they themselves do not possess. Consequently, they may not be able to fulfill your expectations. Not every parent experienced love and care during their formative years, which may hinder their ability to express it to you when needed. Their limitations should not lead to harboring grudges. Try to empathize with their circumstances and avoid placing your trust in anyone except God. Anyone has the potential to disappoint you, as everyone is preoccupied with their own problems and may not have the capacity to give you the attention you seek. Relying solely on others can be perilous. Only when God places your concerns in someone's heart can they truly help you.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

God encourages us to forget the past, particularly when it bears no righteousness. He wants us to reach forth toward the greatness He has prepared for our future. Dwelling on the past can impede the realization of our goals and life purpose. While God has the power to remove unfavorable situations, He allows them to test our faith, shape us, and mold us into the individuals we are meant to be in Christ Jesus.

The devil's aim is to make us question God's love and purpose for our lives, hoping we will return to our old lives from which Christ has set us free. As believers, we must not allow any obstacles or challenges to diminish our confidence in God's promises. These hindrances are fabricated by Satan, designed to draw us back to our former lifestyles. However, as followers of Christ, we shall overcome.

The evil plans of the enemy shall not prevail in our lives, for we carry the mark of Christ's greatness within us. Looking back on our past provides an avenue for Satan to enter our lives. Jesus Christ does not desire for us to look back; instead, He urges us to leave our past behind and focus on the future He has planned for us. Successful people and great achievers are forward thinkers. They see beyond what others see and are passionate about their vision and the positive impact they can make in their environment. To remain faithful to God's purpose for our lives, we must avoid the trap of looking back unless we seek to learn from it or use it to glorify God for what He has done in our lives.

The story of Lot's wife illustrates the danger of disregarding God's instruction not to look back at our former worldly ways. In Genesis 19, two angels sent by God were visiting Lot in Sodom and Gomorrah, preparing to destroy the cities. The angels urged Lot and his family to flee for their lives. Reluctant at first, Lot eventually heeded the angels' warning and left the city with his wife and daughters. The angels instructed them not to look back, but Lot's wife disobeyed and cast a longing glance behind her. Instantly, she was transformed into a pillar of salt.

God showed mercy to Lot's family, yet his wife chose to defy the angels' instructions. Adhering to their guidance would have placed them under God's protection. It is possible that she was enticed by the allure of material possessions or cherished friendships she left behind in the city. If you desire to safely navigate through the darkest tunnels of misfortune and adversity in your life, it is imperative not to make the costly mistake of looking back. Christ stated, "No one who puts his hand to the plow and looks back is fit for the kingdom of God" (Luke 9:62). This implies that continuously dwelling on one's past life of sin, failure, limitations, disappointment, offense, and worldly pleasures renders one unfit for God's kingdom. Your focus should be on nurturing your new relationship with Christ, steadfastly holding onto God's promises. No limitations can prevent you from fulfilling your purpose. You are a divine project that can never be abandoned. God has already accomplished great works in your life. Your existence is meant to manifest what He has already completed within you. The obstacles you encounter are part of the process, and in due time, your glory will radiate brightly.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Maintaining a Forward-Looking Mindset: Focusing On the Finish Line

In the pursuit of our faith journey, it is crucial to keep our minds fixed on the ultimate goal, just like athletes in a marathon race strive for the finish line and the coveted medal. As believers, we are engaged in a spiritual race, and the forces of darkness are actively working to hinder our progress towards reaching the finish line. To emerge victorious in this race, we must maintain a mindset that remains steadfastly focused on the goal. We should not allow detractors to discourage us or remind us of past failures that could derail our determination to press on. By refusing to give these detractors the attention they seek and directing our focus towards the end point, we will find ourselves making significant strides in the race.

The kingdom of darkness stands as a competitor, seeking to rob us of the crown of glory promised by Christ. It is imperative that we do not lose sight of the finish line, as it is the place where God's promises for our lives are fulfilled. It is where our visions and dreams become a tangible reality, and where we receive the glorious prize for our unwavering faith and complete dependence on Christ Jesus.

To successfully complete the race and emerge as champions, we must adopt a forward-looking mindset. We cannot afford to be distracted by the schemes of the devil. The enemy's desire is for us to forfeit the ultimate prize, and this can only happen if we lose focus on the finish line. Looking back at our past can divert our attention from the vision God has placed within our hearts. Therefore, we must heed the words of the apostle Paul who said, "Brothers and sisters, I do not consider myself yet to have taken hold of it. But one thing I do: Forgetting what is behind and straining toward what is ahead, I press on toward the goal to win the prize for which God has called me heavenward in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 3:13-14).

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Apostle Paul exhibited unwavering determination in his race for the kingdom. He did not focus on the pain, suffering, or imprisonment he endured while passionately fulfilling his calling to win souls and proclaim the Gospel of grace. He chose to forget the past hurts and instead looked forward to the glorious prize and the reward found in his salvation through Christ Jesus.

Our primary focus should be on the crown of glory that awaits us. There is undoubtedly a reward for those who possess a forward-looking mindset. We should fix our gaze on the promises God has for our lives, rather than dwelling on past failures and disappointments. By avoiding the temptation to look backward, we position ourselves for limitless possibilities. The sky will not merely be the limit but the starting point for our journey of greatness.

When to Reflect On The Past

It is true that, as human beings, we possess the ability to recall our past experiences. This is what sets us apart from robots. There are instances when reflecting on the past can be beneficial, especially when it serves to glorify the goodness of God in our lives. When we desire to draw strength and affirm our belief in what God has done for us, we can look back and acknowledge His wonderful works. By doing so, we can strengthen our faith, knowing that the same God who has delivered us in the past is capable of delivering us from our present challenges. King David serves as a prime example of someone who acknowledged God's past deliverance when faced with a life-threatening situation. In his confrontation with Goliath, David courageously declared that the same God who had rescued him from the paws of a lion and a bear would deliver him from the hands of the Philistine giant (1 Samuel 17:34-37). David drew strength from his past experiences, recognizing that God was using them to prepare him for greater battles.

We can also learn valuable lessons from our past misdeeds to avoid repeating the same mistakes in the future. Reflection on the past can be beneficial when it encourages positive growth and supports our present Christian living. However, when our past is characterized by shame, ungodliness, and rebellion, and it does not contribute to our spiritual well-being, Christ calls us to leave it behind and move forward with our lives. He desires us to set our focus on the glorious future He has prepared for us.

Remember, your future is bright. You are a person of great destiny, and nothing can hinder you from fulfilling your dreams and purposes. God has already planned and secured your future. The challenges you are currently facing cannot prevent you from attaining it. Christ accompanies you on this race toward the glorious crown. He watches over you day and night, and He has sent His guiding angels to protect you from the harm of the enemy. God is fully aware of your difficult situation, and even when His voice seems silent, He is diligently working things out for your good. Whatever the enemy may have intended to use to hinder your God-given purpose, when the power of God manifests in your life at the appointed time, those distressing circumstances will be turned around for your benefit. Everything will fall into place according to God's perfect plan in Christ Jesus. Amen!

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

SUMMARY

This chapter emphasizes the importance of avoiding dwelling on the past in order to achieve personal growth and success. It highlights that holding onto past mistakes, pains, offenses, conflicts, and transgressions can hinder individuals from progressing towards their destiny. The chapter draws inspiration from scriptures, urging believers to let go of past hurts and sinful behaviors, and focus on the new transformation that God promises.

The chapter identifies several temptations that may entice individuals to dwell in the past, such as believing that the old worldly life was more enjoyable, doubting God's promises, losing hope in the future, dwelling on past mistakes, clinging to possessions acquired through ungodly means, and remaining attached to old friendships centered around sinful activities. It warns against succumbing to these temptations and encourages maintaining focus on goals and purpose.

Furthermore, the chapter addresses the issue of family limitations and emphasizes that family background should not hinder a prosperous future. It asserts that in Christ Jesus, believers are liberated from family limitations and curses, and nothing can impede their progress. It encourages individuals to tap into the resources that Christ has deposited within them, discover their true potential, and not rely solely on others for success.

The chapter cautions against romanticizing a past life that fails to glorify God and reminds readers to focus on nurturing their relationship with Christ. It cites the story of Lot's wife as an example of the danger of looking back and not obeying God's instructions. It also stresses the importance of maintaining a forward-looking mindset and not allowing detractors or past failures to derail determination. The chapter urges individuals to keep their minds fixed on the ultimate goal and press on towards the finish line, where God's promises are fulfilled.

In conclusion, the chapter emphasizes the need to let go of the past, avoid dwelling on it, and instead focus on the new transformation and future that God has prepared. It encourages individuals to maintain focus on goals and purpose, overcome family limitations, and adopt a forward-looking mindset in order to achieve personal growth, success, and the fulfillment of God's promises.

VITAL PRINCIPLES

- God those not need our past to determine our future
- When you are in Christ Jesus, your past don's not matter anymore what matter is the future that God has prepare for you
- Men and women of vision are forward lookers
- Looking back is a trap from Satan
- Your Family background cannot decide your future if you are in Christ Jesus
- To successfully complete the races, your focus must be on the finish line
- Champions are forward lookers
- The glorious prize is for those that put behind the past, but straining forward to what lies ahead
- The past memories should be used to glorify the goodness of God in your lives
- You can recall the past only when you believe strength and courage can be gain from it
- Learn from the past, to avoid repeating same mistake in the future.

CHAPTER EIGHT

The Efficacy of Praising and Worship

Praise and worship are to the Spirit of God what honey is to bees —vital nourishment.

Praise and worship hold a profound place in the realm of the Spirit, akin to the relationship between bees and honey. King David, the Psalmist, eloquently expressed his adoration and reverence for the King of Glory, urging us to praise God in His sanctuary and exalt Him for His mighty deeds and surpassing greatness. David's words in Psalm 150:1-6 exemplify the heart of praise and worship.

A heart that is filled with praise and worship becomes a magnet for God's presence. Melodious songs of praise and worship possess the power to comfort a troubled mind and uplift a downtrodden soul. When engulfed in the darkness of the soul and the world appears to be in chaos, one should learn to draw strength from uplifting songs of praise and worship. Express gratitude to God, thanking Him in advance for forthcoming victories, good health, success, and breakthroughs. Gratitude should flow from our hearts, recognizing the marvelous works He has accomplished in our lives and the lives of our families. Regardless of our circumstances, we must always find reasons to praise the Lord, acknowledging His goodness, loveliness, kindness, and worthiness of our adoration.

Amidst adversity, when enemies desire to instill sadness and despair, find joy by singing songs of praise to God or listening to uplifting worship music. Such an atmosphere cannot accommodate depression and grief. A saddened and despondent heart remains insensitive to the Spirit of God. By engaging in praise and worship, we declare to the adversary our victory in

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Christ. We boldly proclaim, "Satan, you are a liar! Though you desire my sadness and despair, my heart overflows with joy. I will worship the majestic King of Glory every day of my life."

The Impact of Praise and Worship during Life's Storms

Singing songs of praise and worship to God in the midst of life's storms compels God to act swiftly and perform the unexpected. Regardless of the situation, we should always find reasons to bless the name of the Lord, expressing gratitude for His goodness and mercy. When making requests to God through prayer, it is vital to accompany our petitions with songs of praise and worship. Through thanksgiving, we demonstrate appreciation for the good things God has done and anticipate the wonderful works He will manifest once again in our lives. Let us continually acknowledge God's mightiness, reminding Him of His greatness.

While our prayers may occasionally miss the mark, praise and worship, when offered with melodious hymns and heartfelt sincerity, position us to attract God's unlimited blessings and favor upon our souls. Praise and worship are never amiss in God's eyes; they are His will, and heaven resounds with them. The heavenly host delights in our melodious songs of praise and worship.

Adoration and thanksgiving to God must emanate from a sincere and blameless heart. True worship, offered in complete surrender to the Spirit of God, draws His presence. Jesus Christ instructed believers to worship God in truth and in spirit, affirming, "God is a Spirit, and those who worship Him must worship in spirit and truth" (John 4:24). This means that we must approach God with a heart genuinely focused on Him, purifying our spirits and aligning them with the Spirit of the Father. By praising and worshiping God in truth and spirit, we position ourselves to capture God's attention. Consequently, He showers us with His boundless blessings, grace, and favor. Wholehearted thanks offered to God create an atmosphere that captures His attention, enabling Him to perform the unexpected in our lives.

Emulating King David's Example

King David serves as a prime example of understanding the efficacy and power of rendering praise and worship to God Almighty. As the author of the book of Psalms, David consistently used harmonious songs of praise and worship to magnify God's name, both in times of prosperity and adversity. Before ascending to the throne of Israel, David spent a significant portion of his life in caves, evading King Saul's relentless pursuit. Even in the harshest conditions and dire circumstances, David continued to praise and worship God, acknowledging His unparalleled greatness, goodness, and protection.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

David comprehended the importance of praising and worshiping God. He consistently offered a sacrifice of praise, regardless of the circumstances. David approached God with unwavering focus, recognizing that only He could deliver him from his troubles. David's faith was steadfast, and his trust solely rested in the Lord. When David prayed, he always acknowledged God's mightiness through tunes and harmonious songs of praise and worship. Placing all his trust in God, David firmly believed that only He could rescue him from the hands of his enemies. And the God who neither slumbers nor sleeps attentively listened to David and granted his petitions.

Similar to David, we should continually acknowledge God's mightiness, regardless of our circumstances. We should approach God's presence with words of thanksgiving and hearts overflowing with praise, knowing that He alone can deliver us from our predicaments. When the ark of God was returned to the city of David after years of exile, David, in gratitude and praise, danced before the Lord with all his might, adorned with a linen ephod (2 Samuel 6:14). This exemplifies David's nature of consistently blessing and adoring God, irrespective of his circumstances.

Expressing Gratitude in Times of Adversity

It is easy to thank God when life is smooth and filled with abundance, when the table is set with plentiful food. Expressing gratitude and blessing the name of the Lord for His provision comes effortlessly during such times. However, it takes unwavering faith to acknowledge God's mightiness amidst challenging predicaments, when we find ourselves in the valley of the shadow of death, and the world appears to turn against us. It takes a person of strong faith to bless the name of God in such circumstances. It requires a heart that wholly relies on God to declare, "Blessed be the name of the Lord God Most High, the provider for the hungry," even when there is no food on the table. We thank Him for His unwavering love, mighty works, and unparalleled greatness.

God desires our praise, not only during good times but also amidst adversity. When we praise and worship God during challenging times, we demonstrate that our love for Him surpasses the blessings we seek from Him. It signifies that our salvation is not solely based on the benefits of serving God. Rather, we stand with Christ, ready to carry the cross of His grace wherever He leads us—be it in the wilderness, in rainy seasons, or in times of drought.

The Efficacy of Praise and Worship in Opening the Widows of Heaven

Praise and worship create an atmosphere in which God is quick to shower His unlimited blessings, gifts, and favor. Analogous to visiting a king in his palace, seeking his favor requires first bowing down, honoring him, and acknowledging his greatness—the mightiness of his kingdom and his wonderful attributes. Such praises have the potential to find favor in the king's sight by elevating his ego. Similarly, approaching the presence of God with a heart of thanksgiving and appreciation for who He is can yield even greater blessings in our lives.

A powerful example of the impact of praise and worship is found in the story of Apostle Paul and Brother Silas. Despite being imprisoned and subjected to humiliation and physical pain, they chose to praise and worship God. Instead of succumbing to self-pity and bitterness, they turned the atmosphere of the prison dungeon into a sanctuary of praise. In response to their passionate display of devotion, the Spirit of God manifested mightily in their midst, causing an earthquake that shook the foundations of the prison, opened all the doors, and loosed everyone's chains.

The dire circumstances faced by Paul and Silas did not call for songs of praise and thanksgiving to God. Many individuals in similar situations might have succumbed to physical pain and self-pity. However, Paul and Silas saw their predicament as a reason to praise and give thanks to God, just as they would in times of abundance. They remained conscious of their faith in God and refused to let the condition of the prison affect their trust in Him. Instead, their situation served to strengthen their belief, gratitude, prayers, and praise. Their faith remained unwavering, and they fully grasped that nothing could separate them from the love of God, not even the confines of the prison cell. God, pleased with their unwavering faith, performed a great work in their lives.

As the prison keeper witnessed the miraculous events that unfolded, he was ready to take his own life, assuming the prisoners had escaped. But Paul reassured him that they were still present, leading the keeper and his entire household to embrace Christianity. This extraordinary display of divine intervention made the prison keeper realize that only a powerful and great God could accomplish such miracles. Consequently, he and his household surrendered their lives to Christ.

Paul and Silas exemplified unwavering faith, understanding that it takes faith to please God. Their ability to bless God's name, offer praise, and sing hymns of worship under immense pressure, tension, and threat to their lives demonstrated their trust in Him. It became evident that God is not moved by the multitude of words or the loudness of our petitions but rather by our faith. He is interested in those who, in desperate circumstances, find reasons to honor His holy name and declare His greatness.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Just as honey is to bees, the presence of God is readily joined to the atmosphere of praise and worship. When we offer a sacrifice of praise, supernatural things begin to happen. Let us cultivate the habit of continuously praising and worshiping the name of God, following the examples of David, Paul, and Silas, regardless of the circumstances in which we find ourselves. By doing so, we open the windows of heaven and invite God's abundant blessings and favor into our lives.

The Purpose and Power of Praise: Fostering Spiritual Growth

It is essential to understand that God does not depend on our praise and worship. Praising God is not a means for Him to discover His greatness and lovability. Rather, we engage in praise because we need His overflowing presence in our lives. God is not subject to emotional fluctuations; He remains constant, unchanged throughout eternity. Expressing exuberant emotions while praising God does not affect His essence in any way. The act of praising God primarily benefits ourselves. Acknowledging His mightiness is not a favor we bestow upon Him; it is for our own edification.

Let us be clear: God's relevance does not hinge upon our praise and worship. Just as honey can exist without bees, God's greatness is unaffected by our decision to praise Him or not. His splendor remains unaltered. However, it is we who require the presence of God to thrive. To attract His magnanimous presence and witness His mighty works in our lives, we must offer a sacrificial praise, honoring His greatness and expressing gratitude for His goodness, kindness, and care.

In the heavenly realm, angelic beings are assigned the duty of continuously singing songs of praise and worship to the Almighty. It is a privilege for us, as earthly creations, to join in this divine chorus. Although the heavenly host's melodious praises are sufficient, God finds delight in observing His earthly children offering praise and worship. He longs for our presence and desires to witness our gratefulness for His abundant blessings and mercy. When we offer a sacrifice of praise, we draw the presence of our Heavenly Father near. With His presence among us, all things fall into place, and our petitions and heartfelt desires find fulfillment.

Cultivating a Melodious Heart

Commence each day with a melody in your heart. Upon awakening, find cause for rejoicing and gladness, expressing gratitude for the gift of a new day. Approach your daily activities with heightened expectations and a joyful countenance. Let cheerfulness fill your heart, and do not allow anything to steal your joy. Remain positive, even in the face of discouragement. Every disappointment becomes an opportunity for new beginnings, and setbacks lead to breakthroughs. When you maintain a joyful disposition despite challenging circumstances, you disappoint the forces of evil, and Heaven smiles upon you, acknowledging your positivity. Continually remind yourself of the promises you have received through Christ Jesus: redemption from the curse of the law, deliverance from lack, healing from sickness, liberation from spiritual death, and a transformation from poverty to abundance. The blessings bestowed upon Abraham are also yours. Poverty has no place in your life. Your Heavenly Father provides for all your needs according to His abundant riches in glory, through Christ Jesus. The Lord is your Shepherd, and you lack nothing. Jesus willingly endured poverty so that you might enjoy overflowing wealth. He came to give you abundant life. You have received the abundance of His grace and the gift of righteousness to reign in Christ Jesus.

By maintaining a positive disposition and a melodious heart, regardless of the depth of the dark tunnel you may be traversing, you will undoubtedly reach the light at the end. As you continue to praise and worship God, embracing the beauty of His Holiness, the Spirit of God accompanies you on your journey towards the Promised Land. He comforts and guides you, ensuring your steps align with His divine purpose. No matter what challenges arise, your joy remains unshaken because you have offered yourself as a living sacrifice of praise. Consequently, the Spirit of God, the source of peace, continually dwells within you, empowering you to navigate life's trials in the victorious name of Christ Jesus. Amen.

SUMMARY

In Chapter Eight, the significance and impact of praise and worship in the spiritual realm are explored. The chapter emphasizes the importance of praising and worshiping God with a sincere and blameless heart, acknowledging His greatness, goodness, and worthiness of adoration. Praise and worship create a magnet for God's presence and comfort the troubled mind and uplift the downtrodden soul.

The chapter highlights the power of praise and worship during life's storms. It encourages believers to sing songs of praise and worship in the midst of adversity, declaring victory in Christ and dispelling depression and grief. Praise and worship, accompanied by gratitude, create an atmosphere that attracts God's attention and compels Him to act swiftly and perform the unexpected.

The example of King David is presented as a model of understanding the efficacy and power of rendering praise and worship to God. David consistently praised and worshiped God, regardless of his circumstances, recognizing that only God could deliver him from his troubles. David's unwavering faith and trust in God serve as an inspiration to continually acknowledge God's mightiness and approach His presence with thanksgiving and praise.

Expressing gratitude in times of adversity is highlighted as an act of strong faith. It takes unwavering trust in God to bless His name and give thanks even when facing challenging predicaments. Praise and worship offered during difficult times demonstrate that our love for God surpasses the blessings we seek from Him and signify our commitment to follow Him in all circumstances.

The chapter also discusses the impact of praise and worship in opening

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

the windows of heaven. Just as praising and honoring a king can attract favor, approaching God with a heart of thanksgiving and appreciation can lead to greater blessings in our lives. The story of Apostle Paul and Brother Silas, who praised and worshiped God while imprisoned, is cited as an example of how praise and worship can lead to divine intervention and miracles.

The purpose and power of praise are explained as a means to foster spiritual growth. While God does not depend on our praise and worship, engaging in praise benefits ourselves by attracting His presence and witnessing His mighty works. Praising God is an act of edification for our own spiritual well-being.

The chapter concludes with the encouragement to cultivate a melodious heart, beginning each day with gratitude and rejoicing. It emphasizes the importance of maintaining a positive disposition and joy, regardless of circumstances, and reminds believers of the promises received through Christ Jesus. By praising and worshiping God, believers invite the Spirit of God into their lives, empowering them to overcome challenges and navigate life's trials in the victorious name of Christ Jesus.

Overall, Chapter Eight highlights the efficacy of praise and worship in the spiritual realm, encouraging believers to continually praise and worship God with sincerity, gratitude, and a melodious heart.

VITAL PRINCIPLES

- The Spirit of God easily move in an atmosphere of praise and worship,
- Songs of praise and worship to God can bring comfort to a depressed heart,
- We can pray amiss, but we cannot praise and worship God amiss,
- In prayers we demand for something, but in praise and worship we demand for everything,
- We easily attract God's attention when we worship Him in Spirit and Truth,
- Just as God need our thanksgiving in good times, so He need it more in Hard times,
- It takes Faith for someone to please God during Hard times,
- It takes a heart of Faith for God to act on our behalf
- God is not interested in your appearance, position or too much words, what God is interested in is your Faith,
- It takes an act of Faith for God to be move to do the unexpected,
- God can consider our prayers before He can act, but it takes nothing for God to act in an atmosphere of praise and worship.

CHAPTER NINE

The Path Way to Your Destiny

It takes nothing for the determined mind to go through the way to their destiny

The journey towards abundance, peace, and great accomplishments can be likened to the narrow path described in the scriptures, leading to eternal life. As it is written, "Because narrow is the gate and difficult is the way which leads to life, and there are few who find it" (Matthew 7:14). This narrow path is not an easy one, as it is filled with obstacles such as snakes, scorpions, thorns, and various forms of negativity that seek to harm and hinder those who choose to embark upon it. If one desires to fulfill their God-given purpose, they must be prepared to endure the hardships, humiliations, and rejections that accompany this path. It requires tremendous courage and determination to navigate the road to one's divine destiny while staying focused amidst numerous distractions and obstacles.

Nevertheless, when one seeks strength from God to maintain their focus, no obstacle or challenge can impede their progress. In fact, those very hindrances that enemies intend to use as stumbling blocks will instead serve as stepping stones, propelling individuals effortlessly towards their divine destination. Rather than halting their journey, these obstacles will facilitate their advancement. It is proclaimed that the things intended to obstruct your path will work in your favor and contribute to your progress.

In life, there should be no room for dejection or sadness, for you are cherished by God as the apple of His eye. He promises to make a way for you even in the wilderness. In His incredible wisdom, God can transform the adversities meant to harm you into advantages. You must comprehend that, as a child of destiny, that which is destined for you cannot pass you by. Therefore, there is no need to feel disheartened or despondent if you are denied a promotion that rightfully belongs to you. Continue to exert your best efforts and remain undeterred. When the opportune moment arrives, you may be granted a double promotion. Allow me to share an extraordinary testimony of a lady who, despite being denied promotion for many years due to the jealousy and insecurity of her superiors, persevered with unwavering faith. This exceptional woman remained dedicated and prayerful, continually excelling in her work within the organization. Eventually, a written petition was filed against some of her senior colleagues, including the manager and assistant manager, alleging misconduct and financial impropriety. Consequently, they were suspended pending a thorough investigation. Upon examining the company's records, the panel assigned to investigate the matter discovered that this remarkable woman possessed the most outstanding work history and should have been promoted to a higher managerial position long ago. In light of their findings, the panel appointed her as the acting manager, assuming the role of her former boss. Following the completion of the investigation, the suspended manager, assistant manager, and several other senior employees were found guilty and subsequently dismissed. As the most senior and accomplished individual in the company, this lady was appointed as the company manager, accompanied by a salary increase and enhanced benefits. She triumphed over her tormentors. Therefore, should you find yourself facing mistreatment and unfairness from your superiors, do not be discouraged. Continue to exert your best efforts. When the favor of God locates you, those who once looked down upon you and sought to frustrate your endeavors will end up serving under your leadership. You will rise to a position where they will heed your commands.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Letting Go Of Others' Approval and Embracing Divine Connections

It is unnecessary to constantly seek the approval of others. Those who are meant to be in your life will remain by your side, while those who are not meant for you will naturally depart. Rejection from those whom you deeply care for should never diminish your self-worth. Their rejection signifies that they were not destined to be in your life in the first place. Those who are meant for you and reciprocate your love will genuinely desire to be with you. You need not go to great lengths to make someone accept you, for such individuals are not the right companions to associate with. Those who genuinely wish to be with you will be content in your presence just as you are. Understand that it is impossible to please everyone, as there are some individuals who cannot be satisfied or appeased. Do what you can and leave the rest to God.

Always Trust In the Lord

Those who place their trust in the Lord and remain steadfast in their goals will undoubtedly fulfill their divine destiny. The difficulties you currently face are part of God's plan to elevate you to a higher level in life. As long as you are alive and dwell in this world, you will continuously encounter various challenges. It is an ongoing process. Even after achieving one goal, you will confront new challenges. Remember that we are destined for great exploits, constantly achieving more, ascending higher, and possessing our rightful blessings. Regardless of the goal you are presently pursuing, it must never negatively impact your relationships with those whom God has placed under your care. Your family and children are the most precious gifts bestowed upon you by God. You must prioritize their well-being and never neglect to devote time and affection to them. While pursuing your aspirations, do not become too preoccupied to forsake your family. Life continues beyond the attainment of great dreams, and you will always need a happy and supportive family to rely upon. Many individuals make the mistake of placing their ambitions above their marriages and children. In the pursuit of their visions, they neglect their spouses, leading to disagreements within the family that often result in divorce. God's intention is not for you to divorce or disrupt your relationships while striving for a vision. Exercise wisdom in all your endeavors. God cannot support a vision that jeopardizes the most precious gift in your life—your beloved family. You must carry them along. Even amidst your busy schedule, create time to be with your family and take your children out. Enjoy activities together, such as visiting the cinema or playgrounds. Foster a loving and affectionate environment. This is what true happiness entails—creating cherished memories with your family and loved ones. Do not allow yourself to become too engrossed in pursuing your dreams that you forget about the most important people in your life. You will require their presence and support. Take up the responsibility of being a guiding figure in the lives of your children. Let them remain close to you and learn from both your imperfections, to understand that they are imperfect, and your perfections, to inspire them towards wholeness. When you achieve greatness and eventually depart from this world, they will be the ones to carry on your legacy.

The Varying Execution of God's Plans for Our Lives

The individual purposes that God has ordained for each person in this world differ greatly. Every individual has been uniquely created with a specific purpose, and the pathway to fulfilling that divine purpose has already been predetermined by God. It is imperative that we refrain from imitating others, as what may be suitable for one person may not align with our own journey. It is not uncommon for individuals to abandon their careers in the face of minor challenges. However, it should be recognized that every significant business venture has encountered obstacles along the way. Even the most successful entrepreneurs have experienced bankruptcy at some point, yet they persevered, displaying unwavering determination to overcome adversity. They worked diligently to settle their debts, resulting in the establishment of renowned multinational enterprises. It is crucial not to be swayed by the success of others in their respective fields and hastily abandon our own paths due to temporary challenges. The trials we encounter signify that we are in the very domain where God intends us to be. The enemy recognizes our calling and endeavors to hinder and discourage us. Yet, when we remain steadfast and continue to do what is right—investing our time, energy, and resources—we will undoubtedly reap a bountiful harvest.

Prioritize Acknowledging God

In all our pursuits, it is paramount to always prioritize God by making Him the focal point. As the scripture wisely advises, "In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths" (Proverbs 3:6). By placing God at the forefront of every endeavor, He will guide us along the right path. Regrettably, many individuals often take God for granted and behave as though they can accomplish things in isolation, without His involvement. We must consistently acknowledge God's presence and seek His guidance as we navigate our daily activities. God should occupy the supreme position in everything we do. We should seek His guidance in decision-making, wisdom in discerning the right course, and strength to overcome obstacles. God should be our foremost and ultimate concern. The scripture admonishes us to prioritize seeking the kingdom of God and His righteousness, with the assurance that everything else will be added unto us. When we seek success, let us seek God's kingdom first. When we desire wealth, let the kingdom of God take precedence. And when we yearn for all the good things in life, the kingdom of God and His righteousness should be our primary pursuit. When we obey God's Word, He promises to bless us abundantly, surpassing our requests for success, wealth, and the fulfillment of our desires. God always responds favorably to those who consistently acknowledge Him and place Him above all else.

You Are Unique and Special

You are not like anyone else; you are a unique creation of God. Do not allow failures and challenges to discourage you. In fact, these challenges should strengthen your resolve to press forward and succeed. The devil will always attempt to divert us from the path that God has destined for us. Achieving our vision requires God's guidance. When we place our confidence in Him, He remains by our side throughout the journey. Overcoming obstacles that the enemy places in our path can only be accomplished through the grace of God. As it is written, "For by strength shall no man prevail!" (1 Samuel 2:9). Our own strength will inevitably fail us, and those who rely solely on their own abilities are destined for failure. It is only through God's intervention that we can emerge victoriously without being broken. There is nothing more satisfying than emerging from a challenge with a sense of wholeness—free from physical ailments, emotional distress, and regrets.

The devil desires to exploit bad news to trigger heartache within us. He aims to use the pressure from a court case, for instance, to induce depression and physical ailments such as high blood pressure, malnourishment due to anxiety, and panic. That is precisely why we need God in our battles—to strengthen us and prevent any situation from overwhelming us, causing damage to our health or stealing our happiness. The devil knows that victory is assured for us, but he seeks to exploit challenges to impair our well-being and rob us of joy. Now that we are aware of his scheme, rather than succumbing to depression and panic when faced with challenges, we should rejoice and find solace, knowing that victory will undoubtedly come our way through our faith in Christ Jesus.

Guidance and Protection in God's Hands

God has made a promise to guide the footsteps of those who place their confidence and faith in Him. As you embark on your journey towards your destiny, it is crucial to have unwavering faith in God, for He is ever-present to guide your every step. He will ensure that your feet do not stumble upon rocky paths, and even if they do, He will heal your wounds and empower you to persevere. God never allows us to endure challenging stages in life without a purpose. He is fully aware of your pain and sorrow, and He offers healing for your soul, peace for your heart, and comfort for your spirit. Do not be led astray by impatience and desperation, seeking direction in the wrong places. While worldly pursuits may appear pleasurable, they are ultimately transient and meaningless, leading only to destruction and eternal condemnation.

Beware Of Temporal Gains

Do not be deceived by the allure of worldly gains, which are merely fleeting. Not everything that appears precious holds truth. Just as the kingdom of God offers true wealth, the kingdom of darkness also promises riches. Even Jesus Christ was tempted by the devil with the offer of worldly wealth and glory, as depicted in the scripture: "Again, the devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain, and sheweth him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them; And saith unto him, All these things will I give thee, if thou wilt fall down and worship me. Then saith Jesus unto him, Get thee hence, Satan: for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve" (Matthew 4:8-10). This demonstrates that the devil is capable of offering riches and glory. Hence, it is perilous to compare ourselves to others and feel inferior when we witness their affluence. We cannot ascertain if the wealth they possess originates from the kingdom of darkness. It is essential to clarify that not all individuals who are financially prosperous have obtained their wealth through unscrupulous means. There are hardworking individuals who have earned their wealth legitimately. However, we should always cultivate contentment with what we have instead of comparing ourselves to others. It is better to possess little and live a life of peace than to gain the entire world by compromising our souls to the devil. What profit is there in acquiring the whole world, which is temporal, if it costs us our precious souls? The Bible characterizes such as a wasted life.

Not All That Appears Pure Is Truth

As the popular saying goes, "Not all that glitters are gold." Not everything that seems valuable is genuine. When you purchase a product in the market, only the manufacturer and an honest seller can distinguish between counterfeit and authentic items. God is the ultimate creator, the manufacturer, of true wealth, and Christ is the mediator, the seller, through whom the wealth promised by God will be bestowed upon us. We need God's guidance to discern and resist the allure of counterfeit glory that may seem right but originates from the kingdom of darkness. We require God's direction to avoid falling into temptation. Do not allow anyone to deceive you into engaging in ungodly methods to amass wealth. Some may argue that money is money, as long as it can procure whatever one desires. While money may indeed appear neutral, it is essential to recognize that "blood money" is not stained with actual blood, but rather denotes its association with evil origins. Similar to gold, items with a golden sheen may appear desirable and precious, but time will reveal the distinction between fake and genuine gold. When God grants wealth, it comes without sorrow. You can enjoy your riches with a peaceful mind and a clear conscience, unlike the wealth obtained through nefarious means.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Stay Focused and Avoid Comparison

Always remain focused on your own goals and refrain from comparing yourself to others. Your current financial state may be meager, but it does not dictate your future. Christ's promise for our future is one of abundance and greatness. However, the difference between greatness that stems from Christ and that which emanates from the devil is profound. When God is the source of your greatness, you will find peace of mind. Conversely, when the devil is the source of success, it leads to sorrow and the misappropriation of wealth.

Overcoming Challenges with God's Help

To become an achiever of destiny, it is important to acknowledge that the path to your divine destiny will not be without obstacles. Nevertheless, rest assured that you will conquer whatever challenges you currently face due to your divine purpose. The devil is acutely aware of the remarkable future that God has prepared for you, and he seeks to make you give up on your journey. Defy the devil by refusing to surrender. Remember that successfully navigating the path to your divine destiny requires complete reliance on God. Have unwavering faith in Him and do not lose hope. If you feel too weak to continue, seek God's strength. Always acknowledge Him, as the scripture instructs, in all your ways, and He will make your paths straight.

Trust In God's Guidance and Unfailing Love

God, who has allowed difficult situations to cross your path, knows precisely how you will overcome them in order for His purpose to be fulfilled in your life. If you feel that you have lost your way due to mistakes and errors, turn to God. He will never abandon you. Do not believe that it is too late, for God can always make a way where there seems to be none. Christ Jesus is forever with us, eagerly waiting to redirect us onto the right path. His hands are open, ready to receive us back into His kingdom. Nothing can separate us from the love Christ has for us. God is always present and ever-ready to assist those who genuinely seek His help.

Embracing Humiliation and Overcoming Challenges

It is important to recognize that embarrassment and humiliation are natural facets of life. Even our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, in His divine incarnation as a human being, experienced humiliation and was crucified like a common criminal. Yet, today He has the most devoted followers on Earth. The Apostles of Christ endured embarrassment, imprisonment, and unjust deaths. Similarly, notable biblical figures such as Daniel, David, Joseph, Shadrach, Meshach, Abednego, and others faced humiliation, persecution, and embarrassment as they pursued and fulfilled their God-given purposes. Their journeys were far from easy, but they all shared an unwavering faith in God, a belief in the God they served, and an unyielding passion. They refused to let the embarrassment and humiliation they encountered hinder their progress. They remained steadfast in their faith, drawing courage from humiliation and finding strength in their weaknesses.

At times, the devil orchestrates situations that appear humiliating, aiming to make us ashamed of ourselves, preventing us from venturing outside and shattering our self-confidence. If you find yourself in such circumstances, why not emulate the great biblical heroes who refused to allow their embarrassing situations to obstruct their life purposes? As long as you are doing what is right and exerting your best effort, nothing in life should make you feel bad or embarrassed. Understand that, regardless of your actions, there will always be people who criticize and speak ill of you. These naysayers fail to see the good in others, lacking personal vision themselves. They derive satisfaction from criticizing and humiliating others, continuously seeking faults to judge and belittle. However, do not let the burdens of accusations and embarrassments imposed by these individuals weigh you down. Nobody is perfect. Learn to move forward with your life.

The embarrassments and humiliations encountered from others should serve as a reminder of the importance of seriousness and dedication to achieving your goals. What we experience at the hands of our enemies is intended to prepare and, in some cases, facilitate the realization of the great future destined for us by Christ. If you can muster your courage amidst embarrassing situations, it is evidence of your maturity. Recall that in order to be qualified for God's service, one must traverse different stages in life. Each stage, whether favorable or challenging, holds valuable lessons that qualify you for advancement.

Raw gold, in its unrefined state, may not be visually appealing, and those unfamiliar with it might mistake it for a mere stone. However, the true usefulness and value of gold are revealed through a purification process in fire. The fire is what unveils its worth. Similarly, to occupy the position assigned by God, one must first undergo a refining fire—a transformative process that molds and brings forth your inherent value. Often, individuals are unaware of their potential and worth until they experience unpleasant circumstances that motivate them to look inward and discover their latent abilities. Some may need to face job loss before discovering their self-worth, while others require rejection from academic institutions to recognize their personal gifts and talents. The fire of life's challenges cannot kill or destroy you; rather, it refines you into the person God intended you to be. It helps you discover yourself so that you can fulfill your destiny and shine in the place designated by God.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

SUMMARY

In "The Pathway to Your Destiny," the author compares the journey towards abundance, peace, and great accomplishments to a narrow path described in the scriptures. This path is not easy and is filled with obstacles and negativity that seek to harm and hinder those who embark upon it. To fulfill one's God-given purpose, individuals must endure hardships, humiliations, and rejections that come with this path.

However, with strength from God, obstacles and challenges become stepping stones towards one's divine destination. What was meant to obstruct the path actually contributes to progress. Adversities can be transformed into advantages through God's wisdom and intervention.

The chapter emphasizes that there should be no room for dejection or sadness, as individuals are cherished by God. Even in the face of mistreatment and unfairness, one should continue to exert their best efforts. Eventually, those who sought to hinder their endeavors may end up serving under their leadership.

The author encourages individuals not to constantly seek the approval of others. Rejection should not diminish self-worth, as those who are meant to be in one's life will remain, while others will naturally depart. The focus should be on pleasing God rather than trying to please everyone.

Trusting in the Lord and remaining steadfast in goals leads to fulfilling divine destiny. Challenges are part of God's plan to elevate individuals to a higher level in life. However, it is crucial to prioritize family and not neglect them in the pursuit of ambitions. True happiness lies in creating cherished memories with loved ones.

The chapter discusses the varying execution of God's plans for individuals' lives. Each person has a unique purpose, and imitating others or abandoning one's path due to challenges is discouraged. Trials signify being in the domain where God intends individuals to be. Prioritizing acknowledging God and seeking His guidance in all endeavors is paramount.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Individuals are reminded that they are unique and special. Failures and challenges should not discourage them but strengthen their resolve to press forward. Overcoming obstacles requires God's guidance and intervention. The allure of worldly gains should not deceive individuals, as true wealth and success come from God.

The chapter emphasizes the need to stay focused on one's goals and avoid comparing oneself to others. God's promise for the future is one of abundance and greatness, obtained through righteous means. Challenges on the pathway to destiny can be overcome with God's help.

In summary, "The Pathway to Your Destiny" highlights the need for courage, determination, and trust in God to fulfill one's divine purpose. It emphasizes enduring hardships, prioritizing family, acknowledging God's guidance, and staying focused on individual goals. By seeking God and relying on His strength, individuals can overcome obstacles and achieve their destined greatness.

VITAL PRINCIPLES

- The road to our destiny is not a bed of roses
- Those God guides, He direct their footstep
- The graces to overcome the obstacles that lies on the way, only comes to those that rely on God
- By strength shall no man prevail
- Not everything that is precious that is good
- A man and woman of vision cannot be stop on the way
- It takes those with strong vision to stay on the right track
- Stay focus and stop comparing yourself with others, your blessing is on the way
- Don't be deceived, not all riches that are of God, Satan give riches too
- Only Faith can make us remain on the right track under tension and pressure
- Rejoices as you pass through the refining fire that makes you worth than gold

CHAPTER TEN

The Role of Grace in the Race

It is not by strength but by grace

In the world we inhabit, it becomes evident upon close examination that nearly every position and achievement is fiercely contested. Whether aspiring to become a president, senator, or hold any political office, one must engage in campaigning and competing against other candidates to secure that position. To secure employment in a vacant job position, a rigorous job interview is required, pitting applicants against one another. Gaining admission to a university necessitates excelling in entrance exams or undergoing an interview, wherein candidates are thoroughly assessed and screened, with only the successful ones gaining admission. We find ourselves constantly racing and competing in this world. However, as Children of God, our reliance is not on personal strength but on the strength and grace bestowed upon us by God.

It is crucial to comprehend that the race of life does not favor the strong or the most powerful individuals on Earth. Instead, it rewards those who place their sole reliance on God for the strength and power required to complete the race. Every achievement we have attained in this world is made possible by the grace of God, rather than by our own strength. When one takes the time to reflect on their accomplishments and how far they have come in life, from their days under parental care to the present, it becomes evident that God has been exceedingly good. Our achievements were never solely due to our personal capabilities, but were accomplished through the grace and mercies of God. It is no wonder that the wise King Solomon, despite his riches and glory, proclaimed, "I returned and saw under the sun, that the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, neither yet bread to the wise, nor yet riches to men of understanding, nor yet favour to men of skill; but time and chance happened to them all" (Ecclesiastes 9:11).

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Solomon acknowledges that man cannot prevail by strength alone. We require God's assistance to succeed and fulfill His purpose for our lives. As believers, our reliance must always be on God in every endeavor, rather than solely on our own abilities and strengths. Our physical strength, human qualifications, and understanding alone are insufficient to guide us. Only through the grace of God can we successfully navigate the races set before us. There will be challenges in this world that exceed our human comprehension, and numerous trials and obstacles that aim to impede our progress in life. However, when we place our trust in the Lord, we will undoubtedly overcome and achieve great exploits for God's kingdom.

If it were strength alone that determined success, then the physically strongest individual on Earth would undoubtedly be the most accomplished person. If it were strength alone that ensured triumph, then the industrious individual in your neighborhood or the one who consistently commutes early in the morning and returns late at night would be the wealthiest person. However, this is not the case. Many of our parents, who may not even possess formal education, are wealthier than the esteemed professors and professor emeriti we encounter in our colleges and universities. I am not implying that there is anything wrong with being hardworking, nor am I discouraging you from diligently studying to attain the status of a professor. My point is that if you rely solely on your personal strength in the race of life, you will labor in vain, toiling like an elephant and reaping the rewards of an ant. You need to include God in your endeavors. You require the strength and grace of God to accomplish what your own capabilities and strengths cannot. It is only through God's grace that one can prevail, as the scripture affirms, "For by strength shall no man prevail" (1 Samuel 2:9b). You need God to succeed in your life's battles and to maintain your salvation. You cannot do it alone. You require God's assistance to reach the finish line of the race.

The Race for Salvation & the Battle for the Human Soul

In the pursuit of entering the kingdom of God, true believers understand the indispensable role of God's grace in their journey through the race of salvation. This race represents the contest between the kingdom of darkness and the kingdom of light for the possession of the human soul. The adversary, the devil, seeks dominion over our destiny and ultimate control of our souls. Therefore, the battle for the soul of man ensues between these opposing forces. As individuals who belong to God, it is imperative to continually surrender ourselves to the things of God, allowing the Holy Spirit to exert influence and take full control over our spirit, soul, and body. Man, being a spiritual being dwelling in a physical body, possesses a soul, comprising the three components of the human trinity. While the body serves its purpose in our earthly existence, it is the soul that becomes the primary target of both the kingdom of darkness and the kingdom of light. The entity that gains control over the soul effectively gains dominion over the entire person. The soul acts as the intermediary between the body and the spirit, with the spirit relating to the soul to convey information to the body. It is through the Holy Spirit, speaking to our spirit, that God makes contact with us. When we obediently align ourselves with God's Spirit through His Word, studying and meditating on it daily, the kingdom of light establishes dominion and control over our souls. However, if we neglect to engage in spiritual pursuits and allow the flesh to dictate our actions, the kingdom of darkness seizes the opportunity to influence our thoughts, behavior, and ultimately, our souls.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

As believers, we must exercise caution regarding the objects of our attention and diligently guard our thoughts. The soul consists of the mind, will, and emotions, with the mind further divided into the conscious and subconscious, also known as the heart. Information received by the conscious mind may easily fade away, as it serves the immediate activities of daily life. However, repetitive exposure to certain information or the persistence of negative habits—such as engaging in pornography, substance abuse, excessive drinking, clubbing, or immoral sexual activities—results in the storage of these elements within the subconscious mind or heart. Anything stored in the heart becomes a habit or behavior, giving rise to negative addictions. The biblical proverb wisely states, "As a man thinks in his heart, so is he" (Proverbs 23:7). Thus, the thoughts we entertain and dwell upon in our hearts can profoundly influence our outward conduct.

The one to whom we grant our attention gains control over our souls, playing a pivotal role in shaping our lives and determining our destinies. It is essential to recognize our responsibility in choosing the objects of our focus. The gift of free will stands as the central point of our decision-making process. We can opt to follow the path of the kingdom of light or succumb to the enticements of the kingdom of darkness. However, the Holy Spirit, acting through our conscience, continuously works to steer us away from sin. To avoid wrongful actions and pursue righteousness, we must not disregard the promptings of the Holy Spirit. Many of us continue to sin and engage in evil acts because we neglect the Spirit of God speaking through our conscience. By faithfully adhering to the ways of God's kingdom, the Holy Spirit protects us from the influences of the kingdom of darkness.

If you are struggling with ungodly addictions hindering God's presence in your life, it is crucial to redirect your attention towards spiritual matters. The pursuits of the flesh yield no lasting profit; they only bring destruction and hinder your destiny. Allow the Holy Spirit to assume total control over your body and soul. Scripture attests,

"For to be carnally minded is death, but to be spiritually minded is life and peace. Because the carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwells in you. Now if any man has not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his" (Romans 8:6-9).

Devoting oneself to spiritual matters ensures that the kingdom of darkness cannot penetrate our thoughts. The Holy Spirit is indispensable in navigating the race of salvation, requiring us to fiercely protect our salvation and maintain a steadfast relationship with God. We must not provide any opportunity for the kingdom of darkness to gain a foothold. Engaging in biblical spiritual exercises such as prayer, fasting, and the study of God's Word, while meditating upon it daily, becomes essential. Let the Word remain in your heart. By making the Holy Spirit the essence of your being, the devil will find no room to harm you. God will grant you revelations concerning the plans of the enemy. To successfully complete the race, you need the spirit and grace of God. As the Scripture declares, "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the LORD of hosts" (Zechariah 4:6b). Only through the Spirit of God can you navigate the race. Continually invoke His presence, and He will remain with you until the end.

Be a Finisher

In a race, it is not the beginners but the finishers who claim the prize. One may embark on a journey but choose to halt along the way. Similarly, individuals may pursue a vision but allow obstacles, limitations, and detractors to deter them from its fulfillment. In the race of life, the significance lies not in those who initiate the race but in those who persist and complete it. It is better to refrain from starting a race than to abandon it midway. An incomplete building left untouched for years, with no financial means to continue the construction, represents wasted efforts in terms of time, energy, and resources. Therefore, avoid the mistake of excluding Christ from any aspect of your life's journey.

The path to realizing great visions is not paved with gold; it does not come easily. To reach the finish line, you must remain focused and cultivate self-discipline. Obstacles will undoubtedly arise, yet if you activate your faith in God, you will ultimately achieve your desired outcome.

As we strive to maintain our salvation in Christ Jesus, we will encounter various detractors along the way. However, when our sufficiency lies in

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

God, we shall overcome. The Apostle Paul instructs the Church to "work out your (their) salvation with fear and trembling" (Philippians 2:12b). This calls for vigilance, strict obedience, and adherence to God's Word in our daily Christian living, for the world we inhabit is fraught with challenges. The enemies of our souls await opportunities to draw us away from the presence of God. The devil aims to see us abandon the race midway, preventing us from receiving the Crown of Glory—the prize at the race's end. Yet, we can take solace in the fact that Christ Jesus stands as our eternal advocate, ever ready to defend us against our accuser.

Avoid Religious Self-Righteousness

The issue of self-righteousness is prevalent among some believers, often without their awareness. It is important to recognize that righteousness and faithfulness to God do not imply religious self-righteousness. Genuine Christian practice goes beyond mere religion and emphasizes a direct relationship and fellowship with God through Christ Jesus. While practicing your faith, it is essential to avoid making others feel unwanted or labeling them as the greatest sinners. Instead, strive to be open-minded and accommodating, showing kindness and understanding. This does not mean compromising your God-given standards, but rather adopting a disposition that reflects the love and grace of Christ. It is important to remember that the greatest sinner today can become a powerful servant of God tomorrow.

Religious self-righteousness offers no benefit to anyone and should be avoided within the church community. Such an attitude can lead to divisions among brethren and present a negative image of the Church to the world. People who are religiously self-righteous often exhibit a judgmental mindset, believing that others are not worthy of being called Christians if they do not meet their personal standards of right and wrong. They are rigid in their religious beliefs and doctrines, lacking openness to the leading of the Holy Spirit. In their own eyes, they exalt themselves above others, reminiscent of the Pharisees who opposed everything Christ stood for during His earthly ministry.

The Pharisees in Scripture were known for their religious practices. They would pray loudly in synagogues and public spaces to be noticed by others, and when they fasted, they made it evident by wearing somber expressions. These religious individuals were a constant challenge to Jesus during His ministry. They questioned His teachings, healings, and deliverance, even accusing Him of using the power of darkness to cast out demons.

On one Sabbath day, when Jesus healed a crippled woman in the synagogue, the Pharisees accused Him of breaking the Law of Moses. They argued that healing should only occur on the six working days, not on the

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Sabbath. Jesus responded by exposing their hypocrisy and highlighting the compassion and mercy inherent in His actions. He revealed their inconsistency, as they would rescue their ox or donkey from a stall on the Sabbath for watering. He affirmed that this daughter of Abraham, who had been bound by Satan for eighteen years, deserved to be freed from her affliction on the Sabbath. Jesus' response left His adversaries ashamed, and the people rejoiced at the glorious things He had done (Luke 13:15-17).

The Pharisees were constantly finding fault with Jesus, and their opposition eventually led to a plot to kill Him. This highlights the danger of religious self-righteousness. When you believe you are right and others refuse to conform to your value system, it can lead to anger, hatred, and even harm, all in the misguided pursuit of protecting and standing for your faith.

Apostle Paul, formerly known as Saul, also faced challenges from fellow Christian brethren who questioned his calling as an apostle. Before his conversion, Saul was a persecutor and murderer of Christians. However, during his journey to Damascus, Jesus appeared to him and called him to be an instrument of His grace. Saul was transformed, his name changed to Paul, and God used him mightily to spread the gospel across nations. Nevertheless, some religiously self-righteous individuals disputed Paul's calling, attacking his credibility and spiritual qualifications.

In his second letter to the Corinthian Church, Paul responded to these critics, urging the believers not to be swayed by those causing strife within the Church. He listed his sufferings and hardships endured for the sake of the gospel, demonstrating his authenticity and the divine support evident in his ministry. Despite facing immense tribulation, Paul stood firm in faith because God was actively involved in his life and work.

Religious self-righteousness is also a contributing factor to the divisions among different church denominations. Some believers hold the belief that their denomination's teachings and doctrines are the only path to salvation, leading them to condemn those outside their fold. They may even discourage their members from interacting with or marrying individuals from other Christian denominations.

The teachings of Christ, His apostles, and our personal relationship with God should be the focal point of our faith. Jesus did not come to establish a religious group nor endorse one denomination above others. The body of Christ should be united, as we are all citizens of the same kingdom and participants in the race toward heaven. The denomination to which you belong will not determine your salvation; rather, it is your relationship with Christ Jesus that matters. On the Day of Judgment, we will not be questioned about the church we attended or the specific group we identified with.

True Christianity Resides In the Heart

The essence of authentic Christianity lies in the innermost being of an individual, specifically the heart, rather than outward appearances. It is crucial not to be swayed by superficial displays of humility or external showmanship. This does not imply disregarding modesty and humility; however, it emphasizes the importance of not being deceived by mere external appearances. It is worth noting that anyone can feign holiness and righteousness, even the devil himself is capable of masquerading as an angel of light. Consequently, it should come as no surprise that his ministers also assume the appearance of righteousness while carrying out their deceptive works (2 Corinthians 11:14-15).

To ensure the authenticity of our beliefs and practices, it is imperative to evaluate everything in light of God's Word, the Bible, which serves as the standard for every genuine believer. While it is beneficial to attend a Bible-believing church and listen attentively to the messages preached, it is equally important to verify the accuracy of those messages against the Scriptures. It is essential to ask the Holy Spirit for understanding as we read the Bible, seeking the truth within its pages. The Berean Jews serve as a commendable example in this regard. They eagerly received the message proclaimed by the apostles but diligently examined the Scriptures daily to verify its alignment with God's truth (Acts 17:11, NIV).

This does not imply a sense of skepticism toward the messages preached by pastors or the doctrines of the church. Instead, it underscores the necessity of subjecting every message and doctrine to the scrutiny of God's Word. The Scriptures admonish believers to test every spirit, as many false prophets have infiltrated the world (1 John 4:1). Even within the Church of Christ, there are infiltrations from the demonic kingdom. Therefore, it is crucial to seek the guidance of the Holy Spirit in selecting the right place for worship and fellowship with God. The devil and his agents actively recruit souls into the kingdom of darkness, employing false prophets and teachers to deceive the unsuspecting with mystical displays of false prophecies and seemingly genuine miracles that lack true power to provide lasting solutions. Consequently, it is paramount to exercise wisdom and caution while navigating the race of salvation. As believers, we are called to be wise as serpents and harmless as doves, not merely attending church but possessing the wisdom and knowledge of God.

Knowledge and Wisdom Are Essential For the Race

Salvation is the pivotal starting point for the race of faith, but to overcome the deceptive tendencies and obstacles orchestrated by the kingdom of darkness, one requires the proper wisdom and knowledge of God. The Scripture affirms that wisdom is profitable for direction, as it enables us to navigate the path to the ultimate crown. Wisdom encompasses the mature and discerning manner in which we resolve and respond to various challenges that come our way, and it can only be applied based on the knowledge and information we possess. Hence, constant reading of the Bible is crucial, for it is through the Word of God that knowledge is acquired. The Scripture acts as a guiding light, illuminating the path of our daily Christian journey. As the psalmist declares, "Your word is a lamp for my feet, a light on my path" (Psalm 119:105).

The Word of God provides the necessary direction and equips us for the spiritual battles we face in this world. We must remember that we are engaged in a continual warfare, as the enemy seeks to steal our souls and hinder our progress. Therefore, it is vital to ask ourselves when we last engaged with the Scriptures. Some Christians limit their interaction with the Bible to Sunday church services, neglecting to study it at home or during their free time. Yet, the Bible unequivocally states that all Scripture is God-breathed and beneficial for teaching, rebuking, correcting, and training in righteousness. Its purpose is to thoroughly equip the servants of God for every good work (2 Timothy 3:16-17, NIV). There can be no valid excuse for neglecting the study of God's Word, as it is within its pages that we find the wisdom, knowledge, and understanding needed to successfully run the race of faith.

You Cannot Rely Solely On Your Own Understanding

Many individuals, consumed by the demands of their daily lives, often take their spiritual well-being for granted. They view their relationship with God as just one among many aspects of their lives, rather than recognizing it as the paramount concern. It is a grave mistake to rely solely on one's own understanding to navigate the race of faith. True progress and meaningful achievements cannot be attained through self-effort alone. To succeed in this world, we must immerse ourselves in the things of God and dedicate ourselves to gaining knowledge. If we neglect this, we risk perishing.

I want to emphasize that not reading the Bible does not negate one's salvation. By being among God's people and attending church services, you are saved. However, salvation alone is not sufficient to run the race successfully. Wholeness and completeness can only be attained through a deep understanding of God's Word. It is lamentable that lack of knowledge leads to the destruction of many, as stated in Hosea 4:6: "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge. Because you have rejected knowledge, I also reject you as my priests; because you have ignored the law of your God, I also will ignore your children."

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

It is important to remember that victory does not always go to the swiftest or the strongest, nor do wisdom, riches, or skill guarantee success. Rather, it is those who place their trust in God, relying on Him in every aspect of their lives, who emerge triumphant. To succeed in this earthly race, we must submit ourselves to God's all-sufficiency. King David, in Psalm 18:30, affirms the perfection of God's ways and the flawless nature of His Word. Therefore, we must place our trust in the Lord and take refuge in His Word, allowing it to guide our paths. Through the study of God's Word, we acquire the necessary knowledge and wisdom to avoid becoming victims of the schemes of the kingdom of darkness.

We are all recipients of God's grace, and regardless of our limitations, we should reflect on how far He has brought us and express gratitude. Have you ever pondered why the brightest student in your class during your school days may not necessarily be the most successful individual among your peers? This is the race of life. What truly matters to God is not how we start but how we finish. Jesus Christ proclaimed, "So the last will be first, and the first will be last. For many are called, but few are chosen." Many will embark on the race of faith, but only a few will persevere until the end. In Jesus' name, you will be among those who complete the race successfully.

Work Out Your Salvation

Being born into a Christian household or having parents who hold positions of authority in the church does not guarantee your place in God's kingdom. Your parents can only lead you to Christ; it is up to you to seek a deeper understanding of God. Maintaining a relationship with God and working out your salvation requires your active participation. Sometimes, we witness the misbehavior of pastors' children, as they assume that the grace of God upon their parents will cover their transgressions. However, that grace can only extend to you if you are connected to the same heavenly source and walking in the same direction of obedience to God's Word.

Christ Jesus desires us to continually nurture our relationship with Him. We can only build this relationship through unwavering dedication to fellowship with Him. Let us avoid becoming excessively familiar with God, as over-familiarity can lead to self-exaltation and wandering off the right path. Accomplishing great works and being used by God does not imply knowing everything about Him or being immune to mistakes. There is always something new to learn from God. Regardless of the tremendous impact you have made through spreading the gospel, the size of the crowd you influence, or the individuals who look up to you for guidance, God surpasses all your accomplishments. Imperfections are inherent in humanity, and we are prone to making erroneous judgments. Only God is infallible. Therefore, let us daily rededicate ourselves to God, renewing our fellowship and deepening our relationship with Him.

Running the Race with Endurance

The apostle Paul offers a profound admonition to patiently endure the challenges and obstacles that confront us in the race of life. He urges us to cast aside anything that may impede our progress, stating in Hebrews 12:1, "Therefore, since we are surrounded by such a great cloud of witnesses, let us throw off everything that hinders and the sin that so easily entangles. And let us run with perseverance the race marked out for us." The world around us bears witness to the race set before us, observing how far we will go in our journey with the Lord. It is essential to navigate the race with patience, discarding anything that would hinder our completion of it. The Holy Spirit cannot continue running the race alongside us when we persist in sin. Sin is the foremost obstacle in the race for salvation. By indulging in sin, we invite the company of the devil, and the consequence is eternal condemnation. Romans 8:13 affirms, "For if you live according to the flesh, you will die; but if by the Spirit you put to death the misdeeds of the body, you will live."

I implore you to take a moment to introspect. Identify the detrimental habits or behaviors that you struggle to relinquish, recognizing that holding onto them will impede your progress in the race. I urge you to surrender these habits to God. Whether it be smoking, clubbing, masturbation, engaging in immoral sexual acts, or excessive drinking, bring these weaknesses before the throne of mercy. Call upon Christ Jesus to deliver you from your weaknesses, for He stands ready to set you free. As the scripture advises, let us fix our gaze upon Jesus, the pioneer and perfecter of our faith, as stated in Hebrews 12:2. Turn to Jesus to overcome these weaknesses so that you may continue running the race. Our own self-effort to overcome sin will prove futile without God's intervention. Remember, no one can prevail through sheer strength alone. Merely stating, "I will no longer smoke, lie, or steal," will only be effective if accompanied by action prompted by the Spirit of God. Otherwise, after ceasing the habit through personal effort, you may eventually find yourself returning to those destructive addictions. We need God in every aspect of our lives.

We require God's guidance and strength to patiently endure the challenges and pressures that lie ahead. Without God by our side, reaching the finish line would be an arduous task. Life is filled with ups and downs, moments of smooth sailing and moments of hardship. However, throughout it all, we must patiently await the Lord's intervention in His appointed time. We should never give up on the race due to formidable opposition or burdens weighing us down. Let us run the race with the mindset of emerging victorious. As the scripture emphasizes in 1 Corinthians 9:24-26, "Do you not know that in a race all the runners run, but only one gets the prize? Run in such a way as to get the prize. Everyone who competes in the games goes into strict training. They do it to get a crown that will not last, but we do it to get a crown that will last forever. Therefore, I do not run like someone running aimlessly; I do not fight like a boxer beating the air." The prize we are pursuing is an imperishable crown of glory. We must run the race in a manner that enables us to attain that prize. Let us not make the mistake of quitting or giving up prematurely. Instead, let us learn to patiently wait in faith. It is important to remember that God does not require our strength or power to fight the battles we face. He simply asks us to rely on Him. Our own efforts will lead to futility and cannot save us. However, if we place our complete trust in God at every step and in every action we take, we will ultimately find cause for rejoicing at the race's end.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

SUMMARY

In this chapter, the author explores the concept of grace and its significance in the race of life, particularly in the context of salvation. The author emphasizes that in the world we live in, achievements and positions are fiercely contested, and individuals often rely on their own strength and abilities to succeed. However, as children of God, our reliance should be on the grace and strength bestowed upon us by God.

The author highlights that the race of life does not favor the strong or the powerful. Instead, it rewards those who put their trust in God and rely on His grace to overcome challenges and achieve success. Our accomplishments and progress in life are not solely due to our personal capabilities but are made possible through the grace and mercies of God. King Solomon, in the book of Ecclesiastes, recognizes that man cannot prevail by strength alone and acknowledges the need for God's assistance to fulfill His purpose.

The race for salvation is described as a battle for the human soul between the kingdom of darkness and the kingdom of light. The author explains that the soul, comprising the mind, will, and emotions, becomes the primary target in this battle. The entity that gains control over the soul effectively gains dominion over the entire person. To maintain a steadfast relationship with God and resist the influences of the kingdom of darkness, believers are urged to surrender themselves to the Holy Spirit and engage in spiritual pursuits such as prayer, fasting, and studying God's Word.

The author emphasizes the importance of being a finisher in the race of life. It is not enough to start the race; one must persist and complete it to claim the prize. To reach the finish line, one must remain focused, cultivate self-discipline, and activate faith in God, even in the face of obstacles and detractors.

Furthermore, the author warns against religious self-righteousness within the Christian community. Genuine Christian practice goes beyond mere religion and involves a direct relationship and fellowship with God through Christ Jesus. Believers are encouraged to avoid judgmental attitudes and instead reflect the love and grace of Christ. The dangers of religious self-righteousness are illustrated through the examples of the Pharisees' opposition to Jesus and the challenges faced by the apostle Paul.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

The chapter concludes by emphasizing that true Christianity resides in the heart. It is not defined by denominations or outward practices but by a personal relationship with God. Unity among believers and a focus on Christ's teachings should be prioritized over divisive religious beliefs.

Overall, this chapter underscores the importance of relying on God's grace, surrendering to the Holy Spirit, persevering in the race of life, avoiding religious self-righteousness, and nurturing a genuine relationship with God.

VITAL PRINCIPLES

- God's purpose does not rely on our strength; rather, He calls us to depend on Him entirely.
- Instead of relying on our own strength, we should operate in the sufficiency we find in Christ Jesus.
- When our strength falters, we must not give up; instead, we should hold on to our faith.
- The beginning of our journey with Christ is significant, but it is the end that holds the utmost importance.
- To Christ, the culmination of our relationship with Him is of great significance.
- Any effort we undertake without God's backing will lead to fruitlessness.
- Our strength gains true value when utilized to glorify God, rather than serving our self-interests.
- Fools are led astray by their own understanding, while the wise seek counsel from God.
- Endurance is fundamental for successfully completing the race of life.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

Divine Correction

Human Weakness in Light of God's Perfect Strength

Often, God allows misfortune to befall us in order to correct our actions and guide us towards righteousness. The challenges we face today are often the result of our disobedience and lifestyles that are displeasing to God. When God instructs us, for instance, to go to the right and not the left, there are some who choose to disregard His command and veer towards the left. However, God's instruction may be intended to prevent a looming disaster for those who disobey. Consequently, when individuals defy His guidance, God may withdraw His protection and allow the calamity to befall them. It is not that God desires to inflict harm upon them, but rather, He intends for them to learn from their disobedience.

As children of God, our Heavenly Father loves us deeply and is willing to take any measures necessary to guide us towards righteousness. Scripture attests that out of His love for His earthly children, God may discipline us when we err. In the same way, an earthly father corrects his beloved child through discipline when they engage in wrongdoing.

Hebrews 12:8-11 (NKJV) states, "But if you are without chastening, of which all have become partakers, then you are illegitimate and not sons. Furthermore, we have had human fathers who corrected us, and we paid them respect. Shall we not much more readily be in subjection to the Father of spirits and live? For they indeed for a few days chastened us as seemed best to them, but He for our profit, that we may be partakers of His holiness. Now no chastening seems to be joyful for the present, but painful; nevertheless, afterward it yields the peaceable fruit of righteousness to those who have been trained by it."

We should rejoice in God's acknowledgment of us as His legitimate children, as He corrects us to guide us away from wrongdoing. It takes a father who genuinely loves his child to correct them whenever their actions could detrimentally impact their future and relationship with him. Similarly, our Heavenly Father loves us unconditionally, always desiring to discipline us whenever our choices deviate from His purpose for our lives. Instead of lamenting and feeling dejected when we find ourselves in situations where we are aware that we have contributed to our own predicaments, we should seize the opportunity to learn from our mistakes and align ourselves with the path Christ has called us to follow.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

The Divine Correction Manifested

Divine correction can manifest in various forms. God may allow us to endure unfavorable circumstances such as illness and afflictions. It is crucial to recognize that these situations are not intended to destroy or harm us, but rather to serve as corrective measures from God. They humble us when we are prideful, strengthen us when we are weak, and cleanse us from impurity.

For instance, let us consider the story of Brother Emmanuel, a devoted Christian who faithfully attends Church services and tithes. However, Emmanuel struggles with the secret habit of engaging in promiscuous relationships with different women. One day, he engages in a sexual encounter with a particular woman who transmits a sexually transmitted disease (STD) to him, specifically gonorrhea. Emmanuel undergoes a painful experience, characterized by the discharge of thick, white-yellowish particles from the tip of his penis and the presence of blood in his urine, causing excruciating pain during urination. Seeking medical treatment, Emmanuel discovers that his ailment becomes public knowledge within his neighborhood, exposing his secret sinful behavior. Learning of Emmanuel's predicament, a Christian friend and I decided to visit his apartment to provide counsel and offer solace in his pain. I emphasized to him that he should rejoice in God's chastisement, recognizing that it stems from God's love for him. God desires Emmanuel to abandon his destructive secret lifestyle and instead embrace a committed marital relationship with one woman. I encouraged him to be grateful that his condition is curable, unlike potentially fatal STDs such as HIV/AIDS. I implored him to express gratitude to God for being interested in correcting him and leading him towards a more righteous path. Together, we prayed, and he continued his medical therapy. To God's glory, he is healed. Years later, when I inquired about Emmanuel's well-being, I was informed that he is happily married with children and remains faithful within the Church community.

Without God's allowance of gonorrhea to affect him, Brother Emmanuel may have persisted in his secret sexual behavior. Although the sickness inflicted significant pain upon him, God used it as a means of correction. Thankfully, he learned his lesson and underwent a transformation for the better.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Self-Reflection and Divine Correction

It is essential to take time for introspection when facing pain and adversity. Is God utilizing this experience to correct your path? It is crucial to differentiate between challenges that result from secret sins and those arising from persecution or unjust attacks. However, I am particularly addressing those who live in secret sin, fully aware of the ungodliness of their actions. God is questioning whether you have learned your lesson. If He heals you from your ailment, will you return to your sinful lifestyle? If He grants you a breakthrough, will you continue to prioritize Him?

These questions necessitate sincere self-reflection and an examination of your commitment to change. Otherwise, you may expend your energy in futile prayers and fasting for healing and breakthrough. Perhaps, the simple answer to your prayers for healing and deliverance lies in genuinely assuring God through your conduct that you will henceforth walk in righteousness.

God's Desire for Restoration

God does not wish to lose us to the allure of the worldly kingdom. It is plausible that He employs sickness as a means to draw us back to Him. He refuses to abandon us in our ungodliness. He understands that if we persist in sin, we will forfeit our place in His kingdom. Our seat in God's kingdom holds tremendous significance to Him, and He does not desire it to remain vacant. Consequently, God may allow the devil to inflict misfortune upon us. He knows that without such tribulations, we may never create the time to worship and seek His presence. Just as no father wishes to be approached by their child solely when a need arises, God yearns for our consistent companionship. As God's sons and daughters, we must demonstrate our love and appreciation for all the blessings He has bestowed upon us, as well as those yet to come.

The Purpose of God's Chastisement

In times of unexpected and unpleasant situations, it is natural to question why God allows such challenges to befall us, especially when we believe we are devoted to Him. However, it is important to examine our own lives and identify areas that require correction. None of us can claim to be perfect individuals, free from any flaws or character deficiencies. Even if we are not engaged in overtly sinful actions, we must consider our attitudes, such as pride, arrogance, and hypocrisy, which can adversely affect our relationship with God.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

The Scriptures teach us that God resists the proud but extends grace to the humble (James 4:6). We may unknowingly harbor egotistical tendencies that we have neglected to address. Ignoring the need for personal growth and failing to live an exemplary life can hinder our spiritual journey. Instead of assigning blame externally for our challenges, we should first engage in introspection. Regardless of our perceived righteousness and commitment to God, it is vital to evaluate our character and rectify any aspects that do not align with the expectations of a Christian.

The Pitfall of Religious Self-Righteousness

There is a common tendency among religiously self-righteous Christians and even some men of God to experience a shift in character as their ministries grow and gain large followings. This shift often involves developing ego issues, perceiving personal achievements as solely their own doing, and disregarding the contributions of others and the grace of God. These individuals may consider themselves more anointed, eloquent, discerning, and spiritually advanced compared to their peers. They may even display false humility in public, engaging in pretense and hypocritical behavior.

However, it is essential to remember that our God is a jealous God who does not share His glory with anyone. When we begin to take credit that rightfully belongs to God, we elevate ourselves to a god-like status. In such instances, God, in His wisdom, may send people to provide guidance and correction. If we fail to heed these warnings and persist in our self-exaltation, God may discipline us directly by allowing us to face physical or spiritual challenges. It may be surprising to witness even an anointed man of God being spiritually attacked. However, such instances serve as opportunities for self-reflection and humility, reminding us that all our achievements come from God alone.

Lessons from King Nebuchadnezzar

The biblical account of King Nebuchadnezzar provides a powerful example of divine chastisement. Despite his great and mighty kingdom, the king became filled with pride. God warned Nebuchadnezzar through the prophet Daniel to repent and turn away from his sins, to practice righteousness and show mercy to the poor, with the possibility of a lengthening of his prosperity. However, Nebuchadnezzar disregarded this warning due to his overwhelming pride.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

As a consequence, God swiftly fulfilled His word. The king lost his kingdom and was driven away from his palace, forced to dwell among the beasts of the field and consume grass for survival. Yet, in His mercy, God allowed Nebuchadnezzar time to repent. Eventually, the king's eyes were opened, and he humbled himself, acknowledging God's sovereignty over all things. In response to Nebuchadnezzar's repentance, God restored him to his throne.

Avoiding the Traps of Self-Glorification

We must resist the temptation to claim the glory that belongs solely to God. Even if we are instruments used by God to perform miracles and impact lives, it should only deepen our humility and gratitude towards Him. Our role as vessels for God's work should never be a source of pride. If we succumb to the allure of self-glorification, we invite God's righteous wrath upon ourselves, just as He demonstrated through the punishment of Nebuchadnezzar.

An example from the Book of Acts further illustrates God's aversion to those who claim His glory for themselves. King Herod, after giving an impressive speech, received adulation from the people, proclaiming him to be a god. However, because Herod did not give glory to God and allowed the people's praises to inflate his ego, an angel of the Lord struck him down, resulting in his demise.

Divine correction is an integral part of our journey towards perfection. It requires a humble examination of our character and a sincere desire to align ourselves with God's will. We must guard against religious self-righteousness, recognizing the dangers of pride, arrogance, and hypocrisy. By acknowledging that all our achievements and abilities come from God, we can avoid the pitfalls of self-glorification and cultivate a spirit of humility. Through this process, we can embrace God's chastisement as a means of refinement, leading us closer to perfection and deeper fellowship with Him.

The Manifestation of God's Power

God, in His infinite wisdom, often chooses to manifest His power through unconventional means. He can take the most unlikely and imperfect individuals or circumstances and turn them into vessels of His glory. The Scriptures affirm this truth, stating, "But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty; And base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to nought" things that are" (1 Corinthians 1:27-28).

It is essential to remember that our weaknesses and imperfections do not disqualify us from receiving God's blessings. We must learn to rely on Him, for His strength is made perfect in our weakness. Instead of condemning ourselves or succumbing to negative thoughts that belittle our worth, we should trust in God's ability to work mightily in our lives. Christ did not come for those who are already perfect, but for sinners and imperfect individuals. He desires to use us as instruments to showcase His power and demonstrate that even the rejected stones can become the cornerstone.

The Unmerited Grace of God

No one is too virtuous or too moral to qualify for God's grace. His grace is bestowed upon us freely, not because of our works or merits, but as He wills. We must cast aside the notion that our worthiness determines our eligibility for God's blessings. In reality, it is our willingness to turn away from sinful ways and embrace a life in accordance with God's will that opens the door to His abundant grace. God's grace is unmerited, and it is available to all who humbly seek Him, regardless of their past or present circumstances.

Recognizing Our Dependence on God

Regardless of our perceived strength and power, our natural abilities are insignificant before God. Even those who have achieved great success must acknowledge that it is not by their own might but by the grace of God that they have overcome obstacles. The Scriptures affirm this truth, stating, "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast" (Ephesians 2:8-9). Our sufficiency and ability to triumph over challenges are derived solely from God's strength, not our own. It is only by relying on His grace that we can confidently move forward and claim the blessings He has in store for us.

In the grand tapestry of God's redemptive plan, He takes pleasure in using imperfect and weak individuals to showcase His power and glory. Our weaknesses do not hinder us from receiving His blessings and experiencing His transformative grace. As we embrace our imperfections and wholeheartedly rely on God, His strength becomes evident in our lives. Let us abandon self-condemnation and instead trust in God's ability to bring forth something extraordinary from our flawed existence. Remember, it is not our works or righteousness that qualifies us for His grace, but our genuine faith and willingness to surrender to His transformative power.

SUMMARY

In this chapter, the author explores the concept of divine correction and its purpose in guiding individuals towards righteousness. The author emphasizes that the challenges and misfortunes we face are often the result of our disobedience and lifestyles that are displeasing to God. God allows these hardships to occur in order to correct our actions and lead us back to the right path.

The author draws from Hebrews 12:8-11 to illustrate that God's discipline is a sign of His love for us, just as an earthly father corrects his child for their own benefit. Divine correction can manifest in various forms, such as illness and afflictions, which humble us, strengthen us, and cleanse us from impurity.

A story is shared about a man named Emmanuel who was engaging in promiscuous relationships despite being a faithful Christian. He contracted a sexually transmitted disease as a consequence of his actions. Through the pain and embarrassment, Emmanuel realizes that God's correction is an act of love and guidance towards a more righteous life. With prayer, counsel, and medical treatment, Emmanuel learns from his mistake, transforms his life, and finds happiness in a committed marriage.

The chapter emphasizes the importance of self-reflection when facing adversity and pain. It encourages individuals to examine whether their experiences are a result of their own secret sins and disobedience. The author highlights the need for sincere self-reflection and a commitment to change, rather than futile prayers and fasting for healing and breakthrough. God desires restoration and seeks to draw individuals back to Him, even if it means allowing misfortune to occur.

The purpose of God's chastisement is to refine and correct individuals, helping them grow spiritually. The chapter warns against religious self-righteousness, which can lead to pride, arrogance, and hypocrisy. It is emphasized that all achievements and abilities come from God alone, and claiming His glory for ourselves can invite His discipline. The biblical examples of King Nebuchadnezzar and King Herod serve as cautionary tales, demonstrating the consequences of pride and self-glorification.

In conclusion, divine correction plays a vital role in guiding individuals towards righteousness. It requires humility, self-reflection, and a sincere desire to align with God's will. By recognizing our weaknesses and acknowledging that all glory belongs to God, we can avoid the pitfalls of self-righteousness and embrace the refinement process that leads to deeper fellowship with Him.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

VITAL PRINCIPLES

- Blessed is the one that is corrected by God
- We should be encouraged that we are corrected by God
- God's correction is a blessing in disguise
- God's correction is not draw us closer to Himself
- Those that rely on God their imperfection will be tune to perfection
- When we are weak we will be strong, if we take God's discipline in good Faith
- God must times allow unfavorable situation, for us to see the need to rely on Him the more
- God's correction is not punishment but blessing
- God chooses foolish things to shame the wise
- Our deficiency cannot disqualify us for God's blessing if we rely on Him
- Those who know their God can do all things through the strength they have in Christ Jesus
- Our natural strength is as perfect weakness
- No one is too good or bad for God's graces
- God is our sufficiency upon our strength we cannot rely
- No one should boast for our success comes by God's graces

CHAPTER TWELVE

The Unchanging Love of Christ

God's Immutable Love: A Divine Essence

Difficulties often find their way into our lives uninvited. However, as believers, we need not succumb to panic, for we are accompanied by a God of Love. Any challenging circumstance that arises is intended to strengthen our faith in God. Whether it manifests as pain, illness, hardship, or rejection, our trials differ from those experienced by the world. While their hardships may seek to destroy them, ours serve to deepen our longing to know God and abide in His presence.

During times of hardship and tribulation, it is crucial not to mistake our response by fleeing from God. Rather, such periods should impel us to draw nearer to Him and commune with Him. God can never forsake His children on account of any problem, for His very nature is Love. God not only exhibits love, but He embodies it—God and Love are inseparable. Nothing can erode the love that Christ has for us; not even sin can accomplish such a feat if we sincerely seek His forgiveness. The love that God has for His children remains unwavering. Scripture attests that nothing in the world can sever us from the love of Christ:

"Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword? As it is written, 'For your sake we are being killed all the day long; we are regarded as sheep to be slaughtered.' No, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him who loved us. For I am sure that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, nor height, nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord."
(Romans 8:35-39)

Regardless of the challenges you may face, God still loves and cares for you. Your illness does not signify God's absence of love. Your state of poverty or homelessness does not diminish God's affection for you. Even if you find yourself sick, destitute, and without a home, you remain beloved by God and hold a cherished position in His Heavenly Kingdom. Perhaps He has allowed these trials for reasons known only to Him. Never allow anyone to make you feel that your mistakes render you any less of a child of God. When you sin against God, let that sin draw you closer to Him rather than pushing you away. By fleeing from God, you essentially communicate that you no longer require His protection and grace. God is ever ready to forgive us of our sins. I do not seek to justify sin, but when you err and return to God seeking forgiveness, He will undoubtedly welcome you back with open arms.

Your Seat Is Secured In God's Kingdom

The unshakeable position we hold in God's kingdom remains intact. Regardless of our wrongdoings, nothing can diminish the place that God has reserved for us. While our fellowship with Him may falter, our status as children of God cannot be revoked. Let us remember that Christ paid the ultimate price to restore our position in God's kingdom. Even if we have offended our Heavenly Father, it does not mean that we cease to be His children. God will not permit anyone to usurp the place He has designated for us in His kingdom because He has embraced us as His own. The only exception is if we choose to remain in sin and deliberately abstain from taking our rightful place. Thankfully, Christ perpetually intercedes on our behalf before the Father. When we genuinely repent and feel remorse for our transgressions, He faithfully reinstates us to our original position.

Jesus exemplified God's love for His children through the parable of "The Prodigal Son." In this story, a wealthy man had two sons, and the younger one requested his inheritance from his father while the father was still alive. Upon realizing the son's earnestness, the father divided his possessions between his sons, granting the younger one his share. Soon after, the younger son squandered all his wealth in a distant land and found himself impoverished during a famine. Desperate for sustenance, he sought employment feeding swine and even resorted to eating the pigs' scraps. Here was a young man whose father possessed great wealth, yet his rebellion led him to face the consequences of his ill-advised choices. However, the scriptural account reveals that he eventually came to his senses, feeling remorse for his actions. With a contrite heart, he resolved to return to his father's house and ask for forgiveness, not to be reinstated as a son, but as a hired servant.

"But when he came to himself, he said, 'How many of my father's hired servants have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger! I will arise and go to my father, and will say to him, 'Father, I have sinned against heaven and before you, and I am no longer worthy to be called your son. Make me like one of your hired servants.'" And he arose and came to his father. But when he was still a great way off, his father saw him and had compassion, and ran and fell on his neck and kissed him. And the son said to him, 'Father, I have sinned against heaven and in your sight, and am no longer worthy to be called your son.' But the father said to his servants, 'Bring out the best robe and put it on him, and put a ring on his hand and sandals on his feet. And bring the fatted calf here and kill it, and let us eat and be merry; for this my son was dead and is alive again; he was lost and is found.' And they began to be merry." (Luke 15: 17-24)

What can we glean from the parable of the prodigal son? Regardless of the magnitude of our sins, if we can recognize our wrongdoing, experience genuine remorse, and humbly return to God seeking forgiveness, He will embrace us as His children once more. The prodigal son did not even seek to be accepted as a son again; he merely desired to be considered a hired servant. However, a son remains a son, and a servant remains a servant. This highlights the son's profound remorse, as he deemed himself unworthy to be recognized as his father's son. But the father could not reduce his son to the role of a servant—his blood flowed through the son's veins. The father rejoiced at the sight of his son and not only reinstated him as a son but adorned him with the finest robe, a ring, and sandals. Furthermore, he organized a celebration, sacrificing the fatted calf, to commemorate his son's return. Such is the unconditional love that God has for us, His children. If we are willing to return to Him, He not only accepts us back as His beloved sons and daughters but also celebrates our homecoming in heaven.

Our Heavenly Father, the King of Kings and Lord of Lords, demonstrates His profound love for us by imparting His nature within us. We are created in His image and likeness, signifying the inherent value and significance we hold. Even when we transgress and rebel against Him as disobedient children, God, in His infinite love, sent Christ to sacrificially give His life for us. Through the precious blood of Jesus Christ, the gap between God and us is bridged.

It is crucial to recognize that you occupy a significant place in God's kingdom. God places immense value on you and is always ready to welcome you back into His realm. The Scripture affirms that "there is joy in heaven over the repentance of one sinner" (Luke 15:10). If heaven can rejoice for your sake, it is evident that you are of utmost importance and can be accepted back by God. You are a divine project, meticulously crafted by God, and He will never forsake you until His purpose for your life is fulfilled. Therefore, do not perceive yourself as useless; you are incredibly valuable to God and indispensable to His kingdom. God cherishes you because you belong to Him; He has adopted you as His child and holds you dear.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Christ, in His teachings, utilized the parable of the "Good Shepherd" to exemplify God's love and care for His children. He shared the story of a shepherd who, upon losing one sheep out of a hundred, left the ninety-nine in the wilderness to search for the lost one. When the shepherd found the lost sheep, he joyfully carried it on his shoulders, and upon returning home, he invited his friends and neighbors to rejoice with him. This parable illustrates how God, the Good Shepherd, never abandons us, His sheep, when we go astray. He diligently seeks us out and restores us to our rightful place among the flock of believers. Jesus Himself identified as the Good Shepherd, stating, "I am the good shepherd; and I know My sheep, and am known by My own. As the Father knows Me, even so I know the Father; and I lay down My life for the sheep." (John 10:14-15). Christ has laid down His life for us, and as obedient sheep, we are to listen to His voice and rely on His guidance in times of trouble. He is our provider, protector, and leader, leading us to streams of living water when we are spiritually thirsty.

No matter what trouble lies ahead of you, Christ has promised to be your shepherd. He desires to guide and protect you from the devouring schemes of the enemy. As a child of the Most High God, He is always by your side. Place your confidence in His leadership. Just as God sent His Beloved Son, Jesus Christ, to die for you, securing your eternal life, He will undoubtedly see you through any difficult situation you are currently facing.

Instead of dwelling in worry and fear, proclaim your rightful place with a positive confession. Declare your victory over every pain, affliction, and addiction, reminding the devil that he has already been defeated. Affirm your victory, stating, "I possess my victory in Christ Jesus. I take the shield of faith, which is the Word of God, and extinguish every fiery dart the enemy brings against me. Christ has set me free from the curse of the law. Therefore, I forbid any sickness or disease from afflicting this body. Every disease, germ, and virus that touches this body shall die instantly in Jesus' name. Every organ and tissue in this body functions perfectly as God intended. I forbid any malfunction in this body in the name of Jesus. I am an overcomer in Christ Jesus. I overcome by the blood of the Lamb and the word of my testimony. I submit to God's will, and the devil flees from me as I resist him in Jesus' name. The Word of God is eternal, and I establish His Word upon this earth. I am at great peace because I know my Father is always watching over me."

Such words strike fear in the kingdom of darkness. The Word of God is the constitution of the Kingdom of God. When the adversaries realize that you are well-informed of God's Word and aware of your rights as a citizen of Heaven, they cannot approach you. God is beckoning you at this very moment, saying, "Come to Me, my beloved child, and find rest in Me." He desires to elevate you to new levels in life, placing utmost importance on your well-being and welfare. God cares about every need you have. As His beloved child, He will not allow you to continue suffering or remain in pain.

Whatever wicked plans the enemy has concocted against your soul, God is nullifying them. The activities of the evil one will never prevail in your life. Your destiny rests in the hands of God. The Good Shepherd is currently calling for your freedom. You were lost, but now you have been found. He invites you to bring your hurts, afflictions, sicknesses, and addictions to Him. In Christ, you will find rest. He proclaims, "Come to Me, all you who labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you and learn from Me, for I am gentle and lowly in heart, and you will find rest for your souls. For My yoke is easy, and My burden is light" (Matthew 11:28-30). If you come to Christ, He promises to grant you rest and peace of mind. Only in Him will you find solace and tranquility. Approach Christ and take His yoke and burden upon yourself. His yoke is easy, light, abundant with blessings, and brings forth peace. Lay your burdens down before Christ and embrace His burden, and see if He will not bring comfort from pain, riches from poverty, and healing from sickness.

Even though you may still be experiencing pain, and your situation may appear unchanged at this moment, do not lose hope. God is secretly working things out on your behalf. Do not allow the problem to weigh you down. The fact that God has allowed this problem in your life indicates that He has a greater plan for you. Remember that God would never cause us pain and hardship; that is the work of Satan, whose mission is to kill, steal, and destroy. However, God permits the devil to inflict pain so that He may reveal Himself in our lives. When Jesus walked the earth, healing the sick and casting out demons, there was a blind man who had been blind from birth. Christ healed him, and when His disciples asked whether the man's blindness was due to his own sin or that of his parents, Jesus replied, "Neither this man nor his parents sinned, but that the works of God should be revealed in him" (John 9:3). Perhaps, like the blind man, God wants to reveal Himself to you. Do not allow anyone to make you believe that your problem is a result of your sin. As a child of God, your sins have been forgiven, and God desires to use your situation to showcase His love in your life—to demonstrate to the world that you are indeed His beloved child.

God Unconditional Love

The Scriptures proclaim the nature of love, stating, "Love suffers long and is kind; love does not envy; love does not parade itself, is not puffed up; does not behave rudely, does not seek its own, is not provoked, thinks no evil; does not rejoice in iniquity, but rejoices in the truth; bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things" (1 Corinthians 13:4-7). This description of love reflects the unfathomable love that God has for His children and the type of love He desires us to demonstrate towards others. God's love for His children is unconditional and unwavering, even when we are undeserving. Despite our disobedience and transgressions, God, in His boundless love, sent His Son, Jesus Christ, to save us from the bondage of sin and bring us into His eternal glory. The well-known verse, "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish but have everlasting life" (John 3:16), encapsulates the depth of God's love for humanity.

God's love is not merely an action or a choice He makes; it is the very essence of His being. Love is inseparable from God's character. When we seek His presence, what we encounter is the manifestation of His love. God's love extends to us unconditionally, without any prerequisites or requirements. He loves us just as we are, without needing anything from us. When we approach Him in our impurity, He purifies us. When we come to Him feeling incomplete, He makes us whole. When we approach Him in our brokenness, He brings healing and restoration. God eagerly welcomes us into His Kingdom, as it is our rightful place as sons and daughters in His divine family.

SUMMARY

This chapter emphasizes the idea that as believers, we should not panic when faced with difficulties, but rather rely on the love of God to strengthen our faith. The author highlights that challenging circumstances are meant to deepen our longing to know God and abide in His presence. It is important not to mistake our response to hardship by fleeing from God, but rather draw closer to Him and commune with Him during these times. The chapter reassures that nothing can separate believers from the love of Christ, as stated in Romans 8:35-39.

The author reminds readers that regardless of the challenges they face, God still loves and cares for them. Illness, poverty, or any other trials do not diminish God's affection. The chapter encourages seeking forgiveness from God when we sin and not allowing mistakes to make us feel any less of a child of God. The author emphasizes that God's forgiveness is always available and that we should return to Him with a contrite heart.

The chapter goes on to discuss the secure position believers have in God's kingdom. It states that our status as children of God cannot be revoked, and God will always welcome us back when we genuinely repent and seek forgiveness. The parable of the prodigal son is used to illustrate this point, highlighting how the father in the story welcomed back his son with open arms and celebrated his return.

The chapter also emphasizes that believers hold immense value in God's kingdom and are created in His image. The parable of the good shepherd is referenced to exemplify God's love and care for His children. It encourages believers to place their confidence in God's leadership and rely on His guidance in times of trouble.

The chapter concludes by reminding readers to proclaim their victory over challenges through positive confessions, affirming their position in Christ and rejecting the schemes of the enemy. It reassures that God cares about every need and will nullify the plans of the enemy. Believers are encouraged to come to God, find rest in Him, and embrace His burden.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Overall, the chapter emphasizes the unconditional love of God, the secure position believers have in His kingdom, and the importance of drawing closer to Him during times of difficulty. It encourages seeking forgiveness and relying on God's guidance and care.

VITAL PRINCIPLES

- Any challenging circumstance that arises is intended to strengthen our faith in God.
- God can never forsake His children on account of any problem, for His very nature is Love.
- Your illness does not signify God's absence of love. Your state of poverty or homelessness does not diminish God's affection for you.
- Never allow anyone to make you feel that your mistakes render you any less of a child of God.
- Regardless of our wrongdoings, nothing can diminish the place that God has reserved for us.
- If we can recognize our wrongdoing, experience genuine remorse, and humbly return to God seeking forgiveness, He will embrace us as His children once more.
- You are a divine project, meticulously crafted by God, and He will never forsake you until His purpose for your life is fulfilled.
- God cares about every need you have. As His beloved child, He will not allow you to continue suffering or remain in pain.
- Approach Christ and take His yoke and burden upon yourself. His yoke is easy, light, abundant with blessings, and brings forth peace.
- Do not allow anyone to make you believe that your problem is a result of your sin. As a child of God, your sins have been forgiven.
- God's love for His children is unconditional and unwavering, even when we are undeserving.
- God's love is not merely an action or a choice He makes; it is the very essence of His being.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

Making yourself Available for God's Purpose

God Is Not Interested in Your Qualification, but Your Willingness

We are all intricately designed by God with a unique purpose. It is important to recognize that your limitations should not hinder you from believing in the potential for goodness within you. God is not concerned with your qualifications or expertise; He is primarily interested in your willingness to collaborate with Him. If a particular purpose aligns with God's plan for your life, there is nothing you cannot achieve. Many individuals mistakenly believe that eloquence and extensive education are prerequisites for reaching greater heights. However, greatness is not contingent on eloquence or education. What truly matters is having God by your side. When you have a divine partnership, no mountain is too high to climb, and no valley is insurmountable—God will guide you to your intended destination. The things you perceive as obstacles will actually work to your advantage. All you need is self-belief and confidence that you can accomplish all things through Christ, who strengthens you.

Weakness Does Not Disqualify You for God's Purpose

Your weaknesses do not disqualify you from being used by God if you choose to surrender them before Him. When you place your confidence in God, He will manifest His strength in your weaknesses, making what may seem impossible to you humanly possible. Have faith in God, for when you trust in Him, He will accomplish incredible things in your life. Have you considered that trusting in God's strength to fulfill your purpose despite your shortcomings is an honor to Him? Do not let anything that appears physically impossible intimidate you. If God declares a position or calling is meant for you, nothing in this world—neither death nor life—can prevent you from fulfilling it. Instead of fixating on what you lack, redirect your focus to the greatness of the God you serve. The God you have is greater than any external resource or influence you believe you need to reach greater heights. God is the source and provider of all things. By affirming that you will occupy that position, God already knows you possess the necessary qualities. You must take a step of faith and demonstrate to God that you truly believe His word for your life is true. He desires to witness your faith in action. God has already determined your destiny, and everything you require for success has already been deposited within you. Your task is to activate it through faith and take the necessary steps to claim what you are meant for.

David's Confidence in God's Provision

David understood that God had already equipped him with the strength to defeat Goliath, which is why he fearlessly challenged him to combat. Although David lacked the natural warfare skills and physical prowess of Goliath, he did not allow his limited human perspective to dictate his actions. David did not focus on the towering height of his enemy or his own inadequate fighting abilities compared to the giant Goliath. Instead, David was conscious of the God who stood by his side. He knew that his God surpassed Goliath in greatness, and his faith in God rendered his limited sword skills inconsequential.

Surprisingly, it was the very weaknesses Goliath observed in David that facilitated his defeat. Goliath underestimated David's abilities. He expected the Israelites to send someone who matched his own strength and skill to challenge him. However, God orchestrated events in such a way that an inexperienced David, armed only with a stone slung from his sling, toppled Goliath. Had the Israelites presented someone physically on par with Goliath, he might not have taken any chances and could have triumphed over his opponent. Unbeknownst to Goliath, his downfall was imminent as he mockingly witnessed little David approaching.

The Divine Purpose in Your Inadequacies

Do not be disheartened or discouraged by those who look down upon you. Perhaps that is exactly how God intended it to be. Maybe He has hidden tremendous potential within you from their view so that when the right individuals, whom God has designated for your life, come into your orbit, His greatness can be fully manifested through you. It is also possible that God is using your inadequacies to deceive your enemies. Those who might have been envious or sought to take advantage of you due to the extraordinary future they perceive in you are made to see you as insignificant, thereby remaining at a distance.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Eliminating Unnecessary Distractions and Focusing On God's Purpose

When God has chosen you for great things, it is essential to recognize that certain types of attention are not necessary in your life. Sometimes, God may conceal your beginnings to avoid undesirable public attention that could hinder your growth. Perhaps God wants to develop you quietly and mature you before revealing your greatness to the world. Have you noticed that often, among a group of people, the one who appears least likely to excel and receives minimal attention ends up becoming the greatest among them? You do not need to strive for attention or go to extreme lengths to make others notice you.

Recognizing Your Worth despite External Opinions

Do not let the words and opinions of others, including your family and loved ones, affect your self-worth. They are entitled to their opinions, but it is crucial for you to know within yourself that you are not worthless. Even David's elder brother, who witnessed Goliath's challenge and the call for someone to fight him, looked down on David when he expressed his interest. However, David did not allow his brother's opinion to deter him. He understood that his brother's perspective was not what truly mattered. David recognized that his brother's anger was a distraction attempting to prevent him from fulfilling his destiny. He chose to ignore his brother and stay focused. David embraced the challenge and emerged victorious.

Until God's hand is manifested in your life, people may underestimate you. Everyone tends to associate themselves with winners. In times of difficulty, you can easily identify your true friends—the ones who genuinely care about you will remain by your side regardless of your flaws and inadequacies. This is why many successful individuals find it challenging to trust others. They often feel that people are only around them for personal gain and abandon them when they are struggling.

Do not be troubled by the unfair words others may say to you. When you refuse to let their negativity affect your focus and remain committed to your purpose, those who currently mock you and consider you insignificant will eventually rejoice with you when God's hand is revealed in your life. Those who look down on you will be the first to acknowledge your achievements to others. When they come around, it is important not to reject them outright, but to exercise caution, knowing their true character.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

God's Ability to Transform Foolishness into Greatness

God often chooses to use the foolish and insignificant things of the world to demonstrate His power. People may perceive you as foolish and believe your life has no meaning, but you should not allow their opinions to affect you negatively. Instead, use their negative words as motivation to do the right thing. God, who created you with a purpose, may want to use what others consider foolish in you to reveal something unimaginable to the world. He wants to show that what society deems as foolishness may not truly be foolish when one has God by their side. Scripture teaches us that not many wise, mighty, or noble are called, but God chooses the foolish, weak, and despised to shame the wise and mighty. He does this so that no one can boast in their own strength or abilities.

God can transform the very limitations you perceive in your life into blessings. Do not give up or feel discouraged about yourself. You are fearfully and wonderfully made, created in the image of God, and you belong to Him. Do not wish to be like others. You can appreciate the good in others' lives without demonizing yourself and longing to be someone else. Even if others do not like you, it should never be a reason for you to dislike yourself. Love yourself unconditionally, even if you have physical disabilities or challenges. Being physically challenged should not hinder you from enjoying the good things life has to offer. There are physically challenged individuals who are hardworking and lead fulfilling lives, with families, homes, and cars. They refuse to allow their disabilities to hinder their pursuit of greatness.

The Inspiring Story of a Blind Pastor

Permit me to share the story of a blind pastor I encountered at an Assemblies of God Church during a revival program. This pastor was not born blind; he contracted chronic measles few weeks after his birth, this affected his eyes and resulted in his blindness. He mentioned that it was by God's grace that the illness did not claim his life. His condition was so severe that at one point, both the doctor and his parents thought he had passed away. They even prepared a grave for him, but he miraculously came back to life.

Despite his disability, he did not allow his blindness to define him. He was determined to succeed in life. He pursued his education and emerged as one of the most brilliant students in his class, which led to a charitable organization offering him a scholarship to complete his schooling up to the university level. Additionally, upon sharing his story, he received financial support from many compassionate individuals. Fueled by his passion for God, he enrolled in a Bible school after completing his university education. He eventually became ordained as a pastor. With the help of his parents, he got married and now has three children, a house, and a car. As a minister of the gospel, he and his wife travel from church to church, inspiring congregations. He is living a fulfilled life.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Recognizing Your Potential and Overcoming Excuses

What makes you believe that nothing good can come out of you? If a blind man like that pastor can find love, have a family, own a house and a car, what excuse can you give for not succeeding? You might argue that his blindness evoked pity and financial support from others. However, he was not the only blind person in his class. It was his determination to succeed that attracted favor and support from individuals. On the other hand, I have encountered young individuals with financially stable parents willing to support them educationally, yet they choose a wayward path. Many people have ample opportunities to succeed but misuse them.

Success Is a Mindset

Success is not solely determined by the presence of opportunities but rather by one's mindset. A determined individual, regardless of financial limitations, can overcome any obstacle and achieve their goals through hard work and perseverance. Allow me to share the story of a friend from my university days to illustrate this point.

During his time at university, my friend faced significant financial challenges. His mother, a widow, struggled to support him academically, as he also had younger siblings to care for. Despite these circumstances, he refused to give up on his education and embarked on a journey to finance it himself. After attending classes, he would tirelessly sell goods on busy roads to generate income for his studies. Through his unwavering determination, he managed to fund his university education and eventually became a university lecturer.

Instead of focusing on what you lack, it is crucial to seize the opportunities available to you. Success is a product of determination and hard work. Many individuals in their twenties still rely on their parents to provide for them, exhibiting a lack of initiative. It is essential to take action and not solely depend on parental support. While it is your parents' responsibility to meet your financial needs, it is also important to be proactive and find ways to support yourself, as it fosters independence and garners respect from your parents.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Even if circumstances prevent you from working, consider acquiring a skill or pursuing an activity you excel in. Remaining idle and relying on others for support can lead to engaging in unproductive and detrimental activities. An idle mind often becomes a breeding ground for negative influences that hinder spiritual growth. If you find yourself with free time, engage in reading Christian inspirational and motivational books. These resources can help develop your mindset, foster positive thinking, and strengthen your relationship with God.

To achieve greatness, you must cultivate certain habits. Successful individuals lead disciplined, focused, and determined lives. Their language is that of success, even when others are distracted or idle. While others are engaged in leisure, they are tirelessly working towards their next achievement. To succeed in life, one must embrace an unconventional lifestyle, surpassing the norms followed by most individuals.

Embracing Your Calling

Let me share the story of a brother who had a passion for serving God but struggled with a speech impediment. Despite being mocked and facing discouragement from classmates and others, he remained dedicated to doing God's work. Believing in God's calling upon his life, he enrolled in a Bible school, where he continued to face ridicule. Some questioned his ability to be an effective preacher due to his speech difficulties. Although he contemplated giving up, he had an inner strength assuring him that God was aware of his situation and had a plan for his life.

One day, while evangelizing, he experienced a miraculous transformation. As he began speaking, he felt a release in his speech impediment. Those listening to him were amazed by this sudden change and inquired about when he overcame his speech challenges. It was at that moment he realized that God had performed a miracle in his life. Truly, God remains faithful to those who trust in Him.

If God has called you to fulfill a purpose, He will provide everything you need to succeed, regardless of your limitations. Challenges may arise, obstacles may block your path, and limitations may exist, but they cannot impede God's plan for your life. In fact, they often serve as catalysts for personal growth and spiritual upliftment.

God is aware of your limitations even before He calls you to serve Him. He knows that these limitations cannot hinder His purpose in your life, and

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

He orchestrates circumstances and sends people to support you along the way. You are not expected to navigate this journey alone. God will bring individuals who believe in your vision and assist you in achieving your dreams and life purpose. Your role is to remain steadfast in your faith, continue running the race faithfully, and call upon your heavenly Father whenever you face difficulties. He will come to your aid, manifesting His presence in your life.

God desires to see your unwavering commitment to His Word and your belief in His ability to turn nothing into something. He can create pathways where there seem to be none and make streams of water flow from the desert. Your limitations and challenges can be used as opportunities to honor God and inspire others. Let your determination and resilience be a testament to His power. May others witness your unwavering resolve and acknowledge that your accomplishments are only possible through God's intervention. Such testimonies bring joy to God's heart and open doors for greater things in your life.

God is not concerned with your current inadequacies; He is focused on the magnificent future He has prepared for you. He sees within you a great individual capable of transforming the world for the better. When God called Moses to confront Pharaoh and lead the Israelites out of Egypt, Moses doubted his own abilities due to his speech impairment. Yet, God reminded him that He is the creator of speech and that He would be with Moses, guiding his words. Despite God's reassurances, Moses remained uncertain and requested someone else to fulfill the task. Similarly, some individuals allow pessimism and doubt to overshadow their potential, even when opportunities for success are within reach. Moses saw his speech impediment, but God saw a deliverer. Moses saw insignificance, but God saw the savior of a nation. God's perspective is what truly matters. Instead of viewing yourself through the lens of your limitations, embrace God's vision for your life. It is through faith that we please God. With faith, we can see the invisible, believe in the present, act decisively, and trust in God's completed work.

God Has Already Finished His Work in You

Prior to your conception and birth, God had already planned and completed your life's purpose. Your existence is a testament to the fact that God intends to use you to fulfill a specific purpose. To discover this purpose, we need God's guidance and direction. It is crucial not to perceive yourself as insignificant, as you are not. You have been brought into existence because God desires to utilize you for a specific mission. As long as you carry the mark of Christ within you, everything you do now and everything you will become is in God's hands. You are a unique individual with something valuable to offer the world. You were born to solve a problem, and God possesses complete knowledge of every aspect of your being. He knows your thoughts and your future actions. He has already orchestrated how you will fulfill your destiny. This aligns with the words of the psalmist:

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

"O Lord, You have searched me and known me. You know my sitting down and my rising up; You understand my thought afar off. You comprehend my path and my lying down and are acquainted with all my ways. For there is not a word on my tongue, But behold, O Lord, You know it altogether. You have hedged me behind and before And laid Your hand upon me. Such knowledge is too wonderful for me; It is high, I cannot attain it. Where can I go from Your Spirit? Or where can I flee from Your presence? If I ascend into heaven, You are there; If I make my bed in hell, behold, You are there. If I take the wings of the morning And dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, Even there Your hand shall lead me, And Your right hand shall hold me. If I say, 'Surely the darkness shall fall on me,' Even the night shall be light about me; Indeed, the darkness shall not hide from You, But the night shines as the day; The darkness and the light are both alike to You. For You formed my inward parts; You covered me in my mother's womb. I will praise You, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made; Marvelous are Your works, And that my soul knows very well. My frame was not hidden from You, When I was made in secret, And skillfully wrought in the lowest parts of the earth. Your eyes saw my substance, being yet unformed. And in Your book, they all were written, The days fashioned for me, When as yet there were none of them." (Psalm 139: 1-16)

King David acknowledged that God possesses perfect knowledge of every human being. He is our creator, knowing what we will become. He is the architect of our destiny, determining the length of our lives. The devil has no control over our destiny. Every aspect of our lives is in God's hands.

Jeremiah was still a youth when God called him to be a prophet. The young man was surprised to hear the voice of the Lord, stating that he was called to be a prophet to the nations. Jeremiah, confused, questioned why God would send someone as young as him, someone who could not speak eloquently and would not be believed. However, God responded, assuring him that He was aware of Jeremiah even before his birth. God had already prepared him for the task while he was in his mother's womb. Jeremiah's destiny was to become a prophet to the nations. God said, "Before I formed you in the womb, I knew you; Before you were born, I sanctified you; I ordained you a prophet to the nations." (Jeremiah 1: 4-10)

Prior to receiving God's revelation about his calling, Jeremiah underestimated himself. He found it difficult to accept that his calling was to be a prophet to the nations. As children of God, we are all created for a purpose, and that purpose must be fulfilled before we depart from this world. Do not let your current circumstances or level make you believe that you cannot succeed in life. God can use you regardless of your family background or lineage. Gideon came from the weakest clan in Manasseh, yet God used him to save the nation of Israel from their enemies. Gideon was unaware of his strength and never imagined leading an army to defeat his people's adversaries. It was only when the angel of the Lord appeared to Gideon and called him a mighty man of valor that he realized his true potential.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Your background does not determine your worth. Your lineage or ancestral background cannot hinder God from using you to fulfill His purpose. Coming from a poor background does not mean you will remain poor. Coming from an uneducated family does not mean you will not receive an education. Your family's limitations do not restrict your upward mobility. God does not consider your family background; He is interested in the greatness He has placed within you. When you allow God to take control of your life, nothing can hinder you from fulfilling your purpose.

God has deposited immense potential within each one of us, waiting to be activated by faith. There is no concept of outcasts in the kingdom of God; we are all legitimate children of God. If you stand strong and believe in yourself, you will undoubtedly succeed. Nothing can stop you, except if you choose to remain obstinate and not pursue your purpose. Our life accomplishments will not be buried with us in the grave; we will leave this world empty, having fulfilled our purpose and achieved all that Christ has promised us. In Jesus' name, Amen.

SUMMARY

Chapter Thirteen of "Making Yourself Available for God's Purpose" explores the concept of embracing God's will over personal qualifications. The chapter emphasizes that God is primarily interested in one's willingness to collaborate with Him, rather than their qualifications or expertise. The chapter highlights that greatness is not contingent on eloquence or education but on having a divine partnership with God. The author encourages readers to believe in their potential and have confidence in accomplishing all things through Christ.

The chapter also emphasizes that weaknesses do not disqualify individuals from God's purpose. Surrendering weaknesses to God allows His strength to manifest in one's life, making the seemingly impossible possible. The author encourages readers to trust in God's strength and not be intimidated by physical limitations. The story of David and Goliath is used to illustrate how God can use perceived inadequacies for victory.

Furthermore, the chapter emphasizes the value of recognizing one's worth despite external opinions. It encourages readers not to be discouraged by those who look down upon them, as God may be using their inadequacies to deceive enemies or reveal hidden potential. The chapter also highlights the importance of eliminating unnecessary distractions and focusing on God's purpose. It reminds readers that attention-seeking and seeking validation from others are not necessary for fulfilling God's plan.

The chapter emphasizes the transformative power of God, turning weaknesses into opportunities. It shares the inspiring story of a blind pastor who overcame his disability and achieved success in various aspects of life. The chapter encourages readers to recognize their potential and overcome excuses, using examples of individuals who have succeeded against challenging circumstances.

Additionally, the chapter discusses the importance of a success mindset and the value of determination and hard work. It stresses the need to seize opportunities and not rely solely on others for support. The author shares personal anecdotes and stories of individuals who have achieved success through determination and perseverance.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

The chapter concludes by highlighting that God's calling surpasses limitations and challenges. It encourages readers to remain steadfast in their faith and trust in God's plan. It emphasizes that God provides everything needed to succeed and brings supportive individuals into one's life. The chapter encourages readers to honor God through their determination and resilience, inspiring others and opening doors for greater things.

Overall, Chapter Thirteen emphasizes the importance of embracing God's will, recognizing potential, overcoming limitations, and maintaining a determined and faithful mindset in fulfilling God's purpose.

VITAL PRINCIPLES

- God is not concerned with your qualifications or expertise; He is primarily interested in your willingness to collaborate with Him.
- Greatness is not contingent on eloquence or education. What truly matters is having God by your side.
- When you have a divine partnership, no mountain is too high to climb, and no valley is insurmountable—God will guide you to your intended destination.
- Your weaknesses do not disqualify you from being used by God if you choose to surrender them before Him.
- When you trust in God, He will manifest His strength in your weaknesses, making what may seem impossible to you humanly possible.
- God has already determined your destiny, and everything you require for success has already been deposited within you.
- Recognize that certain types of attention are not necessary in your life. Sometimes, God may conceal your beginnings to avoid undesirable public attention that could hinder your growth.
- Do not let the words and opinions of others affect your self-worth. Even if others look down on you, remember that your worth is determined by God, not external opinions.
- In times of difficulty, you can easily identify your true friends—the ones who genuinely care about you will remain by your side regardless of your flaws and inadequacies.
- Do not be troubled by the unfair words others may say to you. When you refuse to let their negativity affect your focus, they will eventually acknowledge your achievements.
- God often chooses to use the foolish and insignificant things of the world to demonstrate His power. Do not let others' opinions define your worth.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

- God can transform the very limitations you perceive in your life into blessings. You are fearfully and wonderfully made, created in the image of God.
- Success is not solely determined by the presence of opportunities but rather by one's mindset. A determined individual can overcome any obstacle and achieve their goals through hard work and perseverance.
- If God has called you to fulfill a purpose, He will provide everything you need to succeed, regardless of your limitations.
- God desires to see your unwavering commitment to His Word and your belief in His ability to turn nothing into something.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

Learning From the Story of Job

Trial: A Testament to Faithfulness in the Lord's Work

The story of Job serves as a profound example for all believers, demonstrating how to exhibit unwavering faith in the face of trials and life's storms. During his time, Job was highly esteemed, being the foremost among all men in the east. He possessed abundant wealth, including children, cattle, camels, and servants. Despite his wealth and status, Job remained remarkably humble in disposition. He was a devoted believer, committed to his relationship and fellowship with God. Job consistently prayed for God's mercy upon his children, concerned that they may have sinned and cursed God in their hearts due to their indulgent lifestyle of daily feasting and revelry.

Even when all his possessions were ravaged—seven thousand sheep, three thousand camels, five hundred yokes of oxen, five hundred female donkeys, and a great household—Job's faith in God remained unshaken. His belief in God transcended material wealth and possessions. Upon hearing the devastating news of his losses, Job responded with reverence and worship.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

The Scripture recounts,

"Then Job arose, and rent his mantle, and shaved his head, and fell down upon the ground, and worshipped, And said, Naked came I out of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither: the LORD gave, and the LORD hath taken away; blessed be the name of the LORD. In all this Job sinned not, nor charged God foolishly" (Job 1:20-22).

This demonstrates Job's prioritization of the giver of wealth over the possessions themselves. Had it been the opposite, Job might have cursed God, fallen into despair, or even contemplated suicide due to the overwhelming burden of bad news. However, Job was not enslaved by riches. He refused to let his possessions dictate his character. Whether circumstances were favorable or not, Job's foremost concern was his relationship and fellowship with God. He did not allow wealth to compromise his reliance on God, nor did the trials resulting from the loss of his possessions diminish his faith. Instead, Job's adverse circumstances deepened his dependence on and trust in God. To Job, God remained good at all times, regardless of his health or financial state. Job's confession remained unwavering, consistently expressing strength in the face of weakness and victory in the face of defeat.

Consider the path you are currently traversing in life. The way may seem so dark that as you continue, the darkness only intensifies, causing doubts to arise regarding your survival and the eventual emergence into the light on the other side. In such moments, it is invaluable to draw strength from the trials Job endured, allowing his example to prevent discouragement and the misguided notion that God has forsaken you in your adversity. Even though Job found himself in the deepest pit of his life, he saw fit to bless the name of the Lord even more, rather than succumbing to complaint or burdening God with frustrating questions.

It is crucial to remember that Job was a righteous man. His suffering was not the result of personal sin but a test from God to assess whether Job valued his possessions above his relationship with Him. This reveals that faithful Christians are not exempt from trials. You can be sick, impoverished, and encounter failure while still remaining a Child of God. Never mistake your failures and misfortunes for signs of sin. God may correct and chastise you when you err, enabling you to amend your ways. However, it does not mean that every problem that arises is a consequence of sin. Some difficulties may serve as tests of faith, permitted by God to refine and strengthen you.

Desperation should have no place in your life. If God has promised you success, patiently await its manifestation. When you become desperate for anything, you are signaling to God that you place excessive value and importance on it. Whatever holds greater significance in your life becomes an idol, which God does not desire. God desires to be the sole focus of your affections in this world. Your happiness should not hinge solely on material wealth, as the devil can easily strip it away, leaving you in perpetual sadness for the remainder of your days.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Placing God Above All: The Enduring Faith of Job

In any elevated position we may occupy in life, it is imperative to prioritize God above all else. Nothing on earth should supplant the central role of God in our lives, as a life devoid of God lacks purpose and meaning. As stated in the Bible, what shall it profit a person to gain the entire world yet lose their soul? One should never trade anything in life for the sake of their soul. The relationship and fellowship with God should be of utmost importance, even if it means sacrificing one's life and position. Job exemplified this principle, as he prioritized his relationship with God over the afflictions he endured. He was more concerned with pleasing God, who had authority over his soul, than the physical suffering he experienced. To Job, God was the sole focus and nothing else mattered.

As believers, our devotion to God should supersede any circumstances we face. While enemies may inflict harm upon us, they possess no power over our souls. The trials and persecutions we endure at the hands of tormentors serve to strengthen our faith in God. We should never allow the fear of losing our lives or valuable possessions to deter us from maintaining our place in the kingdom of God. It is far more perilous to lose our relationship with God than to forfeit our earthly possessions. Choosing persecution and even unjust death for the sake of our faith is preferable to embracing the ungodly ways of the world. Therefore, we must steadfastly hold onto our faith and diligently nurture our relationship with God, as that is what truly matters for success in this world and the next.

Our circumstances should never cause us to forfeit our place in God's kingdom. Being sick and poor does not signify the end of life. It is better to die from an illness while being a friend of God than to live a healthy life as an enemy of God. Similarly, it is preferable to remain poor yet be a beloved and favored servant of God rather than to be wealthy and lose our souls to the forces of darkness.

I would love to share a story about a financially struggling young man. Although his job provided only modest income, it covered his immediate needs. However, he yearned for a well-paying job that could meet all his financial requirements. This young man had an affluent friend, whose source of wealth remained unknown to many. Desiring riches, he approached his wealthy friend for assistance.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

During their discussion, the rich friend promised to help him attain wealth, but under one condition. He took a passport-sized photograph of the young man, provided him with some cash, and informed him that he would contact him in a few weeks for an arrangement he needed to make. Filled with hope and anticipation, the young man returned home, envisioning the moment he would receive the call. Unbeknownst to him, his wealthy friend was involved in drug trafficking.

Two weeks later, the rich friend summoned him to his house. Upon arrival, the truth was revealed—the friend was engaged in illegal drug activities. He presented a lucrative opportunity: the young man was asked to swallow a package of hard drugs and transport it to a foreign country. Initially fearful, the young man declined the task. However, enticed by the substantial financial reward, he ultimately agreed to swallow the package of cocaine.

He swallowed the drugs and embarked on the journey, contemplating how he would elude airport security and police checkpoints. By fortunate circumstances, he managed to bypass all security measures and board the plane. During the lengthy flight, he began experiencing excruciating stomach pain caused by the drugs. Desperate for help, he called out, but before he could explain his situation to the authorities on board, he lost consciousness and died. It was later discovered that he had been transporting drugs inside his stomach to the destination country.

Life is incredibly precious, and nothing should ever compel us to risk it for temporary gain. We must never compromise our integrity for any reason. Material possessions are fleeting and vain. When we do not attach excessive value to material things, the devil cannot gain a hold over us. He knows that even if he were to strip away everything from us, it would have no effect on our trust in God.

One of the secrets that sustained Job during his period of profound despair was his unwavering belief in God, which transcended material wealth and physical possessions. Job's relationship with God surpassed riches and possessions. He never allowed his losses to shake his faith in God. While wealth and possessions held some importance to Job, his true focus was on the glory that awaited him in the kingdom of God. This is why, even when everything was going well and his possessions crumbled, Job did not sin against God; instead, he continued to bless the name of the Lord.

Imagine yourself in Job's circumstances—consider what you would have done. Would you still find reasons to honor God in the face of such tremendous adversity? Many of us today are quick to blame ourselves and succumb to self-pity when we are subjected to false accusations and labeled responsible for our misfortunes. Even Job's three closest friends—Zophar, Bildad, and Eliphaz—accused him of being the cause of his own calamities. Here are their respective statements:

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Zophar the Naamathite: "But the eyes of the wicked will fail, and escape will elude them; their hope will become a dying gasp." (Job 11:20)

Bildad the Shuhite: "Indeed, the light of the wicked is extinguished; the flame of his fire does not glow." (Job 18:5)

Eliphaz the Temanite: "Is not your wickedness great? Are not your sins endless?" (Job 22:5)

However, the Scriptures describe Job as a righteous man. His tribulations were not the result of his sins, but rather a test of his righteousness. God allowed the devil to strip Job of all his possessions to demonstrate that his devotion to God was not solely based on blessings and divine protection. The following dialogue between God and Satan exemplifies this:

"Then the Lord said to Satan, 'Have you considered My Servant Job, that there is none like him on the earth, a blameless and upright man, one who fears God and shuns evil?' So Satan answered the Lord and said, 'Does Job fear God for nothing? Have You not made a hedge around him, around his household, and around all that he has on every side? You have blessed the work of his hands, and his possessions have increased in the land. But now, stretch out Your hand and touch all that he has, and he will surely curse You to Your face!' And the Lord said to Satan, 'Behold, all that he has is in your power; only do not lay a hand on his person.' So Satan went out from the presence of the Lord." (Job 1:8-12)

God desired to prove to the devil that Job's righteousness was genuine and not simply a product of the blessings and protection he received. Nonetheless, Job did not allow the accusations from his close friends to diminish his resolve; he knew he had not committed any evil acts or grave sins that warranted his current predicament. He steadfastly clung to his integrity.

These accusations from Job's friends serve as a testament to the gravity of his situation. Consider how terrible Job must have felt when those he regarded as close companions concluded that his sins must have brought such adversity upon him and his household. Even his wife, the most important person in his life, encouraged him to curse God and die. If you were in his position, how deeply wounded would you have been? Would you have contemplated ending your life, or would you have maintained your confidence in God?

Key Lessons from Job's Trials: A Profound Understanding

1. Unyielding Faith: Job's resolute faith in God stands as an extraordinary example for all believers. Despite the utter loss of his possessions and affliction that ravaged his body, he clung to his unwavering trust in God. His steadfastness did not waver in the face of adversity. Job comprehended that even if he were to pass away, he would be welcomed into the eternal kingdom of God. Such unshakable faith is a testament to his unbreakable resolve. Job declared, "Shall we receive good from God, and shall we not receive evil?" (Job 2:10). True faith is not limited to seasons of prosperity; it endures through the harshest of trials.
2. Divine Omniscience: Job found solace in the knowledge that God was fully cognizant of his afflictions, even when the reasons behind them remained elusive. As believers, we must bear in mind that irrespective of the circumstances we endure, God is intimately aware of our struggles. In moments of divine silence, He still speaks volumes. Jesus proclaimed, "Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings, and not one of them is forgotten before God? But even the very hairs of your head are all numbered. Fear not therefore: ye are of more value than many sparrows" (Luke 12:6-7). If God attends to the minutiae of sparrows and the count of our hairs, how much more so will He regard His children, created in His image? God's awareness of our situations necessitates unwavering faith, for in due time He shall come to our rescue.
3. Invincibility in Trials: For genuine believers, trials possess no power to annihilate or subdue them. God, in His infinite wisdom, never permits trials to surpass our capacity to overcome them. He is acutely aware of our resilience and shapes our tribulations accordingly. When God allowed the devil to assail Job, He established boundaries beyond which the adversary could not trespass. Initially, God prohibited the devil from harming Job's health; subsequently, He allowed affliction to befall him. This orchestrated test aimed to determine if Job would curse God, yet he remained steadfast. Have you ever pondered if your trial serves as a test from God? Similar to Job's case, conversations may be unfolding behind the scenes unbeknownst to us. We must remember that God orchestrates every test we endure, and rather than destroy us, such trials serve as catalysts for remarkable growth and promotion.
4. Divine Vindication: During seasons of misfortune, the world hastens to accuse and cast aspersions upon us. Even our fellow brethren in Christ may be the first to question our integrity, suspecting our trials stem from hidden transgressions. Nevertheless, Job teaches us to fix our gaze firmly on God, the ultimate arbiter of justice, who alone can vindicate the innocent. Instead of succumbing to the distress caused by false accusations, we should trust in God's righteous judgment and possess unwavering confidence that He will unveil the truth to our detractors. Job's focus remained unswerving, and in due course, he was vindicated.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

Let us internalize this profound lesson, fortify our faith, stand unwavering in the face of trials, and rely on God's ultimate justice and deliverance.

May these profound insights gleaned from Job's trials resound within our hearts, infusing us with unwavering faith, unyielding resilience, and an unwavering trust in the justice of our Heavenly Father.

The Power of Forgiveness: Unlocking God's Abundant Blessings

The account of Job serves as a powerful testament to the transformative impact of forgiveness. As Job emerged triumphant from his arduous test, the Scriptures reveal that God multiplied his lost possessions and bestowed upon him immeasurable riches. However, it is crucial to recognize that Job's journey towards divine blessings commenced with a profound act of forgiveness. Regardless of who may have wronged you and the injustices inflicted upon you throughout your affliction, the imperative remains the same: you must release the shackles of resentment and extend forgiveness to those who have accused you unjustly. It is through forgiveness that you open the floodgates to attract the bountiful blessings that God has ordained for your life.

Consider the possibility that God intends to utilize your challenging circumstances as a catalyst for your elevation to new heights. In times of trial, we must anchor our trust in the unwavering faithfulness of God. Job traversed the darkest tunnels of despair and emerged victorious precisely because he embodied a steadfast faith. If we consistently place our faith in God, irrespective of the circumstances we encounter, we can rest assured that we will eventually behold the radiant light that awaits us at the end of the tunnel.

Forgiveness holds a profound significance in the process of attracting divine blessings. It is a transformative act that not only liberates our own hearts but also establishes a spiritual magnetism that draws forth God's favor and abundance. By forgiving those who have wronged us, we align ourselves with God's divine principles of love, mercy, and grace. In doing so, we create fertile ground for His blessings to manifest in our lives.

Remember, God's blessings are not contingent upon the actions of others, but rather on the disposition of our own hearts. When we choose forgiveness, we demonstrate a genuine alignment with God's character and His desire for reconciliation and restoration. Such a disposition positions us to receive His double portion—an overflow of blessings beyond measure.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

In the face of adversity, let us learn from Job's example and nurture a forgiving spirit. As we release the burdens of unforgiveness, we open ourselves to the fullness of God's redemptive work. Embracing forgiveness sets in motion a divine chain reaction that propels us toward the remarkable destiny God has ordained for us.

May we grasp the profound truth that a forgiven heart holds the power to attract God's abundant blessings. Through the unwavering practice of forgiveness, we not only experience personal freedom but also create an irresistible magnetism that draws forth the limitless blessings that our Heavenly Father eagerly desires to bestow upon us.

SUMMARY

Chapter fourteen delves into the story of Job as a valuable source of lessons for believers, showcasing his unwavering faith in the midst of trials and storms. Job, a highly esteemed man with abundant wealth, remained humble and devoted to his relationship with God. He consistently prayed for his children, concerned about their spiritual well-being. When calamity struck and he lost everything, Job responded with reverence and worship, acknowledging that his possessions came from God and praising His name. Job's faith prioritized God over material wealth, and he did not allow his possessions to dictate his character or compromise his reliance on God.

The chapter emphasizes the importance of placing God above all earthly matters and not allowing worldly possessions or situations to overshadow our faith and devotion. Job's unwavering faith in the face of immense loss and suffering serves as an inspiration for believers. It teaches us that true devotion transcends material riches and should remain steadfast regardless of our circumstances. Trials and challenges are not necessarily indicators of personal sin or spiritual failure. Job's suffering was a test permitted by God to assess his devotion and prioritize his relationship with Him. Therefore, encountering difficulties does not imply divine abandonment or punishment. Some trials may serve as refining processes, strengthening our faith and character.

Job's story also highlights the significance of preserving our integrity and eternal perspective. Despite false accusations and unjust judgments from his friends, Job maintained his innocence and focused on his relationship with God. He understood that material possessions were fleeting, and true success lay in the eternal kingdom of God. Job's example teaches us to hold firm to our faith, even in the face of false accusations and challenging circumstances.

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

In conclusion, the story of Job provides a profound example of unwavering faith and devotion to God amidst unimaginable trials. Believers are encouraged to prioritize their relationship with God above all else, recognizing that material possessions and worldly circumstances should never overshadow their faith. Job's story reminds us that trials are not always indicative of personal sin and that our integrity and eternal perspective should be preserved. Drawing strength from Job's example, believers can navigate the storms of life with unwavering faith, knowing that God's presence and faithfulness are constant, regardless of their circumstances.

Key lessons derived from Job's trials include the importance of unyielding faith, the assurance of God's divine omniscience, the invincibility of believers in trials permitted by God, and the ultimate vindication that comes from trusting in God's justice. Furthermore, the chapter emphasizes the transformative power of forgiveness in attracting God's abundant blessings. By releasing resentment and extending forgiveness, believers align themselves with God's principles of love, mercy, and grace, creating fertile ground for His blessings to manifest in their lives.

Ultimately, the chapter encourages believers to understand that a forgiven heart has the power to attract God's abundant blessings. Through the practice of forgiveness, believers not only experience personal freedom but also establish a spiritual magnetism that draws forth the limitless blessings that God eagerly desires to bestow upon them.

VITAL PRINCIPLES

- Unyielding Faith - Job's unwavering trust in God endured through the harshest trials.
- Divine Omniscience - God is intimately aware of our struggles and attends to even the smallest details of our lives.
- Invincibility in Trials - God sets boundaries for our trials and shapes them according to our capacity to overcome.
- Divine Vindication - Trust in God's righteous judgment and confident that He will unveil the truth and vindicate the innocent.
- The Power of Forgiveness - Forgiveness opens the floodgates to attract God's abundant blessings.
- Trusting God in Darkness - Anchor your trust in the unwavering faithfulness of God, even in the darkest moments.
- Preserving Integrity - Maintain your integrity and eternal perspective amidst false accusations and challenging circumstances.
- Trials and Tests of Faith - Not all trials are a result of personal sin; some serve to refine and strengthen our faith.
- Material Possessions and Faith - True devotion transcends worldly riches and places God above all material possessions.
- Unwavering Confession - Express strength in weakness and victory in defeat, declaring God's goodness at all times.
- Divine Justice - Trust in God's ultimate justice and deliverance, even when facing false accusations and adversity.
- The Transformative Power of Forgiveness - Release resentment

The Light After The Tunnel: Discovering Your True Purpose In Hard Times

and extend forgiveness to attract God's bountiful blessings.

- Forgiveness and Divine Favor - Forgiving others align us with God's principles and create a fertile ground for His blessings.
- Trusting God's Plan - In times of trial, anchor your faith in God's faithfulness and believe in the radiant light at the end of the tunnel.
- Forgiveness as a Spiritual Magnet - A forgiving heart attracts God's abundant blessings and opens us to His redemptive work.